FIVE MEN ARRESTED FOR HAVING FIREARMS

One Up for Felony Was Carrying a Gun He Had Just Bought to Go Hunting.

PAWNBROKERS IN CUSTODY

Complicated Questions Under New Law Which District Attorney and Police Commissioner Give Up.

Five arrests were made yesterday under the new Sullivan anti-weapon law which makes it a misdemeanor for any one to have a pistol, blackjack, or bludgeon in his possession without a permit, and a felony for any one to have such a weapon concealed upon his person.

The first arrest to be made was made early in the morning, when detectives arrested Ivan Prince, a pawnbroker, at 311 Seventh Avenue, for having five revolvers in his window. Morris Rosenthal, a clerk at Dryer's loan shop at 504 Sixth Avenue, was arrested for having six revolvers in his desk. James Palermo, a laborer at Huntington, L. I., aroused the sympathy of both District Attorney Whitman and Judge Swann in General Sessions when he was brought into the Tombs Court charged with a felony for carrying a shotgun which he had just bought to use while hunting this Fall. His arrest was followed by that of Angelus Gabriel of 4 Greenwich Street, who flourished a revolver in his house, and Charles Storich, who sold the gun to Palermo.

Both Prince and Rosenthal were arraigned before Magistrate Freschi in the Jefferson Market Court, and after waiving examination were released on $500 to await trial in Special Sessions.

Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel admitted that the cases of the two pawnbrokers would undoubtedly be passed upon by the higher courts as unconstitutional, and Magistrate Freschi pointed out that although the law may be unconstitutional, it was to be assumed that the Legislature acted within its powers. He said:

"The question of the constitutionality of the statute now under consideration ought to be tested, since it concerns so many of our population, especially those with vast business interests. The law has a great office to perform, and the real intent should prevail over the strict letter. The strict enforcement of the law will do much to discourage crime.

"The State in exercise of its police powers may regulate the manner of keeping and carrying weapons. The law does not prohibit the possession or carrying of arms; it merely regulates under what terms they may be carried and kept. I believe the right of a citizen to have a revolver or other firearm in his place of business or home should have an authoritative interpretation.

"The Provident Loan Society came before me yesterday and asked several questions, among which were these: 'Can a society make loans on firearms after Sept. 1, 1911? How are we to act when tickets for firearms on which persons have secured loans are presented for redemption or renewal? How are we to dispose of firearms in cases where the loan is overdue under Section 1,914?' You can readily see how all important these questions are under this new law.

"The cases before me present but one question, the right of a citizen to have a firearm in his place of business or in his home. I presume there will be a habeas corpus in each of these cases."

The case of Palermo is the most important, as he is charged with a felony under a section of the new law which makes it a crime punishable by seven years' imprisonment for any person of foreign birth to even carry a shotgun or any weapon that might be called dangerous. Palermo can speak no English and was arrested by Policeman Thomas Hayden of the Elizabeth Street Station, who saw him leave a pawnshop at 18 Bowery carrying the gun in a case.

Magistrate O'Connor discharged Storich, who sold the gun. The case of Palermo, however, caused perplexity, and the Magistrate sent for District Attorney Whitman. Judge Whitman read the law and threw up his hands in dismay, saying:

"Why, it would take Solomon to puzzle this out. There is no penalty provided except the general penalty for a felony, that of seven years' imprisonment. Let us ask Judge Swann about the matter."

Palermo was accordingly arraigned before Judge Swann, who in turn was greatly puzzled. Palermo was so scared that he could hardly walk by this time and kept asking the interpreters what it was all about, saying he had not killed any one and had no intention of doing so. It was explained to him that he was charged with a felony for buying a shotgun, and he replied that this was a strange land of the free when a person couldn't get a shotgun to shoot rabbits in the Fall without being taken to court like a burglar.

Judge Swann expressed sympathy for the prisoner and paroled him in the custody of James E. Brande, who acted as his counsel.

Angelus Gabriel was arraigned before Magistrate O'Connor. Policeman Bischoff of the Greenwich Street Station had arrested him in his home at Greenwich Street after a woman had told him that there was a crazy man upstairs. He sprang up the stairs and found Gabriel with a sword in one hand and an automatic revolver in the other, and prodding William Ringos with the sword and shaking the revolver under his nose. Bischoff arrested Gabriel and Magistrate O'Connor held him in $1,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

District Attorney Whitman, in speaking about the law last night, said:

"I have received numerous calls from persons at present up in the woods hunting, and they want to know if they can bring their guns back without being arrested or having to first come to this city to get a permit to carry it home.

"Then there is another peculiar twist to the law. It says that while the people who sell guns in this city cannot buy the guns in this State from the retailers, there is nothing to keep the wholesale dealers from selling guns to them.

"Also the matter of prior possession comes into effect under the new law. I cannot see, where a person has lawful possession of anything, how a law can demand that it be turned over to the Police Commissioner."

The Sullivan law also created something of a stir at Police Headquarters. Deputy Commissioner James J. Dillon prepared for a rush of applications for the privilege of carrying arms, but while very few applications were received, he was flooded with inquiries regarding the intent of the law.

It was said there yesterday that while there would undoubtedly be a rush for permits, none except one who shows good cause for having a gun would be granted a permit. Bank messengers, who are required to carry large amounts of money, may have permits, and pawnbrokers will be allowed to keep a revolver in their place of business, but will not be allowed to carry it. Permits will also be given to persons desiring to use firearms in theatrical performances, and to reputable persons who wish to keep a revolver for home protection.

One pawnbroker was informed that he would be liable to arrest if he allowed any one to redeem a weapon he had pawned with him.

Commissioner Waldo received a letter from a man who said he had a small antique revolver which had never been

COURT AIDS HOUNDED MAN.

Sends to Jail Man Who Repeatedly Exposed Him as Once a Thief.

Because a former employe had stolen meat from him four years ago, William F. Delmage, who keeps a butcher shop at 885 Third Avenue, has had Jacob F. Heitz discharged from two positions. As a result Heitz got a warrant for Delmage's arrest and appeared before Magistrate Butts in the Morrisania Court yesterday morning.

Four years ago Heitz stole thirty-four pounds of meat, worth $5.50, from Delmage. He pleaded guilty and sentence was suspended in Special Sessions. Delmage told his next employer, William Hyman, 1,023 Southern Boulevard, who employed Heitz at $20 a week, of this theft, and he was dicharged. He also secured his discharge from the shop of Henry Krauss, 2,327 Third Avenue.

"Did you investigate this man's life to see how he was living?" asked Magistrate Butts of Delmage, who said he had not. The Magistrate then said:

"This case is an episode in real life fit for a drama. Is there any such thing as penance? Is there any such thing as mercy? Is there any place in the world for such a man? Must he always go through life with the stamp of a criminal on his brow?

"This man, with a wife and four children, had been trying to lead an honorable life, and has been hounded out of two positions. You gave him no chance. You followed him up and drove him into the street."

The Magistrate then declared Delmage guilty of disorderly conduct in exposing Heitz to an act tending to a breach of the peace. A bondsman was present, but the Magistrate said he would have to see a deed for property before he would accept a bond. The man had none with him, and Delmage was sent to jail meantime.

WORLD TRAVELS OF A HAT.

Always Just Behind Mrs. Ellsworth, but Out of Style When She Got It.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 1.—Trailed to various parts of the world by a $300 Paris hat, which she purchased in Europe nearly a year ago, Mrs. William Dean Ellsworth of Newport and New York gave away the elaborate headpiece, which she once thought in fashion, but now regards as out of style, in her apartments at the Van Nuys to-day.

Mrs. Ellsworth was with friends in Paris last Winter when she ordered the hat. Before it could be delivered she was called to Moscow by the illness of a friend. At Moscow she ordered the hat sent to her, but before it reached there she had departed for Berlin. The hat followed, but Mrs. Ellsworth had already gone to London. In obeyance to instructions it was expressed to London, but Mrs. Ellsworth was sailing for New York when it was delivered to her London hotel.

Impatient that she might have the opportunity of displaying the hat to friends at Newport, Mrs. Ellsworth upon her arrival here, cabled that her hat be sent to her New York hotel. But in the round of pleasure that followed Mrs. Ellsworth forgot all about her hat and she left New York without giving instructions to have it forwarded to Newport. Not until she was crossing the continent did she telegraph her New York hotel to sent it on.

The hat arrived in Chicago when she was on her way to New Orleans. It reached New Orleans when she had left there for the Great Lake resorts. When the hat was sent to the Great Lakes Mrs. Ellsworth was in Canada, and when the hat reached Canada she was traveling toward the Pacific Coast. Upon her arrival in Los Angeles Mrs. Ellsworth wired to Winnipeg that her hat be dispatched immediately to Los Angeles. It arrived here, but too late for Mrs. Ellsworth to wear. She gave it to a maid to-day.

CULTURED WOMAN PENNILESS

Mrs. Julia White Tells Strange Story of Wandering from New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 1.—Mrs. Julia White, 55, who says she comes from a distinguished family which resided at Savannah, Ga., and that she came to Cincinnati by mistake and was forced to work in this city to get money to live on, was taken in charge by the Associated Charities to-day and is in the Betts Street Hospital.

Mrs. White says she is the heir to an estate of $9,000,000 in England and that she will soon return to New York to see attorneys regarding her suit for this amount.

According to her statements, her father told her he was a descendant of the family of Hazard, in England, and the last of that family had recently died, leaving the estate without a possessor. Shortly after this she went to New York to see her cousin. To this man she spoke of her poor financial condition and asked for help. He said that he would give her $1,000 a year if she would give him a deed for $25,000 of the fortune. The papers were filled out and signed.

Several months ago she started for a town in New Jersey to see a relative. Her cousin went to put her on the train. Instead of getting her on the right one, he put her on one for Cincinnati, she says. When she reached here she was penniless and went to work in a tailoring establishment. She worked there for a while and then fell sick.

To-day she was found in her room at 410 Elizabeth Street by a charity worker. She is a woman of culture and refinement. The police will send her to New York when she is discharged from the hospital.

INDICT 8 IN LYNCHING CASE.

204 Witnesses Yet to Testify to Burning of Negro in Coatesville.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTCHESTER, Penn., Sept. 1.—The Grand Jury completed its labors for this week by finding true bills, this afternoon, against George W. Stahl, Joseph Schofield, Chester Bostic, William Gilbert, Joseph Schwartz, Oscar Lamping, A. L. Berry, and Norman Price, who are charged with murder, riot, and inciting to riot, in connection with the lynching on the night of Aug. 13 of Zack Walker, the negro who had killed Edward Rice, a special policeman.

The Grand Jury will return here on Monday and reopen the investigation. Subpoenaes were issued to-day for 204 witnesses who will be called next week. District Attorney Robert Gawthorpe is keeping the personnel of the list secret. He says he is taking no chances of any of those wanted moving beyond his jurisdiction to avoid service. He admits that many men prominent in Coatesville are in the list.

It is said that several women will be among the witnesses, some of them having been in the mob at the time of the lynching.

MISS DE WITT HISSED AT PASTOR SNYDER

Also Laughed at His Wife, He Testifies, in Easton, Penn., Anonymous Letter Case.

SUSPECTED OTHER WOMEN

Two Quit Speaking to Him After He Had Accused Them—Postal Inspector Tells of Handwriting.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Sept. 1.—The people who thronged the office of United States Commissioner N. R. Turner to-day to hear the testimony in the preliminary hearing of the case in which Miss Harriet De Witt is charged with having sent through the mails letters of a scurrilous nature to a score or more of persons, including four or five clergymen, were sorely disappointed. They had expected to hear some of the letters read.

All that was given out consisted of a few sentences from one of the letters received by the Rev. Elmer E. Snyder of Christ Lutheran Church, read by Assistant United States Attorney John C. Swartley of Doylestown, who conducted the prosecution. These extracts were read to satisfy Commissioner Turner that the letters were of a nature that constituted a violation of that section of the Penal Code that imposes a heavy fine and imprisonment for sending through the United States mails papers or writings of an objectionable nature. The sentences read were an attack on the wife of the Rev. Mr. Snyder.

It was stated by Postal Inspector Schoeneberger, who worked up the case and who made the complaint that resulted in Miss De Witt's arrest, that about all the letters the Government has obtained in this case—and there are over 100 of them—contain allegations that should not and will not be given out unless they are made public by the United States District Court, to which tribunal the defendant has been held in bail for trial.

At the hearing, which lasted until late in the afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Snyder, who received the greater number of the anonymous letters, was the first witness. He told of having come to Easton ten years ago to accept the pastorate of Christ Lutheran Church, of which he is still the pastor. He was then unmarried. He was married a year ago last June to Miss Olive Roseberry. He denied having been engaged at any time to marry any other young woman.

The clergyman identified one of the anonymous letters, received by him on June 24, 1911. It was told by the witness that Miss De Witt lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George De Witt, nearly opposite the parsonage. The first nine years of his pastorate the parsonage was occupied by the parents of Miss Florence Willauer, and the young woman lived with them. Although he had taken Miss Willauer to two or three college plays and had frequently met her at church affairs, he had never paid any special attention to her. Asked if the young woman had ever paid any special attention to him, the clergyman replied that he was not prepared to answer that question. He first denied that he had ever told any person that Miss Willauer had paid any special attention to him, and then demanded the name of the person whom the defendant's counsel might have in mind when asking the question.

"I know what you are driving at," he remarked, and there was no more interrogating on that subject.

The Rev. Snyder explained that he had become acquainted with Miss De Witt a few months after he came to Easton. He was introduced to her by Mrs. A. K. Michler, a neighbor of the De Witt family and a member of the Christ Church congregation. It was only a speaking acquaintance.

Telling about the anonymous letters the clergyman said that he had received the first one the latter part of the first year he was in this city. Since that time he had received many of them. They arrived three and four a month. The witness identified a number of letters handed him. He said he had never been in Miss De Witt's home. They spoke when they met on the street. This ceased five years ago, he said, since, when he passed Miss De Witt on the street, she would "throw back her head" and ignore him. Miss De Witt had laughed at the witness's wife, and on one occasion, when Mr. and Mrs. Snyder were passing the defendant and her mother and were riding in the clergyman's automobile, Miss De Witt, he said, called to them, "Do you see it all?"

This evidence was brought out to show the feeling that existed in the mind of Miss De Witt toward the preacher and his wife.

"She hissed at me once from an upstairs window," the clergyman declared.

All the anonymous letters received by the witness were kept and turned over at various times to the Postmaster. The Rev. Mr. Snyder said he was satisfied from the contents of the letters that they were written by some resident of the locality where the parsonage is located. He had at first suspected various persons, he testified, and had questioned one woman, but he learned that she could not write and that, of course, convinced him that she was not guilty. The witness had also suspected this woman's daughter, but she, too, had denied knowing anything about the letters. After that the Rev. Mr. Snyder and both women were not on speaking terms.

Ex-Judge Kirkpatrick, Miss De Witt's counsel, asked the clergyman if he had had trouble with any other members of his flock. The witness replied that in his congregation as in all others there were, no doubt, people who had their grievances. He admitted that another young woman had at one time been suspected of having written the letters. The witness had not thought so, but one of the Inspectors at work on the case two or three years ago had entertained the suspicion because of the similarity in handwriting of this young woman, and the writer of the anonymous letters.

Mrs. David White, who lives near Miss De Witt's home, testified that she had received the letter dated July 25, 1911. She tore open the envelope, glanced at the top of the letter, saw that it mentioned the Rev. Mr. Snyder's name, and then handed it back to the letter carrier. He took it to the Post Office. She received other letters from the same source but all were destroyed, she said.

The next witness was Valentine Shoeneberger, the Inspector who made the arrest. He told of having requested Miss De Witt to call at the Post Office for an interview, and of her coming there in company with Marshal Miller, whom she represented to be her counsel. In the presence of Mr. Miller and without any objection on the latter's part the witness had written on a piece of paper, and had then printed sentences the witness read from one of the anonymous letters. Miss De Witt had also brought to the Post Office several letters she had received through the mails that had been written by the same party the Inspector was trying to locate.

The writing and printing she did there are said to be the strongest evidence against Miss De Witt.

JAS. R. KEENE FACES SERIOUS OPERATION

Financier's Doctors Expected to Decide in 48 Hours Whether He Must Undergo It.

KEENE STRONGLY OPPOSED

Says Physicians Must Show Him Exactly What Is Matter—In London Nursing Home.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—James R. Keene, who a few days ago had a relapse and is now staying at a nursing home in Marylebone, may have to undergo an operation shortly, although so far the financier's doctors are undecided about it. Mr. Keene himself is flatly against such a recourse unless the physicians can convince him that it is absolutely necessary.

There is no doubt that he is in a precarious state of health, but the indomitable will which has stood him in such good stead in the past continues to assert itself, and, while the doctors urge him to take to his bed, Mr. Keene insists on getting about. Every day this week he has been out driving, and to-day he even insisted on going down to the city to attend to some business affairs.

The financier's trouble is an intestinal one, and a number of X-ray pictures have been taken of the affected part this week. The doctors in charge are expected to decide within forty-eight hours the exact nature of the malady and whether the operation is necessary. Mr. Keene, it is said, has told them he will not stand for an operation unless the medical men can show him what is the matter and what they are going to take away.

Among Mr. Keene's friends here it is feared that the operation may be a very serious matter in view of the patient's weakened condition. For some weeks past he has had a longing to get back to New York. In fact, his name appeared on transatlantic sailing lists week after week, only to be canceled.

After the Carlton fire and until he moved to the nursing home Mr. Keene had been staying at the Berkeley Hotel. He spent most of his time there by himself, and seemed very lonely, but would brighten up when friends dropped in now and again and chatted over old times with him. His mind is as clear as ever, but he realizes that he is a very sick man.

AGE AND YOUTH TO WED.

Double Marriage in Washington To-day Will Show Extremes of Romance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Age and youth will join to-morrow to furnish the four principals for a unique double wedding to be performed at St. Margaret's Church. Judge Richard Stanley Tuthill, 79 years old, is the elderly bridegroom, and he will marry Miss Susan Payne Trimble, who confesses to 60 years. The younger bridegroom will be Pomeroy H. Hartman, who is said to be barely grown, and he will marry Miss Susan Trimble's niece, Miss Ella Dunlap Trimble, somewhat his senior. Mr. Hartman is a missionary to the Chickasaw Indians.

Judge Tuthill was formerly Commander of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, and has been on the bench of the Cook County, Illinois, Circuit Court since 1887. Miss Ella Trimble came to Washington on a visit to her aunt, Miss Susan Trimble, about two months ago.

Judge Tuthill is known throughout the country as the organizer of the First Juvenile Court—in his home city in 1899. The jurist conducted the sessions for six years while on the bench of the Cook County Circuit. He has been married twice before.

HELD UP ON LONELY ROAD.

Partners Fight Six Highwaymen, Who Finally Get Away.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 1.—Six men held up and robbed Max Kaplan and Joseph Hermann of this city on a lonely part of a road near the country estate of Blair Williams, a New Yorker, who lives between here and the village of Middlebury, five miles away, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Kaplan and Hermann are partners in the wholesale meat business. They were driving and had passed the men on the road when they discovered that their buggy was on fire. The blaze had been started by one of the six men, and when the partners jumped out all six set upon them. Kaplan was relieved of $49. Kaplan and Hermann are young men and so were the hold-up men, and a stiff fight followed. Two of the party of six ran toward a train that was approaching and Kaplan and Hermann followed. All four boarded the train at Voorhes Station, although the fugitives tried to prevent their pursuers from getting on by kicking them as the train pulled out.

When the train started the passengers were in an uproar. The conductor was appealed to by Hermann to help him arrest the two men, but it is said he declined. At Clyde Kaplan and Hermann got off to try to get assistance. Then after the train had gone a short distance further the fugitives got off and at a late hour to-night were still at large.

CROWD GOADS AIRMAN TO FLIGHT AND DEATH

J. J. Frisbie Goes Up in Crippled Machine Because Kansas Spectators Call Him a Faker.

CRUSHED BY HIS ENGINE

Wife Denounces People Who Hooted Him—G. G. Hubbard Badly Hurt by a Fall at Norwich.

NORTON, Kan., Sept. 1.—J. J. Frisbie was killed to-day by a fall in a Curtiss biplane at the Norton County Fair. He met with an accident yesterday, and went into the air again to-day only when driven to it by the taunts and jeers of the crowd. The engine of his machine fell upon him, crushing his left side and chest. He lived for about an hour.

Frisbie had been giving exhibitions at Elmwood Park for several days. Yesterday his machine acted badly and he had a fall of about forty feet, but beyond bruises and a shaking up was not hurt. He was skeptical about the ability of his machine to stand another flight to-day and announced he would not go up. When this statement was communicated to the crowd there was an angry demonstration. The spectators hooted and shouted "faker" and refused to listen to explanations.

Mr. Frisbie announced that rather than have the big crowd go away with the impression that he was not willing to do his best, he would attempt a flight. He ascended from the track without difficulty and went up well about 100 feet. When he attempted to make a turn the airship tipped and he lost control.

As he came down the spectators could see him trying to right the machine, but as it approached the ground one of the wings hit a barn and it glanced off and struck the earth with Frisbie underneath. Frisbie's wife, son, and little girl were witnesses of the accident, and Mrs. Frisbie was overcome when she saw him fall. To-night she bitterly denounced the action of the spectators in forcing him to make the flight with a disabled machine.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—John J. Frisbie, who was killed by a fall at Norton, Kan., to-day, was one of the most reliable aviators at the recent aviation meet here. Although he made no efforts at spectacular flying, his biplane was in the air every day, and his performances made him popular with the spectators. He won the bomb-throwing contest, taking a $1,000 prize, and the quick-starting contest, making his prize money for the meet $1,500.

He was an Irishman, 42 years old, and had spent twenty-six years as a balloonist and a parachute jumper in Europe. Although he flew a Curtiss machine, he was allied with and flew under the direction of Moisant flyers.

NORWICH, N. Y., Sept. 1.—G. G. Hubbard was flying in a biplane here this afternoon when his machine swerved in a strong cross-current and turned a complete somersault. Hubbard was thrown fifty feet clear of the machine, and has a serious wound and concusion of the brain. His physician, however, believes he will recover. The machine was demolished.

WATERVILLE, Me., Sept. 1.—George Schmitt, the Vermont aviator, who has been giving exhibitions at the Central Maine Fair here during the week, fell fifty feet late this afternoon, but escaped serious injury. He struck an "air pocket," causing his machine to drop suddenly, the rear catching in some high electric wires. Schmitt was badly bruised.

G. G. Hubbard Loses Seat When Thirty-five Feet from the Earth.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 1.—G. G. Hubbard of New York, who has been flying a Curtiss biplane at the Chenango County Fair in Norwich, lost his seat while trying to make a landing this afternoon and fell to earth from a thirty-five-foot elevation. The plane soared on for a short distance and then plunged. It was badly damaged.

Hubbard was looking for a landing when the spectators saw him suddenly pitch out of the machine. He was carried to the Eagle Hotel, where physicians said he would recover. Hubbard's assistant explained that he lost his seat when his feet slipped off the rod against which he braced himself when flying.

FALLS WITH AIRSHIP.

Aviator Weeks Badly Cut About the Head When Machine Is Wrecked.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 1.—James Lester Weeks of Mineola, who has been interested in aviation for some time, and who has flown several times, sustained severe injuries shortly after 6 o'clock this evening at the Nassau Boulevard Aviation Field, when he attempted to fly the Dietz biplane. He announced that he would take the famous old machine higher than it had ever been before, and was attempting to make good his assertion when the motor began to skip, and shortly went dead on a right turn at an altitude of 150 feet.

Weeks had banked for the turn at a dangerous angle, and the machine dropped straight into a gully, once more a wreck. The motor fell out of the engine bed, just grazing Weeks's head. When picked up he was lying in a pool of blood, having sustained a badly cut nose, severe contusions about the head, and a deep gash over the right eye. He was taken to the Nassau Hospital.

SOPWITH WINS $1,500 PRIZE.

Sets New Figures for the Flight to Boston Light.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Thomas Sopwith, in a Blériot monoplane to-day, won the $1,500 prize for the thirty-three mile flight down the harbor to Boston Light from the Squantum Field. Sopwith also set new figures for the event, reducing the 34 minutes 1 1-5 seconds, made in a Blériot by Claude Grahame-White last year, to 31 minutes 33 seconds. Grahame-White was conceded to be the winner with his 70 horse power Nieuport monoplane, but he was disqualified for not circling the field twice before heading for the light. He nevertheless went over the course in fast time.

Earle L. Ovington, who came in second, in 35 minutes 32 seconds, in a Blériot, was the only other man to finish of the five who started. He took second prize of $750.

Fourny Flies 447.1 Miles.

COLLISION OFF THE BATTERY

Pennsylvania Railroad Tug Rams an Oyster Sloop.

Shortly before 10 o'clock last night the tug Media, owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and in charge of Capt. Hogan, collided with the auxiliary oyster sloop Georgiana while about 300 feet off the Battery baths. The sloop suffered the greatest damage, as its bowsprit was carried away and a good-sized hole was stove in the bow.

After the boats were cleared the tug took the sloop in tow and it was tied up at the foot of Gansevoort Street, where it was bound when the tug struck it.

The police of Harbor B say that the accident was probably due to the dimness of the lights on the sloop. No one was injured on either craft.

SWALLOWS IN CITY'S HEART.

Thousands of Them Inhabit a Convent Chimney in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—One of the sights of Washington this Summer has been a flock of thousands of chimney swallows that gather every afternoon in the air above the Convent of the Visitation and after circling closer and closer disappear into the tallest of the chimneys on the southern wing of the building. Every afternoon a little crowd collects at the corner of Connecticut Avenue and L Street, in the middle of the city, and watched over by a bicycle policeman, watch the birds.

Another chimney within a few feet of the one chosen by the swallows, but slightly lower on the roof, has been entirely ignored.

HORSES IN NAIL-STUDDED CAR

Many Killed and Maimed on a Train of the Central Georgia Line.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 1.—For transporting horses and mules for ninety hours in a car studded, sides and bottom, with heavy nails, which maimed or killed all the animals, the Central of Georgia Railway has been made defendant in a suit for damages filed to-day by G. W. Montgomery.

The petition recites that on March 4 Turner Brothers of Atlanta delivered to the railroad fifteen horses and thirteen mules for delivery in Savannah. The ordinary period for the trip would be about thirty-six hours, but the consignment on this occasion was not delivered until ninety hours later, and then in such condition that the property was practically valueless. The animals had been transferred from their original car, and were in another which had nails sticking out all around.

Charge of Gambling at Hewlett Casino Goes to Grand Jury.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 1.—The case against Cornelius Fellowes, Jr., who was arrested Aug. 12 as the proprietor of the Casino gambling house at Hewlett, L. I., came up before Judge C. F. Gittens this afternoon. Mr. Fellowes said he was President of the Hygienic Ice Company and gave his address as 555 West Fifty-sixth Street, New York City.

Rudolph Ganter testified that he accompanied Harold Williams, who was employed by ex-Congressman William Willits to get evidence against the place, to the Casino, and that he had purchased chips to play roulette and lost $10.

Counsel for Mr. Fellowes asked that the complaint be dismissed, as the testimony did not connect Fellowes as having any guilty knowledge of gambling. This was denied and Mr. Fellowes was held for the action of the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail.

HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH.

Sea Beach Car Passengers Cut by Broken Glass—One Man's Leg Broken.

A trolley car of the Sea Beach line, a connecting road between the New Utrecht Avenue elevated and the terminus of the Fifth Avenue elevated at Third Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, crashed head-on at 6 o'clock last evening into an electric engine of the Long Island Railroad Company, drawing a string of freight cars through the cut near Fourth Avenue, in which both the railroad and the trolley line run cars. Windows in the trolley were shattered, and passengers were tossed from their seats.

Motorman Dennis Kean was badly cut and bruised. Among the passengers Mrs. Anna McCormick of 72 Akron Avenue, Jamaica, L. I., was cut and bruised; Fred Tortella of 1,334 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, received a bad cut on the right knee and many bruises; William Waldron of 680 President Street had his right leg broken, and Mrs. Mary A. Ward of 69 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, was cut and bruised.

Dr. Bennett was called from the Norwegian Hospital, and he climbed down the bank into the cut to attend the injured. All were able to go home except Waldron.

DR. GLADDEN QUITS CHURCH.

Coiner of "Tainted Money" Fails to Draw People to Services.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 1.—The Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden to-day resigned the pastorate of the First Congregational Church in Columbus because members of the congregation will not attend services. Dr. Gladden is the one who led the opposition to proposed gifts by John D. Rockefeller to the churches of this country a few years ago, and coined the phrase "tainted money."

Dr. Gladden has been the pastor of the local church since 1882. He says in a statement issued to-day that he doesn't like the way the modern man and woman devote their Sundays to recreation.

"I do not attribute the absence of church members in many cases to disaffection; for some reason they have formed the habit of neglect," he says. "All this means that the interests of recreation have taken precedence in the minds of many to the interests of the higher life. The fact that this is taking place everywhere alarms me."

His place as pastor will be taken by his assistant, the Rev. Carl L. Patton.

CONGRESSMAN WHIPS FOUR CLERKS IN SHOP

Carter of Oklahoma, Resenting Advances to Daughter, Uses His Fists and Cane.

NO COMPLAINT BY VICTIMS

Washington Police Hear the Story and Take No Action—Carter's Blood is Almost Half Indian.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Representative Charles D. Carter of Oklahoma created a lot of confusion in the heart of the smart shopping centre here to-day by whipping four clerks in a shop.

He asserted that one of the clerks insulted his eighteen-year-old daughter, Miss Italy Carter, whom he accompanied on a shopping expedition.

Mr. Carter assailed the first man, Joseph Josephson, with his fists, and when three companions came up, he brought his walking stick into play and wielded it vigorously until he was master of the field.

Having dealt with the clerks, Mr. Carter, who is seven-sixteenths Indian, sent his daughter home in an automobile and went to the nearest police station, where he explained the incident which led to the trouble. He was not detained, and considers the incident closed unless the clerks take some action. They had not done so to-night.

According to Mr. Carter, his daughter described to Josephson a certain kind of coat which she wished to purchase. He declares the clerk thought she was unattended an sought to engage her in conversation.

"Continuing his advances, which were followed by repulses," said Mr. Carter, "the young man became insulting. When I politely asked the cause of the trouble he became infuriated and said uncomplimentary things about my daughter. I told her to accompany me from the store, and as we reached the door he called me several names. I returned and prepared to strike him when he started toward me. I then gave him as good a licking as my long experience on the plains as a boxer would permit. I then started to leave, when three of his associates took up the fight. I was plainly outnumbered, but would not run. I struck right and left with my cane, and finally routed the entire bunch."

Miss Carter stood in tears on the sidewalk outside the store until her father reached her side and sent her home.

MORE FRENCH FOOD RIOTS.

Cabinet Plans to Lower Prices by Suspending Certain Taxes.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Premier Caillaux today discussed with the Minister of Commerce, M. Couyba, and the Minister of Agriculture, M. Pams, measures which are to make lower prices of food possible. Among the measures under consideration are the importation of meat and livestock and the suspension of various taxes. Nothing, however, will be done until a fuller inquiry has been made into the grievances, which in many cases are capable of local correction.

Owing to the heavy municipal taxes butter of Lille, one of the centres of disorder, is 44 cents a pound, while at Rennes, in the Department of Ille-et-Vilaine, it is 27 cents a pound. The prices of all eatables generally are in the same proportion, the high cost being largely due to the octroi taxes.

Processions, town meetings, the sacking of shops, and detached incidents of violence in numerous places in the Northern Departments continue.

SAINT-QUENTIN, France, Sept. 1.—Rioting which broke out here yesterday evening over the high price of food lasted all night. A regiment of infantry and a squadron of cavalry called out to quell the disturbance were unable to cope with the mob, which plundered shops in widely separated streets at the same time.

The squadron of cavalry frequently charged into the crowds, and several of the cavalrymen were pulled from their horses and beaten. Twenty of the rioters were taken to the hospital, severely injured.

LENS, France, Sept. 1.—Trade is completely at a standstill here to-day owing to the fear of expected food riots. The shutters have been put up on all the shop windows.

TO BURN JEWS' HOUSES.

Said to be Hotbeds of Cholera, Spreading in Constantinople.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—A special dispatch received here to-day from Constantinople says that the Prefect of Police has notified the Chief Rabbi of the Government's decision to burn down all the old houses belonging to Jews in the Houkeny quarter, as the buildings are regarded to be hotbeds of cholera.

Thousands of dwellers in the ghettos will thereby be made homeless, and the leaders of the Jewish community are taking steps to provide for them.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 1.—The cholera epidemic is getting a firmer hold in Turkey. Partial returns made by the health authorities show that on Aug. 31 there were 70 cholera cases and 25 deaths from the disease in Constantinople. In addition to these totals there was a heavy mortality in the Turkish garrison and at the Albanian camps on the outskirts of Beikos.

At Uskup, in the vilayet of Kossovo there is an average of 50 cases daily, while at Monastir, in Macedonia, the disease is equally virulent.

NEW MARCONI EXPERIMENTS.

Inventor at St. John's, N. F., Said to be Planning New Wireless Station.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 1.—A series of important experiments was started here to-day by William Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, on the very spot where he made his first experiments ten years ago.

It is believed that arrangements will be made during his stay for the erection of a new and more powerful station at the entrance of the harbor. Mr. Marconi will be here for a week and will then sail for England.

SHOPMEN'S DEMANDS REJECTED BY ROADS

Kruttschnitt Flatly Refuses to Recognize the Federation or Meet Joint Committee.

ILLINOIS SHOPMEN RECEDE

Withdraw Request for Recognition and Want Another Talk—Give 30 Days' Notice Regarding Contracts.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Neither Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President and Director of Maintenance and Operation of the Harriman system, and department heads of the Southern Pacific, nor representatives of five international unions of shop employes of the system would recede to-day from the position already taken, and the much-discussed conference between the employes and officials availed nothing. The railroad officials refused absolutely to recognize the federation of shop employes, and the union chiefs insisted upon recognition.

Vice President Kruttschnitt received the representatives of the five unions representing the shop employes in the board room of the Flood Building at 11 o'clock this morning, and from then until 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon the matter of recognition, with a few minor matters, was discussed. Each side remained firm and the disagreement between the company and the men is no nearer a settlement than before the conference.

Julius Kruttschnitt has announced that he will return to Chicago to-morrow. The union representatives will remain in San Francisco several days.

The union representatives declare they are working to avert a strike. They declare they do not wish to force a strike, yet insist upon the recognition of the Shop Crafts Federation, which the railroad officials flatly refuse to grant.

Already the preparation for the struggle has been begun by the men. They do not say that it is preparation for a strike. They say it is preparation for anything that may turn up.

After the conference with the railway officials the union leaders met in secret conference, which lasted until 7:30. Then a recess was taken for an hour, and at 8:30 the conference was resumed.

President Kline of the Blacksmiths Union said after the first session: "We are fighting to avoid a strike, and we might succeed if the railway officials would meet us half way. Our decision will be announced soon."

If no common ground can be reached upon which the officials of the railroad and the union heads can agree, it will be a week or more before the strike is ordered, if that is deemed necessary by the union men, and cooler heads among the representatives are attempting by every means possible to avert such action.

To order a strike the union heads would have to call into consultation a large number of advisory officials. The union representatives declared to-night that some plan whereby concessions might be made by both sides is being sought.

To-day's conference between the railroad men and the unions was attended by Julius Kruttschnitt, E. E. Calvin, Vice President and General Manager of the Coast lines of the Southern Pacific; W. R. Scott, Assistant General Manager; H. J. Small, General Superintendent of Motive Power; R. J. Clancy, Assistant to the General Manager, and F. G. Athearn, Manager of Bureau of Economics.

The unions were represented by J. W. Kline, International President of the Blacksmiths' Union; Martin F. Ryan, General President of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; J. A. Franklin, International President of the Boilermakers; J. D. Crane, representative of the Sheet Metal Workers' International Union, and J. D. Buckalew, Vice President of the International Association of Machinists.

After the conference with the leaders of the shopmen's unions Mr. Kruttschnitt issued a brief statement, in which he says:

"In the conference the question of the benefits to accure to both the company and the men from a federation was fully presented by the international officers, and the officers of the railroad company explained at length the embarrassment that the company would experience in performing its public functions if hampered by a committee vested with sufficent power to control or partially control its operations."

ILLINOIS SHOPMEN RECEDE.

Waive Demand for Recognition of Federation—Want Another Talk.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 1.—Labor leaders on the Illinois Central to-day averted the necessity of calling a strike, by making a technical compliance with the demand of President C. H. Markham, that they serve a formal thirty-day notice of their desire to have existing contracts abrogated.

At the same time the international officers of the nine shop crafts sent a formal letter to President Markham asking that he again hold a conference with them. They asked an answer by Tuesday, which is the first work day available. This request was based on the statement that the international labor leaders had new arguments to urge as reasons for the road recognizing the shop federation.

It is expected that President Markham will grant another conference and that the negotiations will be resumed. It is practically certain that if a strike is called on the Illinois Central the men will not go out before the last day of this month.

The representatives of the nine shop crafts agreed yesterday that so far as they are concerned any action taken relative to the situation on the Illinois Central will be independent of any action of the labor leaders in the other controversies involving the Harriman lines.

Following two conferences, one between the international officers in Chicago and the other among the twenty-seven delegates, the delegates went to their homes to-night. Most of them returned to Paducah, Ky., at their own expense as the railroad has declined to recognize them even to the extent of furnishing the usual transportation facilities accorded railroad men. President J. F. McCreery and Secretary Bowen will remain to await the result of the request for a conference Tuesday.

While the Illinois Central labor leaders were in conference yesterday, the Russell Jones strikebreakers' headquarters sent out the first batch of recruits for work on the Harriman lines. One hundred men are said to have taken the train to Houston, Texas, where large shops of the Southern Pacific are located. At least 200 recruits signed the list to-day.

Ten letters in all were sent to President Markham of the Illinois Central to-day. The nine international officers held a conference this morning at the offices of the Blacksmiths and Helpers' organization in the Monon Building and decided upon the wording of the letter.

"We have asked the Illinois Central," said W. J. Kramer of the blacksmiths' organization, "to grant us the favor of another conference. We base our request upon the fact that we have some new arguments to present which we believe will convince the road's officers that it is to the interest of all concerned to deal with the shop faction in labor matters."

In the afternoon the twenty-seven delegates of the nine shop crafts on the Illinois Central met in the Hotel Mayer and canvassed the situation again thoroughly. Speakers at the meeting advised the delegates to avert a strike if possible and make minor concessions in the hope that ultimate recognition of the federation might be secured. The delegates finally decided upon the following course of action and carried it out:

For the time being they waived the demand for recognition of the shop federation and sent a letter from each individual craft to the road's officers.

In these letters they insisted that they had lived up to the letter and spirit of their contracts with the road and had served formal notice of dissatisfaction with past contracts when they failed to renew them as they expired and when they gave thirty days' notice through the federation officers that they desired a joint shop system contract in the future. They pointed out that this notice was served on June 10 and that they had waited more than thirty days before coming to Chicago to seek readjustment of the wage scale and working conditions. But in view of the fact that the Illinois Central officers were not willing to accept the notice from the shop craft federation officers as proper, the men agreed to make a technical concession and again serve notice as individual crafts that they were dissatisfied with present contracts and had turned their affairs over to the officers of the federation for adjudication.

When each of the delegates had agreed to send individual craft letters to the road the three representatives of each craft held meetings and drew them up. All the letters were passed upon by Secretary Bowen and President McCreery before they were finally mailed.

A new element was injected into the situation by a telegram sent to the labor leaders by the Cotton Exchange of New Orleans. The members of the Exchange had become alarmed at the rumors of a strike and sent both letters and telegrams pleading with the men to avoid a strike if possible.

BLIND MUSICIANS RIOTOUS.

Quarrel Started Between Themselves Over Division of Easy Spoils.

Three blind musicians created such a disturbance at the Astoria entrance to the Ninety-second Street Ferry in the rush hours, about 7 o'clock yesterday morning, that the street became blockaded and the two policemen on post were unable to handle the crowd. Reserves were hurried out in the patrol wagon from the Grand Avenue Station House, and the blind men were arrested. They were Frank Buck of 60 Lawrence Street, Astoria; James Hayes of 176 Stagg Street, and Chris Snyder of 39 Powers Street, Brooklyn.

Too much prosperity was the cause of their downfall, according to the story they told when arraigned before Magistrate Smith, in the Long Island City Court. Working industriously in the rain the night before, they accumulated $18, and were carefully piloted by Thomas McKenna into O'Connor's saloon, in Fulton Avenue and Munson Street, about a block above the ferry, where they proposed making a division, but instead spent the night celebrating their good luck, and on taking an account of stock yesterday morning found their finances had decreased to $8.

A dispute, in which McKenna joined, arose over the division of the $8, when they were all hustled out on the street. They resumed the discussion in the street, falling over each other, and after one of the two policemen on the post at that place had been whacked over the head with a cane by one of them a call was sent for the reserves.

Magistrate Smith fined them $10 each, which they were unable to pay, and they were sent to the Queens County Jail, while McKenna, who was also arrested, paid a fine of $2 and was released.

FELL FROM HOIST TO DEATH.

One Man Killed and Three Injured in Unfinished Building.

An accident to a hod hoist at noon yesterday in the new Washington Irving High School building, which is in course of construction in Irving Place, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets, caused the death of one man and severely injured three others. The dead man was John Carroll, a city water Inspector, who lived at 55 East 131st Street. He was visiting the building with his friend, Fred Auspland, the Inspector for the school board, and it is not known that he had any official business there.

Carroll and Auspland, who also lives at 55 East 131st Street, accompanied by two Italian workmen, Louis Marmo and Giovanni Gentil, started down to the first floor on the hod hoist. This is worked in what will later be the elevator shaft. It is a contrivance raised and lowered by a single cable and sliding in wooden grooves. It is supposed that the car by some means slipped out of these grooves and that this caused it to tip, throwing Carroll into the basement and Auspland to the second floor.

The two Italians managed to cling to the hoist, but they were badly bruised. Auspland's leg was fractured. Other workmen going to their lunch went to the rescue of the inspectors, but Carroll was already dead. Auspland and the two Italians were taken to Bellevue Hospital.

The building, which is to be eight stories in height, is being constructed by John T Brady of Forty-first Street and Madison Avenue. Six stories have been completed.

WRIT FOR JOSEPHINE JOY.

Goods Not Paid for Replevined from Mrs. Jenkins's Correspondent.

Several hundred dollars worth of furniture, cut glass, and other articles bought from a New York department store by Mrs. Almer V. Sturdevant, known on the stage as Josephine Joy, were seized yesterday on a writ of replevin at the home of her sister-in-law at 17 Waverley Place, Passaic Park, N. J. The writ was issued on representations that the goods had not been paid for.

Mrs. Sturdevant left her sister-in-law's home soon after the publication of letters she had written to Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, the Government's chief witness in the smuggling case involving Nathan Allen, the wealthy Kenosha leather man, and John R. Collins, President of the Southern Coal Company, and the publication in THE NEW YORK TIMES of her own admissions as to obtaining money from flirtatious old men of means. Her relatives said yesterday that she had not since returned.

The squad numbers 15 men during the week, except on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, when it is increased to 75. It is in command of Lieut. Becker.

LOW COTTON REPORT SCORNED ON 'CHANGE

Government Estimate of Crop Under 13,000,000 Bales Scarcely Affects Trading.

FEAR PLANTERS DECEIVE

Real Figures May Be Withheld in Movement for 13-Cent Cotton—New Orleans Also Skeptical.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—A total production of 12,918,200 bales of cotton as the final yield this year is indicated by the Department of Agriculture's official report on the condition of the growing crop on Aug. 25, which the crop reporting board, from reports from its correspondents and agents throughout the cotton belt, estimated to-day at 73.2 per cent. of normal.

This estimate, based on the ratio of the average yield for the past ten years to the average condition of the crop on Aug. 25 for the last ten years, would mean a final yield of 181.65 pounds per acre on the planted area of, approximately, 34,000,000 acres, allowing for an abandoned acreage of 1,000,000, and provided the crop does not decline or improve from the date the condition was estimated to time of picking.

These estimates of production, while unofficial, were reckoned by the official method adopted by the Department of Agriculture and used by the crop reporting board in its monthly estimates of the final yield of the important cereal crops of the country.

Unofficial advices from the cotton belt indicate the most important declines in the crop were due to severe droughts, hot winds, and worms. Reports indicate that heavy shedding caused by hot weather was the chief factor of deterioration in practically all States except Louisiana and Mississippi, where there was too much rain. In all other States heat and drought greatly damaged cotton during the month, especially in Texas and Oklahoma.

Since the date on which the condition was taken—Aug. 25—there have been general rains which greatly relieved conditions, and considerable improvement is looked for when the October report is issued.

Comparisons by States in to-day's estimate follow:

States.	Aug. 25, 1911.	July 25, 1911.	Aug. 25, 1910.	Ten-Year Av.
Virginia	96	102	82	80
North Carolina	76	87	76	78
South Carolina	74	86	73	77
Georgia	81	95	71	77
Florida	85	95	74	78
Alabama	80	94	72	73
Mississippi	70	86	71	76
Louisiana	69	84	60	70
Texas	68	86	69	66
Arkansas	78	94	98	78
Tennessee	88	92	78	82
Missouri	88	96	78	82
Oklahoma	62	88	85	76
California	100	99	95	..

Although the Government report on the condition of the growing cotton crop was below the private estimates and showed a deterioration which has only been exceeded twice in the history of the Agricultural Bureau in twenty years, the New York cotton market made scant response to what would have been a sensational estimate could it have been regarded as infallible.

The decline, with its suggestion of a prospective crop reduced from earlier estimates of from 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 bales to less than 13,000,000, aroused much skepticism. It was pointed out that the Government's record as a prognosticator on cotton has been far from good, and errors have been heavily on the side of underestimates. The cotton planter has not the best of reputations for reliability in reporting either acreage planted or condition, and skeptics yesterday laid emphasis on the possible effect of the movement for 13-cent cotton with backing of a powerful committee of Senators and Congressmen as an influence on the current returns.

The average estimate of seventy-six active traders on the Cotton Exchange, obtained by canvass on Wednesday, called for a percentage of more than 77. The estimate of eighty-three members of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange made the probable condition 75.8. Private reports published during the week put the condition at an average of about 74. Except for 1899, when there was a loss of 15.1 per cent. in condition during August; in 1902, when there was a loss of 17.9 per cent., and in 1898, when there was a decline of 11.5 per cent., the average decline for this month during twenty years past has been less than 7 per cent.

The market moved narrowly before the publication of the report, but was generally higher than the previous night's close. The figures put the prices up only about 20 points, which represented a gain of only about $1 a bale. Movements of $5 a bale in the market are not uncommon on news of much less apparent weight. The extreme range was 11.16 and 11.50 cents per pound for September, 11.56 and 11.22 cents for December, and 11.60 to 11.27 cents for March. The closing prices were about 10 points, on the average, below the top.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 1.—The Government estimate of a cotton crop condition of 73.2, and a crop under 13,000,000 bales has spread some concern among New Orleans cotton bears, but excited much incredulity. In the opinion of many operators, the Government has overestimated the crop deterioration during August.

Primarily this opinion is predicated on the severity of the deterioration reported for Oklahoma. Bears say so great a deterioration as 16 points in so short a time is unthinkable, and that the Oklahoma figure of 62 as of Aug. 25 is absurd. The consensus of conservative opinion here is that while drought, worms, weevils, and other destructive agents have robbed the crop of its terrors for the bull, the outturn will exceed that of 1910-1911 by many bales, and the threat of famine will not menace the spinner.

STEAMER LOST, 17 MISSING.

Francisco Founders Off Negros Island in Philippine Seas.

MANILA, Sept. 1.—The steamee Francisco foundered to-day on the north coast of the Island of Negros and thirteen of her passengers and four members of the crew are missing. Among those believed to be drowned are a Mrs. Koppler and her two children, members of the family of a Swiss planter in Negros.

Eight of the passengers of the Francisco were rescued and taken to Iloilo, in the Isle of Panay.

The masts of the Davidson had snapped off in the hurricane, and there was no hope for her when the lookout on the Northwestern at dusk espied her feeble signals. One of the members of the crew had three of his ribs broken, while the other members suffered bruises and contusions. J. L. Rogers, the American Consul General here, will send the seamen home.

Available shipping registers have no record of the steamer Francisco.

PICTURE PANIC BLAME FIXED.

Canonsburg Manager and Building Inspectors Censured for Neglect.

CANONSBURG, Penn., Sept. 1.—The Coroner's jury which held an inquest today into the panic of last Saturday night during a moving-picture show at the Canonsburg Opera House, when twenty-six persons were killed and several score injured, returned a verdict censuring the manager of the show and the State Department of Factory and Building Inspection. The jury states that it is unable to find any person or persons guilty criminally.

C. P. Ferguson, manager of the show, was condemned for not providing police protection for the premises, while the State Department of Factory and Building Inspection is censured for approving the narrow street entrance leading to the auditorium of the theatre.

AUTO KILLINGS INCREASE.

45 Per Cent. More in Whole State in 3 Months Than in Same Period in 1910.

Twenty-six persons were killed in August by vehicles in the streets of the city and more than 200 seriously injured, according to a statement given out last night by Col. Edward S. Cornell, Secretary of the National Highways Protective Society.

Seven of the 26 were killed by automobiles and 111 seriously injured. Surface cars killed 4 and injured 49, and wagons killed 13 and injured 49. Of the number killed 12 were children under 16 years of age.

The report shows that in the State, excluding this city, automobiles caused the death in August of 24 persons and the injury of 192; 74 persons were killed by autos and 522 injured in the whole State in the three months ended Aug. 31, as compared with 51 killed and 222 injured in the corresponding period of 1910, an increase this year of 23 killed and 300 injured. The increase in the number of killed is more than 45 per cent.

Col. Cornell said last night that deaths and injuries by taxicabs had decreased in the last few years from 33 per cent. to 1 per cent., and that most of the automobile accidents were caused by incompetent or careless owners or private chauffeurs.

The report, Col. Cornell said, did not include the 18 persons in automobiles killed in the State in August at grade crossings.

CLARK PLANS HOUSE OPENING

Ex-Senator and Mrs. Clark to Return to New York in December.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 1.—Ex-Senator W. A. Clark and his wife have completed plans to return from Paris to New York in December and open their thirty-five-hundred-thousand-dollar home in Fifth Avenue. Just what manner of function this formal opening will be has not yet been decided upon.

Mrs. E. S. Hoyt, sister of Mrs. Clark, arrived here to-day to join her husband, who has been here several days. Mrs. Hoyt will go to Europe to join the Clarks in a few weeks, and will return with them to New York, to assist Mrs. Clark in the social opening of the Clark place there.

"My sister has entirely recovered from her recent illness," said Mrs. Hoyt at the Angelus to-day, "and is enoying herself with her children at Trouville. Senator Clark is with her. My sister has planned to entertain on a large scale in New York next Winter, and I will spend the Winter with her and assist her in this."

FEW HOBOS AT CONVENTION.

Invasion of Washington by How Brings Only a Baker's Dozen.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—James Eads How's "hobo" convention opened here to-day with barely a baker's dozen in attendance. This is a considerable shrinkage, as previous estimates by members of the Committee for the Unemployed set 2,000 delegates as the minimum.

Dissension cropped out as soon as the convention opened. This was over a name for the organization. Brother How, who glories in the fact that he is a "hobo," wanted the convention so designated, but his associates chose the more dignified appellation "gathering of unemployed, or so-called hobo convention."

A vacant store in the business section has been obtained as headquarters. There is an abundance of room, except when the free meals are served.

Whitman Promotes Assistants.

Thomas Channon Press, John Kirkland Clarke, James H. Delehanty, and W. H. L. Edwards, Deputy Assistant District Attorneys, were appointed full Assistant District Attorneys by District Attorney Whitman yesterday, with salaries of $7,500 a year. All of the men appointed were connected with the prosecution of the Carnegie Trust Company with the exception of Mr. Press, who prosecuted the Belle Moore case. Royal H. Weller, formerly in the legal department of the Metropolitan Street Railway, was made a Deputy Assistant District Attorney yesterday at a salary of $5,000 a year.

CONFESSES, HE IS RELEASED

She Had Falsely Accused Him and a Woman of Robbery After He Had Rejected Her.

To avenge her spurned love Senka Gaval of 131 Ridge Street caused the arrest and imprisonment for 100 days of Michael Horin of 1,885 Second Avenue and Josef Katarynik of 247 Stanton Street. They were liberated yesterday by Judge Malone in General Sessions after the woman had confessed that she had lied and had accused them falsely of robbery.

When the case was called yesterday Assistant District Attorney Bostwick informed Judge Malone that the woman had acted on the advice of an east side lawyer. As he was entering court yesterday, he said, Miss Gaval ran up to him and, catching hold of his sleeve, cried:

"My God! I can't do it. I can't sleep because of it."

Mr. Bostwick tried to soothe her, and at last got her story from her. Horin was engaged to marry her, but on Katarynik's advice he broke the engagement. The woman begged him to reconsider, but he refused, and she then threatened him with arrest. He merely laughed and left her.

A few days later, as Horin and Katarynik were walking in Hamilton Fish Park, they heard a woman scream. Horin turned and saw his former fiancée running toward him.

"What is the matter?" he asked.

A policeman came up and asked an explanation of the woman's screams. She told him that the men had robbed her of $67. Both protested their innocence, but were arrested and held without bail, despite their sworn statement that they were old friends of the woman and had not robbed her.

As the young woman finished her explanation, she broke down and, grasping the hands of Samuel Feldman, the counsel for the defendants, begged his forgiveness.

"I can't go on, oh, I can't go on," she sobbed. "My story is untrue. I never was held up. I told that awful story because I wanted to force Horin to marry me. I haven't been able to sleep since I sent them to the Tombs. I love him enough to see that he won't marry me, and am willing to explain all to set him free."

BIRD SLAYER TAKES APPEAL.

Montclair Town Clerk His Bondsman, and He Is Released from Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 1.—On behalf of Peter Stevens, who was fined $100 for shooting songbirds in this town on Aug. 17, the Town Attorney has filed with Justice of the Peace Cadmus of Bloomfield, who imposed the fine, an appeal bond of $200. The Town Clerk became surety for Stevens, who is also a town employe. The case will now go to the Court of Common Pleas of Essex County, and, pending action by the court, Stevens, who has been in jail, will get his liberty.

When the case is heard in the County Court, Game Wardens Frederick J. Hall and Edward Shorter, who caused the arrest of Stevens, will be represented by the State Attorney General. The Montclair town officials intend to put up a strong defense for Stevens, maintaining that the proceedings which resulted in his incarceration were irregular.

loaded, and he wanted to know if he had to pay $10 for a license to keep it. Another wrote saying he was a Captain in a National Guard regiment and a member of the bar owning considerable property and asked what he should do to protect himself and his property from injury.

An officer in the United States Navy also wrote to Commissioner Waldo asking if he could carry a revolver by reason of his official duty and if his commission from the Federal Government exempts him from the Sullivan law.

A watchman in the employ of the Custom House also wanted to know if he could be arrested for carrying a revolver while on duty.

A contractor who carries large sums of money asked if he could be arrested and a physician whose profession takes him into vicious parts of the city at night asked for information.

The editor of a German newspaper wants to know whether the law will keep the readers of his paper from holding the scheutzenfest and whether they will be interfered with while target shooting.

A war correspondent of note asks if he must get twenty licenses for guns given to him in various countries.

Another man writes saying he is a reputable citizen and a gun collector. In his letter he says: "The law is a piece of insolent, stupid busibodiness, and not to be tolerated in a country which calls itself free, and is unconstitutional from beginning to end."

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The enactment of the so-called Sullivan dangerous-weapon law precludes the possibility of persons under 16 years of age obtaining hunters' licenses, according to the State Conservation Commission.

Sergt. Ryan of the Fifth Street Station arrested Martin Ford, a bartender of 411 East Nineteenth Street, at the corner of First Avenue and Fourteenth Street, on charges of felonious assault and carrying a concealed weapon. Ford was arrested on the complaint of Alexander Nessner, a stationary fireman, of 349 East Fourteenth Street, who was also placed under arrest, on the complaint of Ford, charged with felonious assault. Both men were taken to the Fifth Street Station, where they were locked up pending their arraignment in court to-day.

According to Sergt. Ryan, a revolver, from which one bullet had been fired, was found on Ford. Nessner charged Ford with firing at him while they were engaged in an altercation.

COURT ACTS ON NEW LAWS.

Test of the Levy Election Act Is Started at Once.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff signed an order yesterday requiring the Board of Elections to show cause before Justice Gavegan on Tuesday next why the new election law, known as the Levy law, which went into effect yesterday, should not be declared unconstitutional. Under this law the name of a candidate for office cannot appear more than once on the official ballot. This provision prevents independent parties from naming candidates already on the tickets of the regular political parties. The order to show cause was obtained by Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, and John J. Hopper, Chairman of the County Committee of the Independence League.

An addition to the garnishee act also became operative yesterday. This statute holds that the wages, earnings, salary, or income of a trust fund of a judgment debtor shall be levied upon in priority of claim. A debtor in the past could make some of his creditors privileged. Justice Bischoff passed on many of these claims yesterday for the first time. As soon as one creditor is paid in full the next creditor comes in for his share and so on until all the judgments are satisfied.

An amendment to the Code of Civil Procedure, Chapter 209, of the laws of 1911, went into effect yesterday. The new law provides that attorneys must file summons and complaint in the County Clerk's office within three days after their service upon the defendant. Heretofore such a requirement was not necessary except in law suits affecting titles to real estate. The new provision of the Code also requires that lawyers file their papers flat instead of folded three times as heretofore. Provision is also made for additional help in the County Clerk's office, and thirty new clerks will start to work next Tuesday.

Another new law was one covering "secured debts" of corporations and others. This law imposes a tax of one-half of 1 per cent. on bonds, notes, and mortgages secured by real estate, and recorded in any State or county outside of New York. The tax is payable to Edward Buckley in the office of Deputy State Controller Julius Harburger at 165 Broadway. The first payment made was on an Imperial Japanese Government bond and was made by Holean Weeks. It amounted to $4.87.

DOUGHERTY ANSWERS CLERK

Says He Found Ortelero Was Giving Out Confidential Information.

James V. Ortelero, who resigned by request on Wednesday as confidential stenographer to Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, sent to the newspapers yesterday copies of a letter he had sent Mr. Dougherty. Ortelero charged that his dismissal was the result of political jobbery, and that Dougherty had been guilty of grossly violating the police regulations by transmitting confidential police information to the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, of which he was formerly chief.

After a conference with Commissioner Waldo, Deputy Commissioner Dougherty made this statement:

"When I dismissed Ortelero I did not give all my reasons, as I did not wish to be hard on the young man. Now I feel that I must speak. I found that Ortelero was giving out confidential information of a police nature and that he was aiding in the circulation of stories tending to injure me and to create the impression that friction exists between Commissioner Waldo and myself. These stories are baseless.

"I wrote the letter to Mr. Pinkerton and sent him the pink general alarm slip which I had remodeled and which has been going to the Pinkerton and other agencies for years; and I sent him the roster, which is public property. Commissioner Waldo told me to follow custom and keep on posting the Pinkertons, who do us valuable service from time to time.

"When I came to this office Deputy Flynn, my predecessor asked me to take care of Ortelero until he could get him a Government position, and I asked him to stay. Some time ago when I learned he was not close mouthed I told him to look for another job, but to take his time about it. I made no mention, however, of politics. I think the fact he gave out private correspondence proves he violated his trust."

SPITE, O'FARRELL SAYS.

Lays His Troubles to Charge That He Talked of Crime to Corrigan.

The trial of Patrolman Valerian O'Farrell, charged with accepting a $1,000 gratuity from Isaac Silverman, head of a private detective agency in the last cloakmakers' strike, to which O'Farrell had been assigned on strike duty, was resumed before Third Deputy Commissioner Walsh at Police Headquarters yesterday and postponed for the third time. O'Farrell on the stand admitted for the first time his belief that his demotion had been due to spite work.

"In the latter part of May," said O'Farrell, "I was demoted an dtransferred from the Detective Bureau to a patrolman's position because it was charged that I gave Magistrate Corrigan certain information regarding the 'crime wave' which led to the controversy between the Magistrate and the Mayor."

Dr. Charles Kennedy testified that while eating with Silverman in an uptown restaurant Silverman told him that he had bought stock of the Human Life Publishing Company from O'Farrell for $1,000, and that the sale had been outright. At a former hearing it had been brought out that Silverman had advanced the money merely as a loan, taking the stock as security. Silverman was in Milwaukee yesterday and will be summoned when the trial is continued next Tuesday.

O'Farrell said on the stand yesterday that he had bought the stock originally from Alfred Henry Lewis and David Graham Phillips. His testimony showed that he and Alfred Henry Lewis were good friends.

From one who says that he knows just what is behind the charges against O'Farrell it was learned that, although O'Farrell knew both Magistrate Corrigan and Alfred Henry Lewis intimately and was often seen in their company, he denied having furnished the crime testimony contained in Magistrate Corrigan's letter to the newspaper

"That rumor that O'Farrell was furnishing all the police secrets," said the man, "was carried to Mayor Gaynor by a lawyer who had seen O'Farrell in Magistrate Corrigan's company, and who hoped to win enough favor to get a place in the administration.

"O'Farrell's scalp was wanted, that's all, and the bribe affair was only a part of the scheme to get him demoted."

AFTER RESEARCH BUREAU.

Central Union Wants to Know if Corporations Are Behind It.

The Bureau of Municipal Research is itself to be investigated. The Central Federated Union thinks it is about time, and proposes to undertake the work. At a meeting last evening steps looking toward such an investigation were taken, and the sentiment of the meeting was expressed by Delegate Edward J. Hanna.

"We are determined to find out what is back of all this investigating of city departments," he said. "We understand that Mr. Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller are lending financial aid to these investigations. We don't see why private corporations should be allowed to mix in city affairs and make all sorts of recommendations to the Board of Aldermen. If any recommendations are to be made, they should come from some political party or from the citizens. If any attempt is being made by corporations to run this city, we want to know about it. A thorough investigation of the whole matter is going to be made."

VALLEY WRECK INQUIRY.

Supt. Woodward Testifies That Engine Struck Jacked-Up Rail.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 1.—A Coroner's inquest into the wreck of an express train on the Valley Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, on the night of Aug. 7, causing the death of one passenger and injuries to sixty others, was begun here to-day.

Passengers in the wreck testified that in their opinion the speed of the train was thirty miles an hour.

Supt. Woodward of the Air Line Division, states that the spikes from an inside rail had been removed and one end of the rail jacked up so that the forward wheel of the engine struck the end, throwing the engine off the tracks on the inside of the curve. Never, he said, had he known of a train running off a curve because of excessive speed, to leave the rails on the inside.

Testimony was offered to the effect that the tracks had been inspected the day of the wreck, and found to be all right. Adjournment was taken until Wednesday.

DOCTOR SENT TO BELLEVUE.

Eccentricity of Dr. John C. Bryan Places Him Under Observation.

After stirring up a lot of excitement near his home, 106 West Seventy-ninth Street, Dr. John Conder Bryan was removed to Bellevue Hospital at about 6 o'clock last evening for observation as to his mental condition. He had been acting in an irrational manner, it was said, since early in the morning, when he received a telephone message that had caused him to break out in a torrent of abuse. He was determined not to go to the hospital and before he consented the ambulance was twice sent to the house and the police were called to the scene of the trouble.

Dr. Bryan, it was said, has been suffering from mental depression for some weeks.

FLORENCE BURNS'S ACCUSER FOUND DEAD

Body Recovered from Hudson Identified as That of Lawyer Charles W. Hurlburt.

HAD SPOKEN OF THREATS

Feared Friends of Woman and Man He Had Sent to Jail, He Told Uncle—Drowned, Says Coroner.

The police of this city are investigating the death of Charles W. Hurlburt, the man who caused the arrest and conviction later of Florence Burns Wildrick and Edward W. Brooks on charges of extortion for which each of them got a sentence of seven years in jail. Hurlburt's body was found in the Hudson River, off Haverstraw, on Aug. 20 last, but was not identified as his until yesterday.

The body was floating in the water off Jones's Point, which is opposite Iona Island, and Coroner A. W. Dutcher of Haverstraw found a West Shore Railroad timetable in the pocket of the dead man inscribed with the name of Mr. Hurlburt. There were no marks on the body and nothing to indicate that the man had not met death by accident or had committed suicide.

It was learned that Hurlburt had stopped Homer Gardiner of Jones's Point a few days before and asked him where was the nearest railroad station, however, and Coroner Dutcher caused the facts of the finding of his body to be published in a local paper.

Yesterday F. Wayland Foster of Gloversville, N. Y., an uncle of Hurlburt, identified the body as his. He said that Hurlburt had visited him about three weeks ago, and at that time had mentioned threats which had been made against him by friends of Brooks and of Florence Burns Wildrick, the girl who several years ago, when Walter Brooks had been found dead in a hotel in oCrtlandt Street, where Florence Burns had been his companion, had been tried and acquitted of his murder.

Hurlburt, who was 32 years old, was a lawyer and had been employed by the Lawyers Title and Insurance Company up to the time of bringing the charge against Florence Burns, Wildrick, and Brooks. He had lived at 39 Seventh Avenue, in a boarding house, and continued to live there afer his charges had been brought, and he had lost his pob.

At the boarding house last night it was recalled that Hurlburt had taken his last meal there on the evening of Aug. 16. On that night the other boarders particularly noticed a foreign-appearing man who took dinner with Hurlburt. He had been at meals with Hurlburt on July 10, 11, and 15, and had attracted attention by the poorness of his attire.

On the night of Aug. 16 he had worn clothing of much better quality, and Hurlburt had attracted some attention by his high spirits, which were contrary to his manner since the time when he caused the arrest of Brooks and Florence Wildrick. This guest of Hurlburt's had attracted attention at the boarding house on his previous visits, but Hurlburt had accounted for him by saying that he was an old friend who was out of work. The proprietor had determined to bar the man from the house in the future, but never after that night of Aug. 16 were Hurlburt or his companion seen at the house.

Coroner A. W. Dutcher of Haverstraw, over the telephone last night, said that there was no doubt that the body found in the river was that of young Hurlburt. The identification of Mr. Foster had been perfectly satisfactory, he said.

He said that he did not intend to hold an autopsy on the body as it already had been examined and he was assured that death had been due to drowning. There were no marks on the body, and nothing which would authorize a belief that Hurlburt had been put to death.

BEATEN IN HER HOME.

Woman Attacked by Four Men Who Followed Her Into Hallway.

Mrs. Anna Hahn, 40 years old, a dressmaker of 291 East 155th Street, was taken to the Lebanon Hospital last night in a serious condition as a result of an attack made upon her late Thursday night by four men who followed her to her apartments and beat her until she became unconscious. She was found in a dazed condition early yesterday morning by Mrs. Sarah Bessmer, the janitress, who heard faint calls for help.

Mrs. Hahn said the men had followed her along 155th Street and entered the apartment house when she opened the front door. She thought that they lived on another floor, but when she was about to enter her apartment they rushed upon her and threw her to the floor, stuffing a gag into her mouth. In the fight which followed most of her clothing was torn off, her left knee was dislocated, and her body lacerated and bruised. The men carried off $4 when they made their escape.

At first Mrs. Hahn refused to notify the police, and a physician near by was called in, but her condition became so alarming last night that it was decided to have her removed to the hospital. She was able to give a good description of her assailants, and detectives attached to the Morrisania Station were sent out to search for them last night.

SEEK SUBWAY TICKET AGENT.

He Disappeared on Thursday, and $338.10 Went, Too.

The police are looking for Lee K. Ellery, ticket seller at the downtown station of the Subway at Astor Place. Ellery left the station late Thursday night and has not been seen since. Later it was discovered that $338.10 was missing from the cash drawer.

Ellery lived in Fifth Avenue, near Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn. No trace of him had been found last night.

BEATTIE'S BROTHER DESTROYED EVIDENCE

Admits Washing Blood from Seat of Auto on Which Slain Sister-in-Law Sat.

DEFENSE FINDS NEW WITNESS

Joseph Casselberg Said to Have Been Near Scene of the Crime—Prisoner to Testify To-day.

CHESTERFIELD COURT HOUSE, Va., Sept. 1.—Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife, did not take the stand to-day in his own behalf, as was expected, but the assertion was made just before court adjourned that the defense would conclude its case late to-morrow with the prisoner's testimony.

An argument ensued between counsel for both sides as to whether the cross-examination of the accused also could be finished to-morrow, and it was obvious that the defense wished to have the prisoner rest over Sunday before the attack upon him by the prosecution could be begun. Thomas Hancock, one of the jurors, however, spoke up in a plaintive voice to the court, saying: "Please consider us, Judge," and the court immediately asked H. M. Smith, Jr., counsel for the defense, how many more witnesses he would introduce.

"Just a few more," said Mr. Smith. "But we will surely close our case to-morrow by placing the prisoner on the stand."

Judge Watson announced that he would hold court later than usual to-morrow evening if necessary to finish the case, but an agreement was reached to suspend judgment as to holding the night testimony until Beattie's testimony had been presented. Court will be delayed in the morning by the taking of a deposition from Mrs. M. C. Steger, who is ill at her home near the scene of the crime and who, it is asserted, saw the alleged bearded highwayman prowling around the day of the murder.

Several women friends of the Beatties testified to-day that the couple lived happily together, and a number of men testified as to the prisoner's reputation.

Except for the admission of Douglas Beattie, a brother of the accused, that he would have destroyed evidences of the murder—and did, in fact, clean some of the blood from the automobile—had he known that his brother was to be charged with the crime, the most interesting development of the day was the discovery of a witness by the defense, Joseph Casselberg of Richmond.

Doubtful of New Witness.

Casselberg, it has been rumored for some time, has had knowledge of the case. He is reported to have been on the Midlothian turnpike with another person about the same time that the murder occurred and is supposed to be the man who stopped to crank his machine and was seen by the group of boys on their way from the dance at Bon Air. If he is called as a witness and admits that he stopped to fix his machine at the point where the boys say they saw the car with a woman on the running board and a man in front of it, the defense considers this would controvert much of the testimony tending to show that Mrs. Beattie was shot while on the running board and not in the car seat, as her husband alleges.

It was rumored to-night, however, that the defense may not call Casselberg because of conflicting reports concerning his probable testimony.

The question of whether Mrs. Beattie was shot while standing on the running board or in the road, or, as her husband insists, while she sat in the front seat to the left of him, was again raised to-day when several automobile experts testified that a large pool of blood, such as was found at the scene of the crime, could have trickled through the machinery of the car and flowed from the drip pan underneath to the ground. This testimony was in line with the contention that blood dripped also from the machine in many places from the scene of the crime to the Owen home in Richmond, where the young husband took his dead wife.

It was said to-day that in the examination of the Beattie car by the prosecution's witnesses, immediately following a similar examination by witnesses for the defense, a few strands of hair thought to be from the head of Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie, had been discovered. The hair was clotted in the blood in the lower front part of the car.

Detective Scherer said the finding of the hair under a seat cushion indicated that the cushion was up, and that this evidence was in line with the prosecution's theory that the woman's head was concealed under the seat on the prisoner's trip to the Owen home immediately after the tragedy.

To Stick to First Story.

The defense introduced a score of witnesses to attack various other details in the evidence of the prosecution, and to-morrow it is expected the prisoner will make emphatic contradiction of his cousin Paul's entire testimony, clinging to his story at the Coroner's inquest that a bearded highwayman murdered his wife, and that he took no part in a transaction concerning the purchase of the shotgun.

The prisoner was more cheerful at the end of to-day's discussion than he has been for some time. As each of his five women friends who testified entered the courtroom he smiled and greeted them warmly. His gray-haired father, who sat beside him, escorted each to the witness chair, and when Hazel Beattie, his daughter, took the stand to testify to Henry's pleasant home life, the aged parent bent over and kissed the young girl as she stepped to the witness chair.

When Douglas Beattie took the stand he said that his brother and wife appeared to be perfectly happy, and that "he always kissed her the few times I saw him greet her."

"What was your first intimation of the murder?" he was asked.

"A telephone message from Dr. Mercer, saying Henry had been held up and shot. I told other people in the house, and my father, sister, and I went to Tom Owen's house. Henry was in a room to the right of the hall. He was lying on a reclining chair, and my father kneeling by his side. Henry was sobbing and moaning and fondling his wife's slipper."

The witness corroborated his father's testimony of yesterday as to Henry's manifestations of grief the night of the murder.

Q.—Did you examine the car? A.—When I got into it to go up the road I found blood on the left seat, covered up, and I got full of blood on the right seat.

Q.—Why was the left seat covered? A.—I was told it covered blood.

"We ask that this be stricken out as hearsay," said Prosecutor Wendenburg. The court sustained the motion.

Blood in Auto Seat.

The witness said that he drove the car practically from the time Henry brought the dead woman to the Owen home until the next day.

Q. (By Mr. Smith)—How bloody was the seat? A.—It was bloody enough to make a big spot on my pants.

Q.—Did you lift the seat up? A.—Yes, and blood ran in every direction after I had ridden about two hours.

Q.—How much was that car run after the murder before being taken in charge by the county authorities?

The witness said he had gone up the Midlothian Turnpike several times for miles. He declared the blood under the driver's seat still was soft the next day.

On cross-examination Douglas Beattie said that when he had ordered the bloody car washed the left hand cushion was washed, but not the right hand one, because "we didn't have time."

The left hand seat was the one in which the accused alleged that Mrs. Beattie sat.

Q.—(By the prosecutor)—What was the object of getting rid of the blood on the left-hand seat and not the right-hand seat, which had more blood on it? A.—Didn't want any one to sit in it. I didn't know the machine was to have been seized later, or I would have had the machine washed at once, and, furthermore, the car would not have made any more trips that night.

Q.—Explain what you mean by that. A.—Well, I wouldn't have given the detectives and others the opportunity to ride around in the car and say what they have about it here.

Q.—Why would you deprive them of the opportunity? A.—Well, had I known that they were going to work up a case against my brother I would have deprived them of it.

Q.—Do you think that was right as a citizen, not as a brother, to destroy evidence? A.—Well, what man wouldn't?

Would Protect His Brother.

Q.—Would you destroy that evidence? A.—Yes, if it was going to be used as it has been falsely against my brother.

Q.—But you weren't there? A.—No.

Q.—And yet you have deprived the jury of that evidence? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you at the Coroner's inquest carry a message from Beulah Binford to Henry? A.—Not then, but later.

Q.—The message was that she shouldn't give up to the detectives except what was absolutely true? A.—Yes.

Q.—You have stated that if you had known what you know now you would have destroyed evidence on the machine. Did you have the same idea with respect to the Beulah Binford evidence? A.—No. Henry's relation with Beulah Binford were well known to everybody in Manchester, (South Richmond.)

Q.—How about recent relations? Did you know of them? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were they discussed in the family? A.—Yes. My brother came to me and said: "Don't you know that girl is back in Richmond."

Douglas Beattie took the stand again when court reconvened at 2:30 o'clock, and Attorney Smith for the defense examined him.

Q.—You say you gave directions to wash off the left seat. Did you do so about the right, too? A.—No.

Q.—Why? A.—Because it was so bloody that I knew we wouldn't have time.

Q.—Do you know anything about a gauntlet in the machine? A.—I can't remember.

Q.—What would have been the after effect if you had not washed the seat? A.—We would have gotten bloody again.

The prosecution asked the witness if he didn't remember that Henry Beattie touched the machine and found it hot and suggested to Douglas that he use his gloves and that the reply was the gloves were in the garage. The witness said he could not remember.

Traces Course of Blood.

W. F. Gordon, an automobile expert, testified that he had examined the Beattie car and that the blood on the seat "went down to the front and side of the gasoline tank, a great deal had dripped on to the brake band, and, finally, went to the ground."

Additional testimony concerning the construction of automobiles and the likelihood of blood dripping to the ground through the lower machinery was given by Lee Folger, Carroll Montague, Charles Taylor, John von Lehr, and Marion Taines, automobile experts.

W. E. Gill testified that Detective Jarrell had told him on the day after the crime of the presence of a second blood spot on the road. Detective Jarrell was called and denied it. Mr. Gill said that he also saw drippings of blood on the road twenty-five to fifty yards long.

Coroner Loving was called and asked about Paul Beattie's illness at the inquest.

"Paul Beattie left the stand because he was sick," said Dr. Loving on cross-examination. "We gave him some medicine and he took the stand again."

Q.—Was it your opinion that Paul was faking about being sick? A.—I made no minute examination, but he was not sick. He was fighting for time, I think.

By the prosecutor: Q.—Didn't the witness come from the hospital? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't it take several officers to hold him down? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you order him sent to the hospital? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't he ask to be allowed to lie down? A.—Yes.

Roland Lassiter, who previously had been examined by the prosecution together with a group of boys who said they saw a lone machine on the turnpike on their way back from a dance at Bon Air, was asked if he remembered a statement by W. B. Snyder, one of the party, that the doors on the car they saw were off.

"No, Sir," replied the witness, "he never said that to me."

Doors of Beattie Car Off.

The doors on the Beattie car were detached on the night of the murder.

Among the witnesses who testified to the domestic happiness of the Beatties were Miss Bessie Wells and Miss Louise Reams, maid of honor at Mrs. Beattie's wedding.

Mrs. Traphagan, a sister of Henry C. Beattie, Sr., declared the husband and wife were "as close and as kindly and loving to one another" as any couple she ever saw.

Mrs. Ella J. Bowman, a sister-in-law and housekeeper to Henry C. Beattie, Sr., for many years, declared that the Beatties were "the happiest married pair I ever saw."

"Mr. Beattie, Sr.," said Prosecutor Wendenburg, "has testified that it was the attitude of his family to give the officers all the information possible. Was that your attitude?"

"Yes."

"Do you remember Detective Jarrell coming to your house and asking to get into the garage?"

"Yes. I said I would let him in if he had the right. They said they did. I called up Mr. Beattie to get the key and couldn't get him."

"Didn't you say the detectives were just trying to get evidence against the boy?"

"I did not. I said they might go elsewhere for evidence, but not in the garage unless they had the right. Detective Jarrell laughed in my face."

Miss Hazel Beattie, only sister of the prisoner, told of the married life of the accused, saying the husband and wife were "very lovable."

"NELLIE BLY" ANSWERS NOW.

Says Steel Barrel Co. Sometimes Paid for Material for Iron Clad Co.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Seaman, otherwise "Nellie Bly," consented yesterday to answer the twenty-one questions about the American Steel Barrel Company compiled by United States Commissioner Morle. Mrs. Seaman answered the questions only when assured by Justice Chatfield that she would be liable for contempt of court if she persisted in her refusal.

The creditors of the Iron Clad Company, which is, in fact, Mrs. Seaman, placed the company in involuntary bankruptcy some time ago. When investigating the affairs of the company Appleton L. Clarke, the receiver, found that its affairs were considerably intertwined with those of the American Steel Barrel Company, which is also, in fact, Mrs. Seaman. It was charged that the bankrupt company had furnished the power for the barrel company, and that material used by the solvent company had been paid for by the bankrupt concern.

Since then Commissioner Morle has been trying to persuade Mrs. Seaman to give him definite information. Mrs. Seaman steadfastly refused, and at first was supported in this decision by Judge Chatfield. Later he reversed his decision and ordered her to answer the questions. Still she held out, and it was not utnil yesterday afternoon that she would speak.

In answer to the questions, Mrs. Seaman said that no material used by the Barrel Company had been paid for by the Iron Clad Company, but that occasionally the reverse had been true. She said that she had recently resigned as an officer of the company, and was now only a member of the Board of Directors. The books of the company were in possession of George A. Wilnik, the Treasurer, she said, and she had not seen them since last Wednesday, when she had visited the plant with Mr. Clarke, the receiver.

SUN VISITS RICHMOND FAIR.

After a Two-Days Deluge Track Was Dry Enough for One Horse Race.

The sun at last decided to shine yesterday on the Richmond County Fair, which is held, as it has been for seven years, at Dongan Hills, S. I. The fair opened two days ago in a drizzle, which prevented the horses from racing or the children from parading. Only the ducks were thoroughly at home. Thursday was even worse. The rain came down in torrents. The ladies who had spent their best hours in baking cakes and pies and sewing crazy quilts for prizes wondered if anybody was coming to look at these objets d'art.

Yesterday, however, with the beaming sun, everything changed. Several thousand people came to look at the various exhibits, and the track was gotten in good enough condition for one race. This was in the 2:15 pacing class, and was won by Dick Mason.

Lee Hammond, the aviator, made three flights in Capt. Thomas Baldwin's aeroplane, the Red Devil. He went up first at 2 o'clock and circled the half-mile track three times. At 4 o'clock he ascended to a height of about 160 feet, sailed twice around the track and then shot off in the direction of South Beach, returning and landing about fifteen minutes later. At 5:30 o'clock he made his third trip. Reaching an altitude of 400 feet he passed over the grand stand and then went toward South Beach.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey is expected to visit the fair to-day. He will have luncheon at the country club before he goes to the fair.

SIGN SMASHERS OUT ON AN AUTO TRUCK

With Tools of Demolition, They Partly Clear Up the Hoffman Boulevard.

TACKLE THE UNION TURNPIKE

Automobile Club of America Equips the Machine with Instruments of Demolition—Work Under New Law.

A lumbering five-foot motor truck sallied forth into the Borough of Queens from the Automobile Club of America at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, stocked with implements of war—shovels, axes, hatchets, fire-hooks on poles and climbing spikes, to say nothing of a ladder and a pair of rubber boots. The war was on the advertisements which have reared themselves, multi-colored, within the public highways, and the declaration of it was in the new law making it a misdemeanor to paste, fasten, or erect such "business or commercial advertisement" within the highway limits, and which concludes with this sentence:

"Any advertisement in or upon a public highway in violation of the provisions of this subdivision may be taken down, removed, or destroyed by any one."

That law went into effect yesterday, Sept. 1. Of course the Good Roads Committee of the club could have started its actual campaign against the disfiguring signs at midnight, but it repressed its zeal until dawn, and then the truck went out, manned by A. Ward Chamberlain of Croton Falls, one of the club's members; two boys employed to assist him, the chauffeur, a photographer, and two reporters. It was well on in the afternoon when the truck forsook the Hoffman Boulevard, and by that time it was comfortably loaded with signs—signs of every description and numbering fully a thousand. The truck will go out again to-day, and it is the intention to keep up the good work for some time to come.

The small army of destruction moved out across the city and took to Queensboro, by way of the Queensboro Bridge. Then it made for the Hoffman Boulevard, which, because of some temporary road repairing, it had to reach by a detour to the left, sweeping down on it triumphantly by way of the Union Turnpike. But the work of purging the scenery began before that.

The First Skirmish.

At the corner of Jamaica Road and the Turnpike, Mr. Chamberlin spied some advertisements adorning a tree. The chauffeur brought the truck to a stop, and out piled the three—Mr. Chamberlin and his two boys. A few hacks and the first sign fell. It was a cement advertisement. With it fell two other mottoes, which set forth respectively the merits of a machine oil and a washing powder. The débris was gathered together and thrown on the floor of the truck. In climbed the three, and away went the truck. That was the course of events for the greater part of the day.

Sometimes the truck would come to a stop in the shade of a tree for more than a half hour, so thick were the signs to be operated on from a single point. Standing at innumerable points on the Hoffman Boulevard one could hit with a stone six or seven poles and trees, each thickly covered with signs of all sorts, signs that took up not only all the available space, but which were nailed, wired, and pasted, one on top of another. The cleaning up of one telegraph pole is warm and weary work. Eight or nine signs, made of tin, and nailed stubbornly to the curving surface, have unexpected powers of resistence, and the day was still young when the party found two of its three fire hooks snapped off and useless.

Automobilists who have considered contributing in dilettante fashion to the campaign by stepping out occasionally from their cars and flipping a sign from its moorings will find that these signs don't flip.

Most of the haul yesterday was made from the telegraph poles and the signs removed were small signs. These are not the advertisements done in such a large manner that they can be read from the next borough. The huge signs, propped easel fashion after the manner of those which dot the Jersey flats, are almost entirely placed on private property, and their removal the Good Roads Committee hopes to effect through an appeal to the public-spiritedness of the property owners. But the pole and tree signs in the highways are considered fair game for anybody, and while they do not blot out the landscape so offensively as the larger ones, they are quite as objectionable to the automobilists, for it is these placards which cluster around the direction signs and bewilder the driver whizzing by at twilight or in a cloud of dust.

Mostly Automobile "Ads."

A very considerable proportion of the small tin placards set forth the charms and conveniences of special interest to the automobilist, advertisements of garages and oil and batteries and tires. But these are not all. The truck left the Boulevard yesterday with signs calling attention to many things, from pills and soap to Sothern and Marlowe. The taste for yanking down these inscriptions appeared to grow with its indulgence, and before the day was over one of the boys of the party was seen looking longingly at a huge sign, well back among the bushes, which notified the passerby that further back from the road a man with an Italian name did a mason's business. Then a man with an Italian cast of features was seen stepping out from behind the sign and looking sourly at the boy. Then the boy was seen hurrying toward the truck.

Not that Mr. Chamberlin and his wrecking crew confined themselves to the small fry. At least one monster sign was loaded in sections into the truck and demolished at the junction of the Union Turnpike and Hoffman Boulevard. Such signs cost in the neighborhood of $50. Other signs that went down announced the sale of adjacent property.

The work for the day was called off after Hoffman Boulevard had been covered from the Union Turnpike to the outskirts of Jamaica. The original plan was to find an open place and make a sacrificial fire of the plunder, but the plunder proved to be so largely tin that this idea was abandoned and the whole truckload was gratefully received—as a gift—by a blacksmith in Corona.

Not once was the party disturbed or questioned. Now and then a wondering farmer looked at the work ruminatively. Many an automobile party gave glances of approval as its members saw a tree being cleaned of its accumulations, and one car slowed up while the women in the tonneau leaned out to wave their handkerchiefs as an expression of their satisfaction.

Mr. Chamberlin was by no means sure when he left the Automobile Club in the morning that he would not be disturbed. He had his suspicions that an injunction would halt the work, although he could not guess from what source it would come. The general impression at the club was to the effect that the work done yesterday was well within the permission granted by the new statute, but Mr. Chamberlin for one saw the possibility of another interpretation. The law reads:

The Wording of the Law.

A person who willfully or maliciously displaces, removes, injures, or destroys a mileboard, milestone, danger sign or signal, or guide sign or post, or any inscription thereon, lawfully within a public highway; or, who, in any manner paints, puts, or affixes any business or commercial advertisement on or to any stone, tree, fence, stump, pole, building, or other structure, which is the property of another, without first obtaining the written consent of such owner thereof, or who in any manner paints, puts, or affixes such an advertisement on or to any stone, tree, fence, stump, pole, mileboard, milestone, danger sign, danger signal, guide sign, guide post, billboard, building, or other structure within the limits of a public highway is guilty of a misdemeanor. Any advertisement in or upon a public highway in violation of the provisions of this subdivision, may be taken down, removed, or destroyed by any one.

The question in Mr. Chamberlin's mind was whether a sign, placed within the highway before this law went into effect—that is, before Thursday at midnight—could be considered "in or upon a public highway in violation of the provisions of this subdivision," whether, in short, the signs already decorating the trees were not protected legally from his axe. A lay interpretation offered yesterday, however, had it that the old signs within the highway limits are there in violation of the new law, although it was not a misdemeanor to have placed them there.

SMASHERS NEAR NEW ROCHELLE

Party of Women Make a Specialty of Liquor and Cigar Signs.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Independent automobile parties started things to-day by tearing signs along the roads around New Rochelle.

Five women in a large gray touring car made a specialty of liquor and cigar signs tacked on trees and fences. It is understood that to-morrow there will be numerous parties of New Rochelle autoists out to attack all signs that offend their eyes.

CHARTER CHANGES MADE.

Committees Hear Supt. Maxwell and Service Board's Counsel.

The Joint Cities Committee of the Legislature, in its consideration of the proposed New York charter, yesterday reached the chapter reorganizing the Board of Education into one of seven salaried members instead of forty-six unpaid members. City Superintendent of Schools Maxwell spent two hours with the committees at the Hotel Knickerbocker. He acquiesced in the suggestion which has been made that a smaller board would be less unwieldy, but emphatically disagreed with the charter framers in their insistence on a paid board. Most of the advice given by Supt. Maxwell was about technical changes to make more effective the system of education.

There was a report yesterday that Mayor Gaynor had consented to a compromise by which the board should consist of fifteen members, all except the President, who was to be designated by the Mayor, to serve without compensation. Assemblyman Foley said, however, he had talked with the Mayor just before the latter left for St. James, and that the Mayor had not indicated to him that he would be willing to accept any such plan.

Mayor Gaynor yesterday sent a letter to the committees in which he suggested a plan under which the repair and maintenance of the public streets, now under the control of the Borough Presidents, would be placed in the hands of a central department of streets. The idea is not altogether new. It was a feature of the so-called Ivins charter. The Mayor was prompted in making this suggestion by a letter he had received from Fire Commissioner Johnson, who declared that the pavements were in such a neglected condition that he could not possibly, without danger of much damage, introduce his motor fire engines and fire trucks.

The Public Service Commission was represented by its counsel before the legislative committee, and Assemblyman Foley said afterward that practically all suggestions made by the commission had been accepted, with the exception of those recommending the elimination of the clause providing for the Mayor's absolute veto in reference to subway franchises and his suspensive veto over Board of Estimate resolutions providing for the disbursement of city money.

The committees will hear the Borough Presidents, who appear before them to-morrow to oppose the curtailment of their powers and centralizing them in the Mayor.

EFFORT TO OUST GRUBER.

Attack on Him as Leader by Progressive Republicans of His District.

The Progressive Republican Club of the Eighteenth Senatorial District at a special meeting on Aug. 29 passed resolutions bitterly attacking Abraham Gruber and declaring that it was the intention of the club to put up a ticket in opposition to him at the primaries this Fall. The opposition ticket will have Willis B. Davis for leader, Philip R. Dillon for Assemblyman, and Thomas M. Belknap for Alderman.

Gruber, the district leader, is attacked in a pamphlet which has been sent to every Republican voter in the Seventeenth Assembly District. This pamphlet sets forth that Gruber has been the district leader for sixteen years, and during that time has "never supported a public progressive measure or policy, but, on the contrary, has actively opposed every progressive movement in the Republican Party."

It is also set forth that Gruber's nominee, Alderman Joseph Schloss, cast his vote in the Board of Aldermen for the notorious "Murphy Building Code"; that Gruber openly and repeatedly in public speeches insulted Gov. Hughes, (now Justice of the United States Supreme Court;) that he openly and bitterly opposed the principle and practice of direct nominations; that he sneered at Gov. Hughes and "shockingly" attacked Theodore Roosevelt in the Republican State Convention. The pamphlet closes with an appeal to the voters to go to the primaries and defeat Gruber and vote for "a clean progressive leader."

DYNAMITE SCARE IN HOTEL.

Explosion Hurts Three Workmen Near the Ritz-Carlton.

An explosion of dynamite on excavation work for an addition to the Ritz Carlton Hotel at Madison Avenue and Forty-sixth Street yesterday buried three men under the wreckage of a shed they were erecting over a temporary footbridge and caused great excitement among those in the hotel, many of whom were in the dining rooms at the time. They rushed out into the street, but when they were assured that there was no danger returned to their tables. The police say too heavy a charge of dynamite was used.

The injured men are Frank McGovern of 223 East Forty-fourth Street, Matthew Rensarpp, 328 East 107th Street, and Yallasia Dapri, 245 East 150th Street. McGovern was taken to Flower Hospital unconscious, suffering from a badly lacerated scalp and possibly internal injuries. The others were sent to their homes.

The noise of the explosion and the screams of the injured men caused much excitement in Madison Avenue, and the reserves were called out from the East Fifty-first Street Police Station to handle the crowd that collected. Several persons along the avenue narrowly escaped being hit by stones and pieces of timber.

ANSWERS ATTACK ON DOTY.

Counsel Repeats That Health Officer Is Ill.

In reply to a statement made at the last hearing of the Quarantine Investigating Commission by Charles Dushkind, attorney for the complainants, implying doubt as to the truth of the plea of illness set in for Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port, to explain his failure to testify at the hearing, George Gordon Battle, counsel for Dr. Doty, yesterday issued a statement, saying in part:

"Dr. Doty has allayed public fears, and without disturbance of commerce kept the plague of cholera from our shores. His efforts to accomplish this result, coupled with the anxiety and distress occasioned by this investigation, have worn him out physically and mentally. Mr. Dushkind seems inclined to sneer at this fact. His action is on a par with his accusation that babies were exposed to the cold air at Hoffman Island to kill them! This charge of wholesale murder was dismissed by the Commissioner with the remark that no intelligent person would believe it; and it was shown that the practice of placing children suffering from pneumonia in the open air is approved by the best medical authorities. Such insinuations can well be disregarded by Dr. Doty with the scorn which they well deserve."

SEA RAVAGE WORSE THAN WAS FEARED

Narrow Escape of the Crew of the Sarah B. Fell, Picked Up by a Standard Oil Steamer.

ANOTHER SHIP ABANDONED

Panama Liner Allianca, After Accident Off Cape Hatteras, Is Returning to This Port.

The Standard Oil steamer City of Everett, which arrived in port early yesterday, brought the Captain and crew of the three-masted schooner Sarah B. Fell of Boston, who were shipwrecked on Tuesday in the hurricane 200 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras. The schooner sailed from Belfast, Ga., on Aug. 24 with 448,000 feet of dressed lumber, in charge of Capt. C. W. Gilbert, Henry Halversen, mate, and four seamen, who were rescued in a lifeboat from the steamer in a heavy sea.

The schooner encountered heavy weather from Saturday night until Tuesday night. The seas broke over her fore and aft, and the skipper took the wheel while the crew, under the orders of the mate, did their best to save the ship. From Saturday until the time she struck no fire could be lighted in the galley, and the officers and men lived on what is known as cold salt horse and pantiles, meaning hard crackers, which are impervious in their toughness to the industrious ant. In addition to this the water cask, lashed on deck, was carried away, and the Captain lost over the side the key of the spirit room while he was thinking where he would spend the evening if he got ashore.

Capt. Gilbert said after his arrival:

"From 11 o'clock Saturday night until Tuesday night, when we were rescued, it blew the hardest I have ever experienced in my lifetime spent at sea. Time after time we were blown from our course, only to fight our way back, inch by inch. Then, when the spars were carried away, and the rigging was wrecked, I felt that at last I was going down."

The wind, during most of the time, according to the Captain, blew at the rate of 110 miles an hour. When he was thrown by the wheel, which was wrenched from his hands, the Captain said, five spokes were carried with him, and after that the task of managing the ship became doubly difficult.

The Captain declared that he saw two boats pass the schooner, but they did not seem to see his distress signal.

The schooner Malcolm B. Seavey of Bath, Me., abandoned by her crew, who were taken on board the Clyde liner Mohawk, has been located sunken off Charleston, S. C.

The derelict-destroyer Seneca was ordered yesterday to remove from the path of navigation the wreck of the schooner Josie R. Burt of New York, which foundered Thursday night off Barnegat, N. J. The schooner's crew of eleven was saved by the men of the Little Egg Harbor Live Saving Station.

It is believed that final reports will show that the disasters at sea in consequence of the hurricane were greater than was at first supposed. Many disabled or abandoned vessels yet unaccounted for are believed to be drifting north in the Gulf Stream. Revenue cutters are standing to sea to assist these all along the coast from Key West to Norfolk.

A wireless report was received late yesterday from the steamer City of Savannah, bound from Savannah to New York, stating that she passed the schooner Forest City early yesterday with all her head and mainsails torn away by the recent hurricane 25 miles south of Frying Pan shoals. The crew signaled that all were well on board. The schooner is owned by the Poleson Company of Savannah and is bound north.

The managers of the Panama Steamship Line announced yesterday that the steamship Allianca, which sailed from this port last Wednesday for Colon with seventy passengers, had reported that one of the cylinders in the engine room had blown out and that she was returning to this port under her own steam at eight knots an hour. No one was injured. When the accident took place the Allianca was off Cape Hatteras, in latitude 30.05 north, and longitude 73.50 east. In answer to a wireless call the United States Revenue cutter Yamacrow went to the scene and stood by until Capt. Haynes was satisfied that he could make port without assistance.

The Allianca is expected to arrive here this afternoon, and arrangements have been made with Lloyd B. Sanderson to transfer her passengers to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Oruba, leaving to-day for Colon, via Jamaica. The Oruba was to have sailed at 1 P. M., the regular hour, but she will wait, Mr. Sanderson said, for the Allianca's passengers if the disabled steamer arrives in reasonable time, or they may be transferred at Quarantine.

Four Hurt in Fall of 18 Stories.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Four men were injured when a passenger elevator fell eighteen stories in the Masonic Temple to-day. The car was in charge of Jacob Schmidt, and had three passengers when it plunged to the bottom of the shaft. Schmidt and Jacob Dolski were seriously injured, and Dr. Frederick A. Jefferson and Alexander Scolnek were slightly hurt. The accident caused intense excitement among occupants of the building, which is twenty-two stories high.

136 DEPOSITS IN BROOKLYN.

First Day's Business of Postal Savings Bank in That Borough.

The Government Postal Savings Bank in Brooklyn was opened for business yesterday at the General Post Office, Federal Building, Washington and Johnson Streets. When the bank closed at 5 o'clock 136 depositors had placed their savings in the Government's keeping and had received certificates for the total amount of $2,355.

Long before the opening of the bank the depositors were in line. There were many who sought the honor of being the first depositor, but this fell to Morris Seltzer, a Roumanian umbrellamaker of 209 Palmetto Street. Seltzer's desire for distinction made him get there early. He was standing at the depositors' window for six hours before his wish was gratified, having arrived at 3 o'clock in the morning. He received a one-hundred-dollar deposit certificate.

August W. Rehberger, a Post Office clerk, was the second depositor. He arrived at the window a half hour after Seltzer did. He deposited $5. Arthur E. Wright of 1,869 Cropsey Avenue, the next in line, deposited $25. Dr. John H. Reb of 328 Jay Street was the first to buy a postal savings stamp card. The first woman depositor was Mrs. J. Herbert Fernandes of 1,735 Pacific Street, wife of a letter carrier. She stood seventh in the line.

Postmaster Edmund W. Voorhies was present yesterday when the bank opened, and watched its workings all day long. He expressed himself last night as greatly satisfied with the first day's showing. Two clerks have been assigned to the work of the bank and this force will be increased with the growth of business.

Postmaster E. M. Morgan announced yesterday that in the first month of the Postal Savings Bank in this borough 2,821 accounts were opened and deposits made amounting to $109,000. During the month 142 accounts were closed and there were 300 withdrawals, to the amount of $4,932. These figures do not include the amount of savings, bank cards, and stamps sold in August.

HIS TWO WIVES ACCUSE HIM.

Richard Parke Asserts He Was Divorced When He Married.

Richard Parke, an expert accountant employed by the New York and Buffalo Auditing Company of 1 Madison Avenue, Manhattan, is another man whose matrimonial ventures have got him into trouble. He was arraigned before Magistrate Harris in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, yesterday charged with bigamy, and was held in $1,500 bail for examination on Wednesday. He lives at 23 Stuyvesant Place, St. George, S. I., and was arrested there on the complaint of Miss Estelle Creed of Cleveland, Ohio, his second wife.

Francis X. Carmody, Parke's attorney, declared in court yesterday that when his client married Miss Creed he thought his first wife had divorced him in Reno. Parke and wife No. 1, a Miss Elizabeth Murray Johnston of New Brunswick, Canada, lived for a time in Boston. She left him, Parke says, declaring she was going to Reno to get a divorce, but, according to Assistant District Attorney Ross, didn't keep her word.

Parke met his second wife in Cleveland, but they were married in Brooklyn by Alderman William J. Hefferman last December. Not long afterward Parke received an offer of a job from a Boston firm. His wife replied for him.

In some way her letter was received by a person who knew Mrs. Parke No. 1. Then the wives got into communication with each other, with the result that the matter was placed in the hands of District Attorney Clarke for investigation.

DEPOSITORS NOT HOPEFUL.

Fear Lawyers' Fees Will Leave Little for Them in Union Bank Assets.

The 23,000 or more depositors of the Brooklyn Union Bank represented in the Depositors' Association of that institution have practically given up all hope of receiving a cent of their money. Many of them learned yesterday that the claims of lawyers against the bank will approximate $125,000, which is expected to be paid after other liabilities of the institution are met.

The law firm of Edward M. and Paul Grout already has a lien on notes and papers belonging to the bank to insure the payment of the bill of Paul Grout for legal services rendered to the institution. This bill approximates $40,000.

The subject of his address will be "The Old Religion." The church has a seating capacity of 1,600, and all seats will be free to the public.

CITY TO GET ALL NEW CONGRESS DISTRICTS

State Has Six Under the Reapportionment and They May Be Made Democratic.

UP-STATE BOUNDARY LINES

Senate Leader Wagner Disclaims Any Attempt at Gerrymander, but Will Look for Party Advantage.

Robert F. Wagner, President pro tem. of the Senate, is busily at work at present in mapping out new Congress districts for this State. Under the Reapportionment act passed by Congress, six new districts have been allotted to New York. All these, it has been determined, are to be carved out in this city, and every effort is to be made to make them safely Democratic. Two of the new districts will be in Manhattan, two in Brooklyn, one in Queens, and one in the Bronx.

The latter borough now contains the largest Congressional district in the country, and for the last few terms it has been safely Democratic. This district will now be cut in halves. The southern half, with a population of about 170,000, will be created out of the Thirty-second Assembly District largely. This will be Democratic beyond peradventure. With the northern half will be thrown in a section of Republican Westchester, where there has been a great increase of population, though not enough to entitle the county to an extra Congress district. Through the Democratic majority in the Bronx section which is included it is hoped to overcome any Republican majorities that may be rolled up by Rye, Larchmont, Mount Vernon, Port Chester, and New Rochelle, which communities will be included in the Westchester portion of the proposed new district.

There will be a general shifting around of counties in the reconstruction of the Congress districts up-State. Although Senator Wagner said that nothing like a gerrymander will be attempted, he admitted that wherever it is possible an effort will be made to create districts in which the Democrats will have at least a fighting chance.

Of course, the plans made by Senator Wagner are tentative, as the matter will have to be submitted to a special Reapportionment Committee of the Legislature, to be appointed when the lawmaking body meets next week.

DREAM-TRAGEDY CAME TRUE.

Mrs. Stahl Found Her Mother-in-Law, Mrs. Liedtke, a Suicide.

In a dream Mrs. Amelia Stahl of 68 Grand Street, Brooklyn, saw her aged mother-in-law, Mrs. Augusta Liedtke of 27 Bradford Street, East New York, in seeming distress. The old woman appeared to be choking to death. There was a cloth around her head and she writhed. The dream was so shocking that the dreamer awoke. She wept as she told her story to members of her family. They made light of it.

But she was much disturbed, and, remembering that the old woman had been melancholy since the death of her second husband five years ago, since which she had lived alone, Mrs. Stahl decided to go to Mrs. Liedtke's home and see that everything was all right. She got no response to her bell-ringing. She found a rear door of the little cottage open and went in.

On a bed in one of the rooms lay the old woman. She was dead of suffocation. Her head was wrapped up in two handkerchiefs, and to prevent breathing she had stuffed her mouth and nose with wads of cotton, the handkerchiefs holding the wads in place. She had also stuffed her ears in the same way, and had covered her eyes with bits of cotton.

Mrs. Stahl and the police decided that the aged woman had committed suicide.

RUNS AWAY TO FIND MOTHER.

Tramp of 20 Miles Exhausts Lad from Nazareth Trade School.

In front of the Bedford Avenue Police Station, Williamsburg, early yesterday, was found lying unconscious in the rain, Richard Phillips, a 13-year-old boy, who had escaped on Thursday from the Nazareth Trade School, a Catholic organization at Farmingdale, L. I. Capt. Flood brought the lad into the station house and an ambulance was summoned from the Eastern District Hospital.

Phillips was suffering intensely from exposure. He was revived and then taken to the hospital, and then explained that he had had a longing to see his mother, from whom he had been separated for several years. He escaped on Thursday and walked more than twenty miles to Williamsburg, reaching there early yesterday. Then he went to 87 Grand Street, where he had formerly lived, and was told there that his mother had long since moved away and it was not known whether she was alive or dead.

ACTION ON MOROCCO IS AGAIN DELAYED

German Celebration of Sedan Day May Have Put Off Submission of French Proposal.

STILL CONFIDENT OF PEACE

But Stocks Are Uneasy and Anglophobic German Paper Denounces Britons as Cowardly Race.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—Another delay in the Franco-German negotiations over the Morocco situation has taken place. Instead of beginning to-day upon the return of Ambassador Cambon from Paris, they are not likely to be reopened until Monday. The official explanation is that M. Cambon has not yet fully recovered from the indisposition which prostrated him in Paris last week. Another and somewhat more probable reason perhaps is that, with Germany in the throes of a particularly fervid celebration of "Sedan Day," the forty-first anniversary of the surrender of Napoleon III., it has apparently been thought the part of delicacy to wait for these festivities to subside before renewing the Moroccan pourparlers.

Meantime the Kaiser's Government continues to profess a serene confidence in the pacific solution of the difficulties with France. It is asserted that the new proposals which Ambassador Cambon has brought to Berlin are already known to Germany, and in their broad outlines meet with the approval of this Government. The German Stock Exchanges do not apparently share this optimism, inasmuch as they have exhibited nervousness to-day, and a general decline of prices was the result.

In the interval the Fatherland continues to be obsessed with the worst outburst of Anglophobia which has prevailed since the days of the Boer war. France is almost eliminated from the public mind as the antagonist, if the tone of a portion of the German press is to be regarded is representative of German opinion. "England is the enemy" is the prevailing war cry.

Herr Otto von Gottberg, one of Germany's most famous journalists, who represented the Lokal Anzeiger a long time in New York, indulges in a characteristic display of Anglophobia in his paper to-day. Herr Gottberg declares that the Germans are hugging a delusion if they think England is a particularly dangerous antagonist. He depicts the Britons as a craven race, which has never won a war single-handed, and says that the generation which produced Gen. Buller would not be able to develop an Admiral Nelson in a modern war against Germany.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—No developments in the Franco-German negotiations over Morocco are expected before Sunday, as M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, is confined to his apartments by a slight indisposition.

The course the negotiations will pursue cannot be stated with accuracy, but it is believed that if France is disposed to accept Germany's minimum demand of certain portions of the Congo as compensation, and there is some reason to believe she is, the other questions affecting Morocco may be arranged satisfactorily. Germany is anxious to conclude the negotiations before the Reichstag meets Oct. 16.

FRANCE EXPECTS AGREEMENT.

Concessions Regarded as Sufficient—Spanish Military Action Irritating.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The French Foreign Office, it is understood, has not received any sure indication that Germany will accept the French proposals for a settlement of the Moroccan question, yet a measure of confidence is felt in an early agreement because of the extent of the compensations which are to be offered by France. Since these are Central African areas, it is not supposed that Germany would proceed to extreme lengths over a few thousand square miles more or less.

The real difficulty in the way of an early settlement, it is believed at the Foreign Office, lies in the special commercial and mining guarantees which Germany may seek in Morocco, as nothing can be given Germany in Morocco which Great Britain does not possess. Besides, anything like special privileges would afford endless occasions for the reopening of the controversy on questions of interpretation. The French and British Governments have reached the fullest mutual agreement upon every phase of the Franco-German dispute.

The nervousness of the upper business world over the unsettled Franco-German negotiations relative to Morocco was reflected to-day on the Bourse. Transactions were limited, nearly the whole list being weak. French 3 per cent. rentes, however, held firm.

Much irritation has been caused in official and public circles here by the action of the Spanish Government in choosing the present time to occupy St. Croix la Mineure, on the Moroccan coast, fifty-eight miles south of Agadir, under the terms of the treaty of 1860 with Morocco. The Madrid Government sent a force of 500 soldiers from the garrison at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, to occupy the Moroccan seaport.

DROP CAMORRA TESTIMONY.

Witnesses Say They Were Paid to Tell Cuocolo Ring Story.

VITERBO, Italy, Sept. 1.—Depositions of two witnesses concerning Gennaro Cuocolo's ring, which the Carabineers assert they found in the home of Giuseppe Salvi, one of the alleged assassins of Cuocolo, took up the entire sitting to-day of the Camorrist trial.

The witnesses said that the story which they had previously told to the effect that the ring, engraved with Cuocolo's initials, had been procured by Abbatemaggio, the police informer, and given to the carabineers, was invented in order to obtain money from Lloy, of counsel for the accused. Subsequently, realizing the gravity of the case, they said, they had retracted their statements.

Signor Lombardi, a celebrated Neapolitan lawyer, testified that when the witnesses told him the story they seemed to be telling the truth.

A GRANDCHILD FOR KAISER.

Another Birth Expected in the Family of the Crown Prince.

DANZIG, Sept. 1.—In publishing the programme that has been arranged for Sept. 15, when the German Crown Prince takes over command of the body guard of Hussars, the Danzig Zeitung to-day announced that Crown Princess Cecilie would not be able to come to Danzig for some time.

The Princess, it is explained, is expecting a happy family event.

French Academy to Canada.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The French Academy to-day accepted an invitation of the French Society of Quebec to send a delegate to the Congress of the French Language, which is to be held in the Canadian city in June, 1912. Etienne Lamy was selected to represent the academy.

GERMAN AID TO AMERICA.

Presentation of Steuben Statue to Kaiser Subject of Friendly Expressions

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung prints a leading editorial to-day relative to the presentation to Emperor William to-morrow by Representative Richard Bartholdt and S. B. Wolffram, on behalf of the American people, of a copy of the Gen. Baron Steuben statue in Washington.

"This event," the newspaper says, "again directs general attention to the old and historic relations between Germany and the United States, reaching back to the revolution. Gen. von Steuben, who, as a young officer, fought under Frederick the Great, devoted his riper years to the young free State across the ocean, and he represents the German share in the building up of the great American State which now, as a world power, interposes to shape the history of nations.

"We, in Germany, can understand the special pride with which our racial kindred, who have found their second home across the ocean, regard their eminent countryman, and we regard with a high satisfaction the honor which the entire American Nation pays to the leader and fellow-citizen of German stock."

The article then calls attention to the valuable elements of German emigration to the United States, and closes with a complimentary reference to the American special envoys who are to present the gift of the American people to the German Emperor.

The German Foreign Secretary, Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, received Messrs. Bartholdt and Wolffram this afternoon.

PLOTTED TO BE EMPERORS.

Letters of Dead Portuguese Kings Reveal Scheme to Annex Spain.

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 1.—Deputy Amenezes, on behalf of the Government, declared in the Assembly to-day that the commission appointed by the Government to collect the letters and documents abandoned by the Portuguese royal family in its flight last October, had discovered letters showing that in 1876 King Louis was plotting to obtain the Spanish throne and be proclaimed Emperor of Iberia. The newspaper Novidade says other correspondence found makes it apparent that King Carlos had a similar plan in view at the time of the death of King Alfonso XII., the father of the present Spanish monarch.

The Patriarch of Lisbon is authority for the statement that the Holy See has been advised of the probability of a complete remodeling of the law in Portugal concerning the separation of Church and State, and that Pope Pius has declared that if the remodeling is along liberal lines there will be no objection to the Church accepting the law and resuming diplomatic relations with Portugal.

Senhor Machado, the Foreign Minister, has handed to the British Minister his written assurance that the Irish Seminary of St. Patrick and the British Convent and College of the Dominicans will be permitted to continue as heretofore. The Italian Government has complained to Portugal of preferential treatment accorded these orders while members of the Salesian Order are not permitted to remain in the country.

GERMAN BROKERS SUICIDES.

Others in Financial Difficulties Blame Decline in American Stocks.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—The recent break in the prices of American securities is having disastrous consequences on a number of German brokers. Last night George Wischert, the proprietor of a brokerage firm, was found drowned in a lake near Berlin. He is said to have been made bankrupt through the drop in the shares of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Another broker, Paul Dehnicke, died suddenly yesterday, and it is reported that he committed suicide because of losses through heavy engagements of American securities in the London market.

Paul Kwiet and Martin Gans of the private banking house of Kwiet & Gans, who were arrested Aug. 29 charged with embezzling $500,000 of the bank's deposits, were examined in court to-day. They testified that their disaster was due to the American slump in prices.

At Hamburg a broker named Ernst Friedlander fled yesterday, being unable to meet his engagements on the London and New York exchanges. Another small Berlin firm is reported to be in difficulties.

POLICEMAN STRANGELY SHOT

Three Months Married, Found Dead in Kitchen with Pistol Beside Him.

Policeman Stephen Cleary, 35 years old, was shot and killed, presumably by accident, yesterday afternoon in his apartments, 328½ Eighth Street, Jersey City. He had been a member of the police force three years, and had been married three months.

Cleary had been in the Juvenile Court in the morning, and from there went to the Seventh Street Station and got his monthly pay warrant, which he took home to his wife. He told her he intended taking her to a matinée performance. She begged off, saying she wanted to go shopping. Another date was fixed for the play, and Mrs. Cleary started out.

Cleary stood talking in a front room with his brother-in-law, James Purcell, for a few minutes, and then went into the kitchen to smoke a cigarette. A few seconds later Purcell heard a pistol shot, and, rushing into the kitchen, found Cleary on the floor, with blood streaming from a bulelt wound over his right eye. A physician, who was called, said that death had been instantaneous.

Cleary is believed to have been happy in his marriage. It is supposed that in removing his pistol from his hip pocket to place it on a table he dropped it, and it was accidentally discharged. The revolver, a lighted cigarette, and an overturned chair were on the floor beside the body.

DEL NOCE HELD FOR TRIAL.

Girl Who Says He Married Her and Another Testify Against Him.

Oreste del Noce, who says he is an Italian Count and who, the police say, was formerly an officer in the Italian Army, was held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Appleton, in the Harlem Court, for trial on charges growing out of his discovery and arrest a few days ago in his flat, at 139 West 116th Street, where he was living with 14-year-old Doris Weigle of Cleveland, whom he called his daughter. The little girl was a witness against del Noce, as was also Missouris Varnes, also of Cleveland, who declared that she was del Noce's legal wife.

The Weigle girl repeated testimony which she has given before—that her parents allowed del Noce to adopt her. Missouris Varnes declared that she had been married to del Noce in Cleveland six years ago, when she actually was only 14 years old, though she gave her age as 18. Nine months ago, she said, del Noce practically sold her to a man and told her she was the wife of the purchaser. Del Noce, the woman said, has a wife and a son in Italy.

WILLIAMS SEES McCOOEY.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit President Talks on the Mayor's Veto Power.

Col. Timothy S. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, which has received the promise of the assignment of the city's new subways, called yesterday on John H. McCooey, Brooklyn, Democratic leader of Kings County. The sections of the proposed City Charter which refer to subway matters were discussed.

Mr. Williams had nothing to say after the conference, but Mr. McCooey admitted that they talked about the Charter, especially the clause relating to the veto power of the Mayor in subway affairs.

"Col. Williams talked of that provision," he said, "but our conversation generally was simply about transit matters."

It is reported that the Kings Democratic members of the Legislature have received instructions from Charles F. Murphy, through McCooey, to vote for the Charter, and had decided to obey the mandate of Tammany.

SAYS HUMAN EYE INDICATES A GOD

Prof. MacDonald Argues That Maker of It Must Have Had Perfect Knowledge of Optics.

ARGUES FROM BRAIN ALSO

Scientist Before British Association Says Its Workings Show a Soul Possibly Independent of Life.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—A new statement of the relation of the soul to the senses of man has been enunciated by Prof. MacDonald at the meeting of the British Association at Portsmouth. Prof. MacDonald's view is regarded by physiologists as offering a great stimulus to research, and it provides for the general public a new exposition of the theory of belief in a Divinity, following the general lines of Paley's famous argument from the watch.

Prof. MacDonald began by arguing that the eye of man was as perfect an optical instrument as could be devised and could only be made by "some external agency" cognizant of all the properties of light. This agency, he said, had full knowledge of the part played by matter and the special arrangement of matter in reflecting, refracting, and absorbing light. This perfect instrument, he added, was formed in the embryo before direct light could reach it.

Starting from this study of the human eye, the professor showed that similar arguments applied not less forcibly to the brain and mind of man, and he used this analogy to help the belief that man had a soul. Man's brain, like his eye, Prof. MacDonald said, was affected by mysterious causes. "Such phenomena as sleep and deep anaesthesia familiarize us with the fact that the mind is not necessarily always associated with the brain, but only when in a certain condition." It was still possible, he thought, that the brain was an instrument traversed, as freely as the ear by sound, by some unknown influence which found resonance within it. The brain's workings and the will power suggested, he said, that the brain was mysteriously affected by invisible and untraceable harmonies. In this connection Prof. MacDonald said he could not avoid the use of the word "soul," and argued that "soul" might be independent of life or living matter, as we know it.

As in the case of the eye, it was natural to suppose, he declared, the existence of some external agent over and above natural selection, which would have done no more than assist in the process.

In a passage of great imaginative power Prof. MacDonald then compared the action of the brain on the soul with that of the harp acted upon by what they used to call "music spheres."

VITAOPATHIST TO BE TRIED.

Women Detectives Testify That Voigt Undertook to Cure Them.

Fritz Voigt, who calls himself a vitaopathist, hypnotic and magnetic healer, of 348 East Ninth Street, was held by Magistrate Herrmann in the Essex Market Court yesterday in $300 bail for the Court of Special Sessions, charged with violating the State laws relating to the practice of medicine. Voigt was arrested a week ago on evidence furnished by Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, a police matron, and Miss Belle Holmes, agent for the Medical Society of New York County.

Mrs. Goodwin testified that on Aug. 8 Voigt treated her for pains in the head. He felt her pulse, and after telling her to take two glasses of water and an apple every day, began, she said, what he called his "magnetic treatment," which consisted in passing his finger tips over her face and body, ending by clapping his hands together and blowing loudly in her ears. He then gave her an electrical massage.

Voigt told Mrs. Goodwin, she alleged, that a course of treatment which would cure her would cost $15, but he finally consented to take $10 for it. She paid him $2 on account.

Miss Holmes told of a call on Voigt on Aug. 10 and of receiving similar treatment to that given to Mrs. Goodwin.

Voigt's lawyer tried to prove by several witnesses that he did not profess to cure physical ills, and that he was merely a masseur.

Magistrate Herrmann held Voigt for Special Sessions.

NEW TRICK WITH BAD CHECKS

C. H. C. Beakes, Thinking He Is Helping a Friend, Loses $50.

A new form of swindle has victimized a number of New York merchants during the past few weeks and its author has not yet been caught. C. H. C. Beakes, proprietor of the Beakes Dairy Company, 206 East Twelfth Street, is the original complainant. Some time ago a man called him on the telephone saying that he was Wilford Wood, a coal merchant of 142 Pacific Street, and asked if Mr. Beakes would cash a check for $50. Mr. Wood had been ill at his country place in Mountainville and Mr. Beakes was therefore not surprised at the request.

He assented, and a few minutes later a messenger appeared with the check. Some days later it was returned by the bank with the remark, "Signature not correct." Yesterday, when he returned to New York, Mr. Wood was informed of the swindle.

Further investigation developed that Charles V. Linn, a Brooklyn carriage manufacturer, and J. J. Netter, a druggist at 98 Court Street, Brooklyn, had been approached in a similar manner. They had been suspicious, however, and had refused to give any money. A complaint to the police has been made, but as yet there is no clue to the swindler.

Mr. Wood is a well-known horseman, and at one time owned large stables at the old Guttenberg and Gloster, N. J., race tracks. He is now the owner of a stock farm in Orange County.

CHARGED FOR BEING INSANE.

Allenists Allowed $600 Out of Mrs. Perkins's Estate—Her Lawyer Protests.

William H. Hale, counsel for Mrs. Jennie Perkins, the recluse, pronounced by alienists to be incompetent, appeared yesterday before Justice Putnam in the Brooklyn Supreme Court to protest against the court's recent order to pay from the estate of Mrs. Perkins $600 for alienists, who pronounced her insane; $700 to a lawyer, and several other smaller expenses.

"It is a shameful looting of what money the poor woman has been able to scrape togther, and I am so angry about it I could bite through a file," said Mr. Hale. The entire estate had been found worth only $2,300. Justice Putnam referred the matter to Justice Kelly, who signed the order for the payment of these items.

Mrs. Williams was taken some months ago from a shanty at 452 Prospect Place, Brooklyn. Neighbors had complained of the unsanitary condition of the hut. The police found it unfit to live in. When taken to the police station Mrs. Williams said she was a friend of J. P. Morgan.

UNREST IN MEXICO TILL AFTER ELECTION

Dr. Rowe of University of Pennsylvania Fears a Break Between de la Barra and Madero.

BUT PATRIOTISM RULES NOW

Firm Action Has Put Down Insurgency in Places and Republic Is Quieting—Dependence on Peaceful Election.

Dr. L. S. Rowe of the University of Pennsylvania, who has been a delegate to the Pan-American Conference at Rio Janeiro, reached New York yesterday on the steamship Morro Castle. He spent several months in Mexico, studying the new conditions there, and while he paid his tribute yesterday to the firmness with which President de la Barra, supported by Madero, had met the rebellious attitude of the local revolutionary leaders, he said that every patriotic Mexican will breathe more freely when the election is over.

"In the present anomalous political situation," he said, "the great danger is the possibility of a break between de la Barra and Madero.

"The day I left Vera Cruz the new régime had just successfully passed through the most serious crisis since the downfall of Gen. Diaz. The pacification of the country has been fraught with many serious difficulties and dangers. The disappearance of a strong, central government and the substitution therefor of a provisional and temporary authority, encouraged the unruly elements of the population to profit by the temporary relaxation of authority.

"Local revolutionary leaders attempted to inaugurate a reign of terror in several sections of the republic. Fortunately the provisional President, supported by the national leader of the revolution, has met the situation with a degree of firmness which has not only relieved the uneasiness, but has created a feeling of confidence throughout the republic in the ability of the Government to maintain order and to protect life and property.

"The supreme test came when one of the revolutionary leaders in the State of Morelos, Emiliano Zapata, refused to obey the order of the Government to disband his forces. The prompt dispatch of a large force of Government troops and the announcement by Madero that these revolutionary forces must be disbanded without delay, prevented a serious conflict which for a time seemed imminent. Had the Government failed to disband this force of revolutionists the situation throughout the republic would soon have become intolerable.

"The promptness with which order was restored in Morelos will serve as a lesson to revolutionary leaders throughout the country, who may be tempted to play the part of local tyrants.

"The immediate future depends in a large measure on the continuance of close co-operation between President de la Barra and Francisco Madero. If this should continue unbroken it is likely that the Presidential elections in October will not only be orderly, but will also register the popular will. The great danger is the possibility of a break between the two men. With at least three and possibly more candidates in the field, every patriotic Mexican will breathe more easily when the election is over and the new President installed.

"Pending the elections, business interests throughout the republic are suffering severely. Even those who have entire confidence in the future of the country are unwilling to undertake any new enterprise until after the Government has shown its ability to maintain order during the elections. Conditions at the present time are abnormal. The patriotic devotion of President de la Barra is carrying the country through a period more critical in many respects than the struggle for independence in 1810, or the conflict for the maintenance of national supremacy brought about by French intervention in the sixties."

TERRIERS GIVE ALARM.

George Bowles, Theatrical Manager, and His Family Escape from Flames.

Fire destroyed the greater part of the Summer home of George Bowles, general manager for Wagenhals & Kemper, at Port Washington, L. I., early yesterday morning. The timely warning sounded by Mr. Bowles's two bull terriers, Bumps and Bubbles, were all that saved the occupants from perishing in the flames.

Mr. Bowles occupied, with his wife and 14-year-old daughter, Dorothy, and Mrs. Bowles's mother, Mrs. George A. Duncan, the second floor of a three-story frame dwelling which stands on a crest on Bayview Avenue. Mrs. Duncan, on her way to New York from her home in Burlington, Iowa, three weeks ago, was stricken with paralysis, and was absolutely helpless when the alarm of fire was sounded. The two bull terriers slept on the floor of Mr. Bowles's room. The maid, Ellie Phelan, occupied the third floor. All the occupants of the house had retired early Thursday evening.

At 10 o'clock Mrs. Bowles awoke her husband, saying that she smelled smoke. A tour of inspection, however, disclosed no evidence of fire in the house. At 1 A. M. the two dogs began barking and scratching and jumped on Mr. Bowles's bed. The door leading to the hall was closed, but Mr. Bowles detected the faint odor of smoke. He rushed into the hall.

When the door swung open a volume of smoke burst into the room. The whole lower floor seemed aflame. Mrs. Bowles and her daughter dashed through the smoke and made their escape by the front stairs while Mr. Bowles carried his invalid mother-in-law after them. Then he ran to the third floor and awakened the maid, who lost no time in making her escape by the stairs. On his way downstairs, Mr. Bowles stumbled and fell, cutting a gash in his head.

Within two minutes after all the occupants of the house, including Bumps and Bubbles, were safe on the lawn, the fire had crept through the roof, and the front staircase was all aflame. Some of the neighbors, among them many actors, reached the scene soon after and took care of the scantily clothed occupants. The Volunteer Fire Department arrived also and saved a part of the building.

The fire is supposed to have started in the kitchen, although the gas in the kitchen range, it was said, had been turned off. It spread through the stairwell, burning out completely the centre and back of the house. The damage is estimated at $3,500.

Mr. Bowles and his family, after spending the rest of the night with neighbors, boarded his yacht Mijes in the morning. They expect to live on Hempstead Bay until repairs to their house can be made.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Remarkable pitching featured two sensational battles between the Phillies and New York Giants at Broad and Huntingdon Streets this afternoon. The Giants captured both games, the first 3 to 2 in eleven bitterly fought innings, the second contest progressing the regulation innings, with New York a victor, 2 to 0.

Moore vs. Mathewson in the opening engagement and Stack opposed to Marquard in the final conflict composed the quartet of pitchers that gave a crowd of 12,000 spectators as fine an exhibition of the pitching art as has ever been seen in a double-header in this city. Every one of the twirlers did superior work. But the supreme performance, one of the most wonderful games ever pitched, was given by "Rube" Marquard. Without doubt the left-handed youth pitched the greatest game of his career, only a trifle short of the ace of perfection.

Only twenty-eight men faced Marquard in nine innings. Not a pass or a hit batsman marred his splendid command. Not a wild pitch detracted from his perfect control. Only one batsman hit safely, this exception to the rule being Luderus, who placed the ball hard and solidly between first and second bases in the fifth inning, after Marquard had struck out Magee and Beck. Had "Luddy" not made this hit Marquard would have been credited with the most perfect game of ball that it is possible to pitch. To add to his spectacular performance, Marquard retired ten batsmen on strikes, Knabe and Madden being the only players to escape being retired via the strike-out route. Marquard has won his last three games with a total of four hits.

Against Marquard was pitted Stack. The latter also pitched superior ball. While not so remarkable or sensational as the work of his opponent, nevertheless Stack was so good that he would have required extra innings on the part of the Giants had he been properly supported. The leaders gathered eight hits from his delivery, but they were so scattered that runs would not have resulted had not poor judgment and errors made them possible. Stack's work was entitled to a better fate, but in view of the surpassing performance of Marquard, the big Quaker had little cause to complain over his defeat.

Moore distinctly outpitched Mathewson in the curtain raiser. Sharper defense and an element of luck, however, decided the contest in favor of the Giants. New York also utilized their hits to much better scoring effect than did the Quakers. Of the eight hits made off Moore's pitching three were accumulated in the sixth inning, when New York counted two runs, while two more were bunched in the eleventh for the deciding tally. Contrasted against New York's wasting of only three hits was the total of seven hard, solid safeties that did not figure in the Phillies run making. Moore was brilliantly erratic. Five times he displayed his prowess by remarkable work in critical stages. In the first inning, for instance, he passed the first two men up and then the third man sacrificed. He then filled the bases with another gift, yet the Giants could not score with only one out when the bases were choked. In the sixth he was hit for a double and two singles. He added to this collection by hitting two batsmen, but the Giants could only profit to the extent of two runs.

Mathewson was the crafty artist of old. "Big Six" hardly exerted himself until he was in difficulties, and then he put on steam and used all his curves. His head was also working in these exigencies. That he did not give a pass and the Phillies failed to utilize seven hits proved conclusively that Matty supplemented the skill of his arm with the cunning of his head.

The fielding in both games was as remarkable as the pitching. Phenomenal plays were made by both teams in both games. Circus stops and sensational catches not only limited the number of hits on both sides, but they also kept the runs down.

Magee clearly carried off the individual honors of the day. His work was brilliant in every respect. In the first game he hit safely the first four times to bat, his second hit being a long home run crash into the left field bleachers that gave the Phillies the first run of the contest. His catch of Doyle's short fly back of shortstop in the seventh inning was a marvelous bit of work. He captured the fly while running at top speed, taking the ball right at his shoe tops by making a diving catch.

In the second inning of the second game Magee and Lobert came in violent collision while running after Herzog's foul fly. Both men were stunned by the force of contact. Magee was the first to rise, limping badly. Lobert resumed his position for the inning, but Walsh supplanted him in the succeeding inning. While Magee finished the game, he limped painfully and may not be able to play to-morrow.

Both teams had opportunities to score early in the first game, but it was not until two were out in the fourth inning that Magee counted first for the Phillies by driving the ball into the left-field bleachers. The Quakers scored another in the succeeding session. Luderus led off with a single to left. Doolin hit sharply in the same territory. Devore tried to make a catch, but seeing his mistake, backed away from the ball, and the drive escaped him for a triple, Luderus counting. Both Madden and Moore were retired on strikes, while Devore pulled down Knabe's line fly close to the foul line while under top speed.

The Quakers could not score after the fifth inning. They had many runners on, but when it came to the crucial test of making a hit to score the runners Mathewson proved his mettle. A great catch by Murray in the ninth inning also aided Mathewson. The big outfielder ran under the score-board walk and took Beck's smash that looked good for extra bases. Again, in the tenth, Murray fielded Moores' long hit sharply and by a great throw retired the big pitcher at second.

New York did not make a hit off Moore until the sixth inning, when they located his curves for a double and two singles, which, aided by two hit batsmen, gave the Giants two runs, a sufficient number to tie the score. From the first to the sixth Moore pitched superbly. Doyle opened the sixth with a double to right and came home on Snodgrass's safe punch to left. On Murray's unassisted out at first base, Snodgrass went to second. Moore then lost control and filled the sacks by hitting Merkle and Herzog. Fletcher was retired on strikes, but Meyers whacked a single to right, on which Snodgrass scored. Mathewson fouled to Lobert.

The teams had equal opportunities to score a deciding run before New York put it over in the eleventh. Lack of an opportune hit and splendid fielding alone prolonged the battle to eleven rounds. Fletcher opened the eleventh with a single to right centre. He stole second and went to third on Meyers's infield out. Matty fanned, but Devore proved the man of the minute by lacing the ball to the right-field wall for a double, Fletcher scoring.

While every other part of the second game was subordinated to the magnificent exhibition of Marquard, the contest was not without a general interest. While not so brilliant as his performance, Stack was sufficiently effective to prevent New York from scoring up to the eighth inning. The Giants had one or more runners on the bases in every one of the nine innings, but only in the eighth could they complete the circuit. In some respects Stack duplicated the work of Moore in the first game. He was erratically effective, but not to the extent that Moore was.

Splendid stops by Doolan and Walsh, and fine running catches by Paskert, held the Giants at bay until the eighth. Then, when it seemed that the Phillies might prevent the leaders from scoring in this inning, they suddenly collapsed, and New York won an unearned but merited victory on the strength of Marquard's masterly pitching. Fletcher opened the eighth inning by receiving the only base on balls handed out by Stack. Meyers hit to right centre, and Fletcher raced to third. Marquard was thrown out at first by Stack, Meyers going to second, but Fletcher remained on third. Devore hit to Doolan, who fielded the ball to Madden ahead of Fletcher, but Madden played the ball and runner very badly, and Fletcher slid safely across the plate. Doyle hit to Knabe, who threw to the plate to head off Meyers. Madden relayed to Walsh, and the latter ran down the "Big Chief," Devore moving up to third. Snodgrass offered Walsh a ridiculously easy chance, but "Runt" fumbled, Devore counting. Murray ended the inning with a fly to Paskert.

TAILENDERS FIGHT IN DOUBLE BATTLE

Brooklyn and Boston Teams Each Win a Game at Washington Park.

Brooklyn and Boston, contenders all season for the basement berth in the National League race, mingled in a double-header at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. After four hours of battle, at times exciting but more often unusually tame, the much trimmed athletes wended their way to the clubhouse, each team carrying an even division of the afternoon's spoils. The Superbas captured the getaway session by the score of 8 to 5 and the Rustlers came back strong enough to grab the nightcap number, 4 to 2. A big majority of the Brooklyn fans concluded that four hours of baseball between Brooklyn and Boston was nothing to look at on a pleasant September afternoon, but about 4,000 thought otherwise.

Boston traveled along like sure winners when the Superbas began to gather their clubs for the last half of the fifth inning in the opening game, but the scenery was considerably changed before the Rustlers trotted in from the field. Three properly placed hits, a trifle more than Brooklyn's portion for the entire game, were crowded into this one session, and did their part to push across the five runs which decided the game, but loose playing by the Rustlers was more to blame than any strong stickwork by the Superbas.

The Superbas gathered a run in the second inning on a pass to Davidson, an out, and Zimmerman's single, but Boston evened the score in the next inning on a pass to Kling and singles by Tyler and Ingerton. The Rustlers chalked up two more runs in the fourth on passes to Donlin and Miller, McDonald's sacrifice and a single by Gowdy. With the score 3 to 1 against them the Superbas grabbed five runs in the fifth inning. With one out Tooley singled and Tyler walked Daubert and Wheat. Exit Mr. Tyler. Stark greeted Griffin with a single past Bridwell, scoring Tooley. After Davidson had fouled to Kling for the second out, Ingerton allowed Coulson's grounder to float through his fingers, and before the Rustlers were through throwing the ball around Daubert, Wheat, and Stark had trotted home, and Coulson rested on third base. He scored on a single by Zimmerman. Brooklyn picked up two more runs in the eighth inning on Bergen's walk, Rucker's single, passes to Tooley and Daubert, and a fielder's choice. Boston got two runs in the ninth inning on a pass to Ingerton, Bridwell's single, a fielder's choice, and Donlin's double. Nineteen bases on balls, eleven to Brooklyn and eight to Boston, played a prominent part in the scoring by both teams.

In the second game Brown, who did the pitching for the visitors, had the Superbas helpless all the way. He was reached for seven hits, but they came in six different innings and caused little damage. Timely hitting off Knetzer gave the Rustlers their four runs.

Bridwell's single, Jackson's triple, and Miller's single gave the visitors a brace of runs in the first inning, and they doubled their score in the third inning when Donlin doubled to right after Ingerton and Bridwell had walked. This ended their scoring, but it was enough to win. Brooklyn scored in the first inning on Tooley's single, an out, and Stark's single. A pass to Erwin, an out, and a single by Daubert chased across Brooklyn's other run in the eighth inning. The scores:

TRAVIS BEATS HILTON.

British Amateur Golf Champion Outplayed in Four-Ball Match.

A second visit to Garden City yesterday by Harold H. Hilton, Great Britain's champion amateur golfer, resulted less favorably to the redoubtable foreigner, who was beaten in a four-ball match by Walter J. Travis. As on Wednesday, Hilton made his morning round with Philip Samson, whom he had no difficulty in defeating, even after allowing him half a stroke a hole. Later on Hilton and Samson teamed up against Travis and J. M. Rhett.

From the moment the Garden City pair won the first hole they never managed to get level, let alone up. Hilton started unsteadily, underplaying his approach out of the rough to the trap at the first green and falling in the pit guarding the third green on another underplayed mashie. This enabled the home pair to become 2 up. Hilton played sound golf from there on, but even so it availed nothing, for Travis was invincible. Out in 39, he had Hilton 2 down at the turn, the Briton taking 41. Travis and Rhett were also 2 up on the opposition.

Starting for home, Hilton topped his drive from the tenth tee, but got a halve in 5, as the others also made a hash of this hole. The man from Hoylake reduced the Garden City team's lead to 1 at the twelfth, where Travis's tee shot overran the green beyond the mound. A deadly approach at the thirteenth, which enabled Travis to get a 4, and a thirty-foot put for a 3 on the next green placed the Travis side 3 up. Halves in 4s at the next two left Travis and Rhett winners by 3 up and 2 to play. Travis beat Hilton by the same margin. The best ball of the winning pair was 73, as against 77 for the opposition. This was also Hilton's score. Travis had 75. The best-ball scores were:

GOLF AT VAN CORTLANDT.

J. M. Clarke Defeats Dan Healy in Amateur Tournament.

Encouraged by fine weather, golfers competing in the tournament open to amateurs of the greater city on the public links at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday were reduced to eight players. Owing to the better condition of the course in most cases both winners and losers played better golf than on Thursday. There was only one match carried to extra holes, that between J. M. Clarke of Amherst and Dan Healy, unattached. The round was made in 78 by both players, the first extra hole being halved in 5, Healy slicing his drive, and Clarke, after practically driving the green, fussing around with four puts. Healy missed a yard put on the next green, which cost him the hole and the match, Clarke getting a four. The summary:

First Division.—First Round—D. G. McConnell, New York Golf Club, beat Dr. T. W. Martin, New York. G. C., 3 up and 2 to play; A. E. Clarke, unattached, beat Dr. J. T. Smith, unattached, 2 up; P. H. New York Printers Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 1.—By defeating the New York team, 11 to 6, at League Park this afternoon, the Chicago entry in the printer's National baseball tourney enters the final combat with Cincinnati to-morrow afternoon. One blustering inning tells the tale of the fracas, a bevy of nine runs in the sixth inning completely swamping the Manhattan typos. Prior to this stage the game had run amicably along, a pair of tallies being all that each team scored.

Newport Tennis Final To-day.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 1.—Because of the poor condition of the turf on the championship court, the finals in the all-comers' tournament for the National lawn tennis championship were postponed until to-morrow at 11 A. M., when the two survivors, Beals C. Wright of Boston and Maurice E. McLaughlin of San Francisco, will meet. The challenge match will be played on Monday. The winner of the finals will be pitted against William A. Larned, the National champion.

The British Lawn Tennis Association was notified to-day by President D. Wight of the American Association that the West Side Tennis Club of New York objected to a postponement of the international trial matches, which are scheduled to be played on its courts on Sept. 7, 8, and 9 by English and American teams.

Schlechter Beaten Again.

CARLSBAD, Sept. 1.—The chess masters today played the ninth round of the international tournament at the Kurhaus, with the following results: Perlis defeated Jaffe, Johner defeated Alechine, Rotlewi defeated Suechting, Duras defeated Schlechter, Leonhart defeated Burn, and Teichmann defeated Chajes. The games between Kostic and Spielmann, Rabinowitsch and Salwe, Rubinstein and Tartakower, Cohn and Marshall, and Niemzowitsch and Vidmar were drawn. Chetimirski and Loewenfisch and Fahrni and Alapin adjourned their contests.

Washington didn't even kick up any sort of a fuss on the Hilltop yesterday when the Yankees came back to the native heath after their final invasion of the West. Meek and mild was Jimmy McAleer's team as they unhesitatingly submitted to a dip in the whitewash tub by a score of 6 to 0. The Yankees looked spry and wideawake in contrast to the snoozing Nationals. The team from the proud Nation's capital looks and acts as if it had adopted for its slogan "What's the use?"

Roy Caldwell pitched one of his best games. Five scattered hits represented Washington's efforts at plastering the leather. He didn't give a pass, and he added to the luster of his flinging by smacking out a jolt that scored two runs. Only one Senator got to second base, and that was Walker, who made a scratch hit to Knight in the seventh inning and went down when Blair failed to stop Daniels's throw-in from right field after catching McBride's fly. They didn't know what third base looked like.

The Yankees stick work was timely, and hard. A young fusilade of long hits in the second inning drove Bob Groom to cover, and Becker wasn't treated to much better consideration. The win, with Boston's two defeats, puts the Yankees up in third place, 12 points ahead of the Red Sox. Bill Dineen, the umpire, made his first appearance on the Hilltop this season. Jack Sheridan is yet to come.

The Yankees fell savagely on Groom for three lusty hits in the second inning. Earl Gardner dented the left field fence and got to third base, when the ball was tardily returned. Fitzgerald hoisted an easy one to McBride, and Blair's double to the score-board sent Gardner home. Caldwell died on a fly to Milan, and Wolter cracked a hard drive to right field for three bases, scoring Blair. Daniels coaching at third foolishly advised Wolter to go home, and he was nipped at the plate, Gessler to McBride to Street. Groom then bid adieu to the game at Mr. McAleer's polite suggestion. "Buck" Becker went to the firing line.

"Buck" became unruly in the fourth inning and bounded the ball off Gardner's anatomy. Wilkinson, who took Fitzgerald's berth in left field, spilled a spunky bunt along the first-base line. Street and Henry collided in their anxiety to get the ball, and the runner was safe. Caldwell displayed a tremendous interest in the game at this point by poling a jolt to centre field, registering Gardner and Wilkinson. Wolter then rolled a grounder to first base and was put out by Henry. Wolter said the ball hit his ankle and made a holler to Umpire Perrine. Getting no satisfaction, Wolter threw his bat in the air in disgust and was unceremoniously ejected from the fray, Daniels succeeding him in the sun field.

Profitable activity was resumed by the Yanks in the fifth session. Chase singled to left and Hartzell was thrown out at first base by Becker. Knight got an infield hit, and Chase traveled to third. Gardner pummeled out his second long hit, a double to left, scoring Chase and Knight. Gardner perished trying to stretch the hit into a triple.

Caldwell never slipped once during the tussle, and he mowed the Nationals down with ease. They hit the ball everywhere except at a bald spot.

For the Yankees the afternoon's effort wasn't as difficult as abstracting confectionery from a child.

World's Champions Win Twice.

BOSTON, Sept. 1—Although Boston outbatted Philadelphia in both games of a double header to-day, the world's champions won out in each contest, 1 to 0, and 3 to 1. The first game was a pitcher's battle between Bender and Cicotte, Cicotte excelling, Yerkes' error gave the Athletics the only run. Uncertain fielding by Boston lost the second game. Score:

AUTOMOBILE RACES TO-DAY.

Bob Burman and Other Drivers Will Compete at Brighton Beach.

Brighton Beach Motordrome is said to be in excellent condition for the big series of automobile racing events to be decided this afternoon and Monday. Most of the kingpins of the automobile racing game will be seen in competition, and all indications point to new marks being made in the different events.

Six entries in the free for all, three of them 200 horse power cars, and all of them driven by skilled pilots, means that the Remy Brassard and Trophy will be more stubbornly competed for than ever before.

Knipper, Patschke, Disbrow, Cobe, Hughes, and Tower are a few of the gasoline gladiators who will circle Brighton in an effort to land in first place. Knipper has groomed his big red Mercedes until it is the real "red devil" of its clan. The car which Camile Janatzy, the Pole, lowered records with, is much faster since its change of ignition from a make and break to a jump spark has been perfected.

H. Judson Kilpatrick will also be on hand with a speedy car, and just how fast the big Hotchkiss is remains to be seen. Cobe will pilot his Jackson. Cobe and Disbrow will also drive.

Amour Ferguson promises to be a thorn in the side of the fast little fellows, and is, after Jack Tower and his teammate, Evans, with the E-M-F. The Correja will also be on the job to worry Hughie Hughes, while Richter will show New Yorkers how fast the Opel is.

Hughie Hughes, the driver of many races and winner of the Kane Trophy at the Elgin road races a week ago, is in fine fettle and bristling with confidence for the fray. Burman is anxious to trim his already low world's records, and the big Blitzen Benz is running better than ever. At every meet this year that the Speed King has raced at he has either lowered a world's record or easily trimmed seconds off of Barney Oldfield's favorte marks. Burman states that he will win the Brassard. Ralph De Palma must either defend or forfeit the W. B. Trophy, valued at $2,500, which he won last July. The trophy will be raced for to-day.

TWO TEN-ROUND DRAWS.

Stone and Howard in Even Battle at 20th Century A. C.

Harry Stone, the Ghetto lightweight, and Willie Jones of Brooklyn clashed in a return bout of ten rounds before the Twentieth Century A. C. last night and the contest went the full distance without either being able to show any marked superiority over the other. At the finish Howard's face was covered with blood, and he bore the appearance of a badly defeated pugilist, but it was due to the reopening of an old cut over his left eye. Both were strong at the finish.

Howard had a few pounds advantage over his opponent, but Stone had the advantage in height and reach. Howard did most of the aggressive work during the bout, and was at all times anxious to carry the fighting to Stone, who relied on his cleverness to stop his rushing opponent. The tide of battle turned continually, one round showing Stone far in the front, and the next one showing Howard setting an equally fast pace. Several times during the ten rounds the boys stood toe to toe and pounded as fast as their arms could move, but during a big part of the encounter the going was considerably slowed up by clinching and wrestling tactics.

The semi-final was a fast ten-round draw between Young Mickey McDonough of Brooklyn and Bobby Reynolds, the Philadelphia boxer. The latter was substituted for Young Reilly, and put up a strong fight. As was the case in the headliner, which followed, the boys alternated in setting the pace and the finish found both strong and fighting hard.

MISS STOKES'S FUTURITY.

New York Mare Wins $5,000 Stakes in Readville Racing.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 1.—Miss Stokes, owned and bred by W. E. D. Stokes of New York, was a handy winner of the American Horse Breeders' Futurity, valued at $7,000, of which $5,000 goes to the first horse, at the Grand Circuit races at Readville to-day. It marked the opening of the meet, rain having caused postponements since Tuesday. The track was heavy.

In the two-year-old division of the Breeders' Futurity to-day the laurels went to Princess Todd, the property of Miss Katherine Wilks of Galt, Ontario. In the first heat she was pressed by Junior Watts, but the second heat she gathered in easily. Miss De Forest jogged home a winner in the pacing division of the Futurity.

The 2:16 trot was the best race of the day. Eva Tanguay, the New York mare, barely gained the first heat by a neck from Baron Aberdeen. The second heat looked like a dead heat between Peter Red and Eva Tanguay, but the judges saw Peter Red first. Geers, driver of Peter Red, had speed to spare in the two remaining heats.

One Race at Staten Island Fair.

One event, the 2:15 class pace for the Chamber of Commerce purse, valued at $1,000, was decided yesterday at the Staten Island Fair, Dongan Hills, S. I. Seven horses were entered and it required the full limit of five heats before the winner, H. B. Clarke's black gelding Dick Mason, driven by Rube Smith, was announced.

FRANCE, ENGLAND, AND RUSSIA.

Does any one, even the statesmen who are responsible for it, know precisely what the "Triple Entente" is, what obligations the several parties to it assume, what benefits it is meant to secure to them, and, especially, how long it is likely to last? On this question, or bunch of questions, there is a pronounced difference of opinion in each of the three countries involved. and much difference between the opinions of each and those of the others. This obscurity and confusion, however, are hardly more than might be expected from an "understanding" which is not an alliance, and is not defined in any formal treaty. It has the defects and weakness of its uncovenanted form, but also, it is in some ways more effective and may prove more fruitful than a hard-and-fast agreement.

The entente may be described succinctly, but with a fair degree of accuracy, as an informal pact between the Governments of France, Great Britain, and Russia to aid each other in all practicable ways against aggression. It is, therefore, very much the same in aim and may be much the same in effect, as the Triple Alliance between Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy, and it is undoubtedly intended as a counterpoise to the latter, and as a means of maintaining as long and as well as may be, the present balance of power among the six great nations. Nor is there much room for doubt that the element of uneasiness and even of anxiety in the European situations which gave rise to the entente was supplied by Germany. It is a tangled story, that of the events of the last decade out of which the present alignment has been wrought, but there is one thread of consistent and significant fact that runs through it. It is the steady increase in the war preparations of Germany, the perfecting of its already powerful army and the heavy additions to its navy on the one hand, and on the other the eagerness for expansion, not only commercial, but political, that prevails in influential classes in Germany and not infrequently finds expression from persons high in power. "I think that I can assume," said the German Emperor the other day at Hamburg, "that Hamburgers desire that the navy be further strengthened so as to insure that nobody will dispute that place in the world which is our due." That has often been the note of imperial utterance. It was impossible that it should be ignored by the Powers participating in the Triple Entente. If their statesmen believed—as they had good reason to believe—that the actual place of Germany in the world was not, and would not be, disputed, they were compelled to ask themselves, what change in that place was being planned by Germany and at whose expense. And they were impelled by common prudence to seek to provide such harmony of policy as would give to each the defensive power of all, should occasion arise requiring it.

The Triple Entente is not altogether approved by opinion in either of the three countries involved. In England a section of the Liberal Party, led by The Daily News, vigorously and even violently, condemns it as imposing heavy cost and sacrifice and risk, with no adequate advantage. In France the extreme Radicals take a like view of it. In Russia, where, however, there is little organized public opinion, it is criticised on the ground that neither France nor England could, or would, give effective aid were Russia attacked on her western borders. But so far it may fairly be said that the entente has gradually gained in strength, and that it is more likely to be reinforced than abandoned or even weakened. Such manifestations as that which the German Emperor has just now taken occasion to indulge in are calculated to quiet criticism and to make the entente seem more desirable, not to say needful. Its value and its justification depend upon its maintenance as a purely defensive measure. This ought not to be difficult. The fact that the entente is not an alliance and is defined by no treaty reduces very much the risk that any of the parties to it should engage in an aggressive policy which would drag its associates into a struggle not necessary or desired. And if the aim of the entente be kept defensive, its continued existence should tend, on the whole, to the maintenance of peace, and all the more effectively in the ratio that it grows in strength among the peoples concerned. As a counterpoise to the Triple Alliance it may well secure that condition of equilibrium which is favorable to discussion, diplomacy, and peaceful adjustment of such differences as may arise. Even Germany may safely rely on it as really an aid, rather than an obstacle, to the attainment of the satisfaction of the legitimate aspirations of her people.

THE GEIDEL VERDICT.

The jury in the trial of the boy GEIDEL, who murdered Mr. WILLIAM HENRY JACKSON, pondered, argued, and muddled over the evidence and the Judge's charge for eighteen hours and a half, and then returned a verdict which is clearly unsatisfactory and repugnant to the best sense of this community. If murderers like THAW and GEIDEL can escape the prescribed penalty of the law, why should there be any convictions of murder in the first degree? GEIDEL entered Mr. JACKSON'S apartment to rob, and in the commission of this felony also committed murder. The letter and the spirit of the law are obviously disregarded in the verdict rendered, and trial by jury has failed again.

The jurors who forced the unsatisfactory verdict were undoubtedly moved by sentiment. The prisoner was a youth, and theatrical effect was produced by the defense through the presence in court of his mother. But sentiment should not influence juries, nor should disinclination to send a young murderer to the death chair impel them to depart from the plain path of duty. The law prescribes the death penalty for murder in the first degree, and there is no evidence of a disposition on the part of the people of this State to change the law in that respect. While the law exists its enforcement should not be shirked.

No blame whatever attaches to the District Attorney's office for the partial failure of justice in this horrible case. Mr. NOTT conducted the prosecution from first to last with perfect fairness, moderation, and dignity, and displayed admirable self-control under trying circumstances. He presented to the jurors a perfectly clear case. The charge of the Judge seems to have been equally clear. But tender-hearted jurors were moved by conditions which should not have influenced them. As for the defense, it was successful only in its appeal to mistaken sentiment. Some of its proceedings, however, would assuredly justify investigation by the Bar Association. The attempt to blacken the character of the murderer's victim was utterly contemptible. It proved futile, but the purpose was manifested, and it seems that such practice should be subjected to searching examination.

MORE WATER.

Water Commissioner THOMPSON is to be congratulated on taking the first step, after many days of deliberation, to provide this borough and the Bronx with an extra supply of water in case of a water famine. On his appeal the Board of Estimate has consented to appropriate $1,200,000 to install a connecting pipe line between Ten Mile River and the Croton watershed, providing the Commissioner obtains the further approval of the board before he spends any of the money.

This is, obviously, a beginning. The fact that the Croton and its feeding springs and streams have been replenished by heavy rains, coincident with the Commissioner's action, leads us to hope that New York will not have a water famine before the connection with Ten Mile River is completed. There should be as little delay as possible, however. There are legal complications to be overcome, while the engineering work and construction will require three or four months. We have more water than we had, but not enough, and no large city should be forced to too strict economy in the use of water.

AN ALL-THE-YEAR CONFERENCE.

The idea of "Committees of Correspondence" which germinated in the fertile brains of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN and THOMAS JEFFERSON, and resulted in a permanent organization of patriots who planned the American Revolution, brought the thirteen original States into harmonious agreement, and, in the convention of 1787, produced a Constitution and a bi-cameral Legislature, seems to have sprung anew in the mind of Gov. AUGUSTUS E. WILLSON of Kentucky. Despite the precautions of the fathers, the States of this Union still work loose-jointedly. They have not learned the economies of scientific management. In a memorandum issued under the seal of Kentucky to the Governors of every State, who will gather shortly at Spring Lake, N. J., Gov. WILLSON complains of the "lost motions" in their Governments.

This State, for example, has at great expense made an exhaustive investigation and report upon the problem of employers' liability and workingmen's compensation. So thoroughly, ably, and brilliantly has the Wainwright Commission done its work that no commission need be appointed in another State to duplicate it. Yet a dozen other commissions in as many States are laboriously reassembling the data already obtained by Chairman WAINWRIGHT and his associates. What they have gathered need only be considered and applied to local conditions and local problems relating to the employment of labor in every State in this Union. Massachusetts has spent $81,000,000 in experimenting upon the best methods to rid itself of the pest of gypsy and browntail moths. A neighboring State, invaded by the moths, may benefit by the example of Massachusetts, instead of proceeding, as it is about to do, to repeat the expensive process of experiment checkered by failures.

Gov. WILLSON suggests that the State Executives establish a permanent "Committee of Correspondence" which shall, among other things, give close attention to the "lost motions" of the States, by observing the special activities of each Legislature and placing the benefits of its specialties at the disposal of all States that are affected by similar problems. This work can in part be done at the annual meetings of the Governors, but it requires, also, a permanent organization. Gov. WILLSON says:

> The annual meetings of the Governors' Conference, of great value as they are, represent only a small part of their possible usefulness. In three or five days, even under the most advantageous conditions, we can discuss only the smallest arc of the circle of our problems. With an office headquarters, proper organization, adequate funds, and clerical force under the control of the permanent Secretary, the Governors' Conference would always be in session every day in the year.

With such a central clearing house of the documents of legislation, from which each Governor might learn of the best things that are being done in other States, he might by bills and messages place them before his Legislature for enactment. The plan proposed by Gov. WILLSON would provide an efficient instrument for the harmonious development of the States and their effective co-operation.

"BOSS" TWEED WOULD REJOICE.

The Charter under which the Tweed ring operated put some limitations upon the issue of special revenue bonds. The juggling with these issues which characterized the operations of that band of municipal freebooters was accomplished in utter disregard and defiance of the law. But the Cullen-Foley revisers of the Charter calmly ask for a repeal of the law.

Special revenue bonds are issued to cover deficiencies in appropriations or to provide for payments to be made before the tax money is available. They are not payable with moneys from the current tax fund, but from future tax funds. The tax rate of each year is fixed to pay the regular appropriations, less the reserve in the general fund. It may be too low a rate for officials of the Tweed type. If they wish to make reckless and excessive expenditures, they find that they cannot obtain issues of bonds that would provide special revenues save for purposes carefully enumerated in the Charter. The present Charter, to be sure, does not provide for every contingency. If the men of Tammany can persuade all the members of the Board of Estimate and three-fourths of the Board of Aldermen to sanction an expenditure not enumerated, they may obtain a special issue, but not to exceed $2,000,000 in any one year.

That provision does not comfort them much. But the Cullen-Foley Charter places no limitation whatever upon issues of special revenue bonds. A Tammany Controller might issue them, without authorization from the Board of Estimate or the Board of Aldermen, to the extent of $5,000,000, $10,000,000, $40,000,000—to any amount, in fact, limited only by the rapacity and greed of the hungriest of all political organizations. Under the subdivisions 9, 11, and 12 of Section 34, for example, special revenues may be raised to satisfy contracts for the removal of ice and snow in any year when the expense exceeds the "appropriations therefor." And Section 1,434 sweeps all legal obstacles to a reign of graft and plunder out into New York Bay and the ocean:

> The Controller shall issue special revenue bonds to the amount that may be required to pay all salaries, compensations, operating and other expenses needed to carry out the purposes of this act, for which appropriation has not been made or for the payment of which funds are not available and for which other provision is not made in this act.

Shades of TWEED and "Slippery DICK! They never dreamed of doing it by law.

AS BIG AS OCEAN SHIPS.

The New York Barge Canal, when completed and equipped with terminals, will float vessels from the Lakes to the seaboard 315 feet in length, 44 feet wide, and each bearing through the gigantic locks 3,000 tons of freight. The new canal boats will be of greater tonnage than the Cunard steamship Scotia, which, up to 1873, was the largest passenger steamer crossing the Atlantic. Each may carry 300,000 bushels of wheat, as much as thirty-seven canal boats of the present type can bear. A barge of this maximum size, towing two consorts under its own power from Chicago to New York, and laden with a cargo of flour that had been towed from St. Paul, or with cotton from St. Louis, towed along the Illinois Drainage Canal—after it shall have been opened to the Mississippi River—may bulk into pretty formidable competition with the railroads.

That, at any rate, is the conviction of Mr. HENRY B. HEBERT, ex-President of the Produce Exchange and Chairman of its Canal Commission, who asks, in a recent number of Waterways, why the Legislature has not yet designated experts to recommend a type of barge best suited to the enlarged canal. The improved canal system of New York State will eventually be a part of the great inland waterways system from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. Mr. HEBERT assumes that the largest barges will be the carriers for "through freight," express boats running on schedule time, and that the smaller barges will find employment in the growing local traffic along the canals. It will be worth something to this ocean port when fleets, say, four a day, of the big freighters arrive from inland ports bringing by express more than 8,000,000 bushels of grain, or an equivalent tonnage of provisions weekly. But they must have proper terminals.

The Barge Terminal bill, to be referred to the people in the Fall election, is thoroughly unsatisfactory. It provides terminals along the line of the canal and at this city, enacting for them ironclad engineering specifications, which, of course, should be subject to change according to future conditions. Moreover, it actually prescribes that the terminal piers may be used by excursion steamers and every description of lighter, loaded or empty, or boats laden with any material, to the exclusion of the canal carriers. Of the cost of the terminals, $19,600,000, this city must pay $15,000,000, receiving for its outlay terminals to cost but $9,740,000. The balance of the $15,000,000 would be spent for the benefit of inland ports. Of course every taxpayer of this city who votes on the referendum next Fall, if he has any insight at all into the nature of this bill, will vote "No."

HOW TO CELEBRATE.

There is much talk about the best way to celebrate Senator SULLIVAN'S Columbus Day, Oct. 12. Thus far the celebration has not been impressive. An appropriate manner of celebration suggests itself, however. COLUMBUS was a person of serious mind, not given to much loitering along the path of duty. He was a hard worker. Why not celebrate the day named for him by working with unusual zeal and vigor?

It falls in almost the busiest time of the year. Bankers and merchants, manufacturers and instructors of the young, are all hard pressed for time along in October. As it has "butted in," superfluously, between Labor Day and Thanksgiving, it is not required as a day of rest and sport. Let us all work on Columbus Day and thus fitly honor the memory of the tireless navigator and discoverer.

The National Highways Protective Society finds that motor-car accidents have increased alarmingly since the Callan law became operative. Seventy-four persons were killed and 522 seriously injured in this State during the three months ended Aug. 31, as compared with but 51 killed and 232 injured during the corresponding months of 1910. Secretary CORNELL thinks the increase of nearly 50 per cent. in persons killed, and of more than 100 per cent. in those seriously injured, is due to the Callan law's increased speed limit of thirty miles an hour, and the practical difficulty of convicting drivers of machines at higher and more reckless speeds. Connecticut has just passed a law reducing the speed limit of cars upon that State's highways to twenty-five miles an hour.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Salary or the Example? Does it demoralize boys to pay them $10 a week when other boys in like positions are getting only half as much? This is the contention, both official and journalistic, made out in Chicago with respect to the youths in the City Hall, who, as is sarcastically stated, "are supposed" to render the many small services expected of office boys.

Supposition, it seems, is in this case not borne out by fact, for these favored infants "scorn menial work and quickly acquire the habits and attitude toward the world of the self-satisfied holder of a sinecure."

And on $10 a week! The relation between salary and conduct may be that of cause and effect, but there is at least the possibility that the assumption of the sinecurist's attitude is, instead, a product of that imitative tendency which is so strong in the earlier years of all of us. That would be quite likely in most City Halls.

The suggestion made in Chicago is that these unsatisfactory boys be reformed by reducing their salaries to a normal exiguity, but perhaps they might pitch in and earn what they are now getting if they saw everybody around them doing the same thing. If they didn't, other boys who would could probably be found, even in Chicago.

Garibaldi Wouldn't Talk Thus. In commenting yesterday on the Black Hand outrages, so numerous in this city of late, wonder was expressed at the facility with which a group of Italian criminals, declared by every authority to be extremely small as compared with the honest and industrious majority they exploit, should be able not only to rob that majority, constantly and systematically, but so to terrorize its members that they become in effect the accomplices of the brigands.

Accomplices they are, certainly, every time they pay the ransoms and tributes demanded, and deeper still is the complicity when they refuse to assist the police by giving them the information and the assistance that would make the identification, the capture and the punishment of the Black Handers almost the easiest, instead of quite the most difficult, task that confronts our detectives.

We found this docility of the respectable Italians under a ruthless extortion the more remarkable because, as a race, they are credited with—or accused of—something more than average readiness to use deadly weapons on small provocation, and nobody even suspects them of personal cowardice. Wonder at the existing state of affairs tends to fade away, however, when one reads the explanation of "a prominent Italian," quoted in our news columns yesterday, why the plan of fighting the Black Hand by means of a White Hand came to nothing.

"Suppose we join this White Hand organization," he said. "We are at once marked for death. We could give money to it secretly, and many of us would be willing to do so if it could always be kept secret. But, if it got out that we were fighting the Black Hand, we, or members of our families, or our homes, would be blown up. The risk is too great."

Too great for whom? Greater than what? It is hard to believe that the man who talks like that belongs to the race that produced GARIBALDI and the other men who wore red shirts. If his sentiments are those of the Italian community as a whole it is little wonder that, to fighting for safety, they prefer buying it, and that though they are moved to angry protest by every reference to assassination, bomb-throwing or blackmail which carries an imputation against the Italian race, they are so afraid of a few shabby thieves that they are not moved to face the perils incidental to a short, sharp struggle with them. Yet that struggle could have only one end—the annihilation of the Black Hand. But "the risk is too great!"

He Needs Permits at Once. One of our correspondents, who says he has long been a collector of antique firearms, raises a curious and delicate question when he asks whether, under the new weapon law, he will have to get an official permit for the possession of as many of them as are small enough to be called pistols and to be concealed when carried. Of these, he admits, he has not a few, picked up in the course of a long affliction with this particular form of the collecting mania. They are all in good working order, and though he has no ammunition that could be used in them, and though they are neatly arranged on his walls as "panoplies" in a way little indicative of offensive, or even defensive, intent, he is worried lest their unlicensed "possession" be a misdemeanor and bring upon him the penalties and disgraces of arrest and conviction therefor.

Without pretending to give an opinion equivalent to a Supreme Court decision, we hold that our correspondent is risking fine and imprisonment every day he fails to get as many permits as he has pistols. The law, as we read it, puts its restrictions on pistols as pistols. It doesn't limit its application to pistols of any special kind or age, it distinguishes not the revolver and the "automatic" from their less talkative predecessors, and it does not have a word of exemption for the weapon collector, though doubtless those who drew the law would have done so had they remembered how considerable and real is the difference between him who has one or two pistols for use as terminators of argument and him who acquires them by the dozen because they are old and queer, or because they have what are called "associations."

Apparently, too, while the wording of the law remains as it is, this troubled collector will have to get a new permit every time he decides to add another old pistol to his collection, and the dealer in antiquities who sells him one is going to have troubles of his own unless he demands to see—and sees—the documentary evidence of the customer's right to buy, which depends upon his right to possess.

Almost as much as in our correspondent's anxieties, however, were we interested in his assertion that he understands the term "antique firearms" to include "firearms having unique or unusual features, irrespective of their actual age." It is true that a thing recently made can be, or at least is, called "antique" when it is made in imitation of an ancient form or fashion, but we gravely doubt the antiquity of anything that is merely unique or unusual. With either of those qualities it may be "antic," but though an etymologist has a right to say that is the same word, he wouldn't dare to use it with the same meaning.

A PLAYGOER'S COMPLAINT.

Condemns His Friends' Custom of Talking While the Curtain Is Up.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you aid in a movement to compel, by force of public sentiment, all persons in the audience at serious dramatic performances to remain silent while the curtain is up?

I do not think I am a "grouch," or of an overnervous temperament, or of the prim and severe habit of the extinct type of Puritan. But my very ego—me—self, does revolt at being obliged to take my Shakespeare, or Ibsen, or Thomas, or Shaw, or Barrie, diluted by drivel from before, behind, and at the sides.

Some of my own friends—and otherwise fairly decent people—talk or whisper at serious plays, but I never was able to get from them, or from any one else, any reason, plausible or otherwise, in justification of such an outrage on their neighbors.

Individuals can—as I have proved—stop it in their vicinity by making the offenders against decency realize the measure of their offending. But this always involves a highly unpleasant task of rebuke and the exercise of a militant protection of one's rights distasteful to any man or woman. And no individual ought to be obliged to protect himself in this way. The management of the theatre ought to see that no patron is annoyed by the gabble of his neighbors. This could be done as easily and effectively by the ushers as exactly the same thing is done in every State and Federal court room by the court attendants.

But, better yet, it can be done by the units of the audience—if they are properly instructed. And the press can instruct them. If all the leading papers will hammer away on the gross and inexcusable rudeness and discourtesy of talk or whispering while the curtain is up, the evil will be soon abated. H. R. G.

PILED STONES FOR FRIARS.

Swinked and Sweat and Was Paid His Pence in Mediaeval Fashion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A noted author recently "did time" in a jail, spending his enforced stay in a search for local color on the stone pile and in combating visible pests in his room and invisible ones in the common drinking cup.

If he or any one else wants "local color" of a totally different kind at totally different stonework or open air cooking let the seeker for novelty wend his way to Garrisons-on-the-Hudson and find the road to the Friary at Graymoor. The little church and convent was started a year ago on faith and chance labor, and is now approaching completion. Any one who comes along and is willing to work may do so in an atmosphere of the thirteenth century at the wages prevailing in those happy and good old times. He will, in other words, get all he can eat of plain food, tenpence a day or something like it, a general atmosphere of prayer and monastic calm heightened by the movement hither and thither of the brown-robed Franciscan Friars and a blessing on his head if he chooses to go his way.

Mere seekers for novelty are of course not exactly wanted, unless their appetite for strange scenes is strong enough to encounter blistered palms and sore backs; but a few days or a week spent with a number of other casual workers, all grouped as "Brother Christophers," i. e., wayfarers, will surely be a cure for jaded nerves. Maybe some seeker for a change could bring a few spare tenpences and pay for his novel enjoyment by paying the casual workers. It is a great opportunity. Crede experto. ROBERT P. GREEN.

FOREST FIRE RISK.

Officials Thought It Slight in Brooklyn Cooperage Company's Case.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We note in your editorial article entitled "Fires in the Adirondacks," the following criticism of this commission:

> The officers of the Public Service Commission, Second District, have been bamboozled by the Brooklyn Cooperage Company, which owns forests and many miles of railroad in the forest preserve counties of the Adirondacks. They have permitted it to burn coal instead of oil in its locomotives, and to let the inflammable brush and weeds in the old cuttings and fire slashes grow up to and within the rails.

This statement and those which follow are based apparently upon an entire misunderstanding of this case. The commission would therefore appreciate it if you will give the following facts proper publicity:

The Brooklyn Cooperage Company is a private corporation and operates a small private railroad over which the commission has no jurisdiction under the Public Service Commissions law. By a recent amendment to the forest, fish, and game law, however, the Forest Commissioner was authorized to bring proceedings before this commission to secure adequate protection in locomotive operation in cases where he felt action to be justified by the fire risk. Commissioner Whipple accordingly entered a complaint against the Brooklyn Cooperage Company, and hearings were held at Tupper Lake Oct. 12 and 13, 1910. The hearing was then adjourned at the request of the counsel for the Forest, Fish, and Game Commissioner, and a further hearing was appointed for Friday, Oct. 28, 1910. Previous to this date, however, the counsel for the Forest, Fish, and Game Commissioner asked for a further adjournment to a date to be thereafter appointed, in order to give him more time to prepare his case. The matter was then held for various reasons until April 17, 1911, when the following order, which is self-explanatory, was entered by this commission:

> The Forest, Fish and Game Commission having by letter from its attorney, * * * dated April 11, 1911, made request as follows:
> "I am authorized to say that this department desires that the matter be held in abeyance by the Public Service Commission until hereafter called up by either party, it being expected that the company will use such efforts to prevent forest fires as may render any order of the commission unnecessary. It is the understanding that the complaint will not be withdrawn, but that the proceeding will be held in abeyance only."
>
> It is, therefore, ordered, that no further proceedings be had in this matter at present, but that the case shall be held open subject to further advice from the Forest, Fish and Game Commission.

During the pendency of this case the Public Service Commission and its Inspectors have given a great deal of attention to the locomotives of the Brooklyn Cooperage Company, and personal inspections have been made of each locomotive operated, and the commission accordingly has definite knowledge that the spark arresters and ash pans are in first-class condition.

Whether the Brooklyn Cooperage Company should be required to burn oil in its locomotives depends upon the result of such further hearing as may be decided upon. The company has not yet been given an opportunity to present its side of the case, and it is proper to say that none of its officers has ever asked this commission to delay the proceedings.

This commission has worked cordially with the Forest, Fish, and Game Commission and with its successor, the Conservation Commission, in every way to secure increased fire protection in the Adirondacks, the Catskills, and other localities in the State. Conferences are frequently held between the members and officers of the two commissions, and we know of no important difference of opinion regarding this or any other subject.

Secretary Public Service Commission, Second District.

AN OLD-FASHIONED WALLOPING

Only Way, in His Opinion, to Make Bad Boys Behave.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is James Hamilton quite consistent when in writing on "Young Ruffians in the Schools" he says: "I do not believe that a teacher should be allowed to whip a child, and I wouldn't have my child whipped by a teacher," and then goes on "but I do believe that the child who does not show the proper respect for the order of the teacher or of the Principal should be made to obey"? How "made to obey"? I ask, according to Mr. Hamilton's requirements, if not with such a good, old-fashioned walloping as probably set him on the right path?

As a matter of fact are not Mr. Hamilton's sentiments illustrative of those of parents generally? Is it not usually some one else's child that is the "young ruffian"?

If Mr. Hamilton had imparted his ideas in full, how the kind of rowdyism he instances is to be curbed, his letter would have been better worth digesting.

Parents connot reasonably expect to throw the weight of training their offspring entirely upon teachers and school Principals under their own emotional reservations, and get back anything better than the "cute little darlings" they sent out. A. BIRCH.

Artillery Men Own Their Horses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read in this morning's TIMES an article headed "State Horses Ready for Film Dramas," in which article it is stated that horses the property of the National Guard of the State of New York are to be hired out by this command to a moving picture company. Will you be good enough to correct this statement? The horses maintained by this command are the property of the organization. They are not the property of the United States Government or of the State of New York.

Rock-Boring Clams and Worms.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If R. J. E. Hulse will consult a good high school zoology textbook on rock and wood boring clams such as the common piddock (Zirphoea) and the so-called shipworm, (Teredo,) he will learn more about live worms entombed in the rocks of volcanic origin on the seashore than from reading the "observations" of R. L. Stevenson or any other litterateur. H. R.

Women's Work for Pure Food.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We women who feel that the home is the foundation of the Nation thank you for your persistent and illuminating defense of Dr. Wiley as the stanch protector of the pure food and drug law. It was due to the women of the country that the Food and Drug act became a law, and it has been a source of unspeakable sorrow to see the systematic betrayal of it during this Administration, in spite of the fact that the last biennial of the great Federation of Women's Clubs a year ago stands on record as invoking the Federal and State authorities to protect the health of the American home and Nation from the practices of unscrupulous manufacturers.

Mr. Taft has not lifted his finger in response to this appeal, which represents more than 300,000 American women, and largely mothers. We women ask for the only sure weapon which can protect our homes and interests—the ballot.

BROOKLYN PLANS MUNICIPAL PLAZA

Would Extend Borough Hall Park to the Bridge Entrance, Razing Many Structures.

AWARD FOR NEW BUILDING

Architects for Borough Department Home Will Be Announced Tuesday —Old Architects File Claims.

Announcement will be made Tuesday of the name of the firm of architects chosen to prepare plans for the construction of a new municipal department building for the Borough of Brooklyn. The announcement will follow a report to Borough President Alfred E. Steers by a committee appointed by him to select the architects. The committee has reached a decision, it was learned yesterday, and President Steers will approve their choice.

With the announcement of the plans for the new building on Joralemon Street, behind the present Borough Hall, will come the declaration of a policy of establishing a municipal centre of ambitious proportions in Brooklyn, along the lines of the centres of the great cities of Continental Europe. This plan may call for the razing of the present Borough Hall, an antiquated structure, of some value as an exponent of classical architecture, but unsuited to its present uses.

For some time the borough authorities have been consulting with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company about the plans for beautifying Borough Hall Park. Negotiations have been in progress to remove the present surface trolley loop which encircles Borough Hall. It has been proposed to remove the elevated railroad structure running along the easterly side of the park and to send the elevated trains to the Brooklyn Bridge over a new structure in one of the streets east of the park. This plan has advantages for the elevated railroad, since it will obviate the ungainly curve from Fulton Street to the Bridge Terminal near Clark Street.

With the removal of the elevated structure the plans provide for the establishment of a long plaza stretching from the Borough Hall Park to the Brooklyn Bridge terminus. These plans necessitate the removal of the long row of low buildings now along the line of the elevated. This plaza, with the Borough Hall removed, will give a vista of the new municipal building through a long, picturesque park from the footpath of the Brooklyn Bridge. This park will include the land now between Fulton Street and Adams Street, according to the plans under consideration.

Rents amounting to more than $100,000 a year are now being paid by the City of New York for offices occupied by departments of the Brooklyn Borough Government in privately owned structures. The erection of the new municipal department building will save most of this amount, Borough President Steers said yesterday. The new building will cost, it is expected, about $3,000,000. In order to have it available for use as soon as possible, it is planned to erect it in two sections. The first section will be erected to the west of the present municipal department building, and when it is ready for occupancy, the departments housed there will be removed. These buildings will then be torn down and the erection of the second section will proceed.

Mr. Steers said yesterday that the new building will probably be either ten or twelve stories high. Its height will depende on the amount of floor space needed to house the various departments of the borough government with comfort. The borough has already spent about $60,000 for plans, and one of the conditions made by President Steers's committee was that the firm of architects chosen for the final work should reimburse the city for moneys previously expended on plans.

The successful firm, it was learned yesterday, although President Steers and members of the firm refused to confirm it in advance of the public announcement on Tuesday, is McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin of 1,123 Broadway, Manhattan. Andrew C. McKenzie, the senior member of the firm, is a resident of Brooklyn, living at 297 East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush.

The successful architects are the successors of the firm of Eidlitz & McKenzie, architects of the New York Times Building, in Times Square, Manhattan, who are also planning the new Times Annex in West Forty-third Street. With the exception of the retirement eighteen months ago, of Cyrus L. W. Eidlitz, the personnel of the office remains the same, Messrs. Gmelin and Voorhees having been in the office for many years, and the employes being unchanged. Mr. McKenzie was in charge of the preparation of plans for the Times Building and supervised its erection, and did similar services on other large commissions handled by the old firm.

The firm is proud of the Times Building, as its supreme architectural and engineering feat. It was the first building in New York in which a tower was used for office purposes and it led to the adoption of the tower type of office building by the Singer Sewing Machine Company, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and others. The successful disposition of the Subway coming into the substructure of the building on a curve is regarded as a noteworthy achievement. The classic beauty of the building itself has also been a subject of laudatory comment.

Lord & Hewlett filed yesterday, through their counsel, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, a claim for $165,000 against the city with Deputy Controller Douglas Mathewson. They base their claim on a contract with former Borough President Bird S. Coler. They declare that they can hold the city for full commissions on the building because ex-President Coler signed a written contract with them. This contract differed from the verbal agreement under which the late Washington Hull and the firm of McKim, Mead & White prepared plans for the proposed structure.

This new claim makes the amount for rejected plans total about $200,000, borough officials said yesterday. Washington Hull, who prepared plans for the late Borough President Swanstrom, settled his claim for $15,000. McKim, Mead & White, who were engaged by ex-Borough President Martin W. Littleton, received $25,000. The new claim will be urged as a lien against the $300,000 appropriated for the construction of foundations for the new building. It alleges that the firm was to receive a per cent. commission on the cost of the building. Its acceptance would mean either the wiping out of the claims for McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin, if they are compelled to pay it under the new agreement, or double cost to the city for architects' fees.

Borough President Steers declared yesterday that the Lord & Hewlett claim would not delay the announcement of the selection of a new firm of architects to be made on Tuesday.

EQUAL RIGHTS.

Tho' poets publish without stint
To lovely ladies rhymed addresses,
How rarely one beholds in print
The amourettes of poetesses!

While each alternate page, or so,
Discloses lines to Helen, Chloë,
Would critics deem it comme il faut
For maids to versify on Joey?

For equal rights the poetess
Makes cry despite what's deemed the proper,
Her surging soul she'd fain express
And sing her love with none to stop her.

All hail the day when "Marguerite"
Must yield her place in song to "Morris,"
And sonnets to "The Eyes of Pete"
Shall supersede the verse on "Doris."

CANADA IS SAVED; THE PLOT LAID BARE

Sherlock Holmes Tracks That Enormous Fund to Its Lair in the Frozen North.

WHO D'YE THINK HAD IT?

Why, Who But a Bronze-Faced, Smiling Man, with a Frost-Bitten Ear, Whom Denmark Once Decorated.

The matter has been sifted to the bottom. The Enormous Campaign Fund has been traced to its lair.

It is with pardonable pride that THE NEW YORK TIMES announces this morning the success of its efforts to assist The Montreal Star in tracing "to its source" the Enormous Campaign Fund raised in America to annex Canada. Alone and unaided THE TIMES might not have succeeded. It is due to the energy and genius of Mr. Sherlock Holmes, who promptly responded to our call for his aid, that we have accomplished our purpose of doing this great public service.

Mr. Holmes, accompanied by Dr. Watson, arrived here yesterday. His first move was to summon the reporters who have been hunting down clues for THE TIMES since The Star's advertisement offering $25,000 reward for the discovery of the malefactors was published, and to ask for their reports.

"What has been done since?" he asked after receiving them.

"Well," said a reporter, "we have employed a Spiritualist medium to materialize the ghosts of persons whom we thought likely to speak with authority concerning The Star's announcement—"

"Who, for instance?" interrupted the great detective.

"Baron Munchausen," was the reply, "and—"

"Nonsense!" broken in Mr. Holmes. "You have wasted your time. This case, Watson," turning to his biographer, "is simplicity itself. It was hardly necessary to summon me across the Atlantic for so obvious a case."

"My dear Holmes!" exclaimed Dr. Watson.

"The man for whom we have to look," pursued Mr. Holmes, without regarding him, "is a bronze-faced man with a perpetual smile, slightly frost-bitten in the left ear, and wearing a decoration of some kind, probably that of a monarchical country."

"My dear Holmes!" exclaimed Dr. Watson.

Mr. Holmes glanced at him somewhat sourly, dismissed the reporters, and locked himself up in his room. For several hours nothing was heard, although a continual stream of messenger boys kept coming and going. It was nearly 11 o'clock last night before Mr. Holmes summoned the reporters to his apartment.

"Is the mystery solved?" asked one of them.

"It is," replied Mr. Holmes.

"Have you located the Enormous Campaign Fund?" was asked.

"It is on its way here now in a tin box," he replied, "and by to-morrow night will be in the hands of THE TIMES. Hand me the needle, Watson.

"This case," he continued, throwing himself back on the lounge and jabbing his left arm lightly with his dope stick, "presented some features which might have baffled Lestrade and Athelney Jones, and did, indeed, baffle your inexperienced American sleuths. However, all would have been plain even to them had they not gone off on a false scent. A little more of the dope, Watson; no, no, not that—the No. 6.

"Instead of trying to trace the movements of the Enormous Campaign Fund, they should have devoted themselves first of all to discovering its origin. The problem before us was to find, not its progress, but its source.

"Since it is my practice to take the public fully into my confidence, I will tell you exactly what steps I took to find the source. It was evident to me that while your bungling sleuths were wasting their time trying to trace the various steps of the Enormous Campaign Fund's progress from Washington to Canada the real crux of the mystery lay in the discovery of the origin of the Enormous Fund itself."

He paused impressively.

"Great!" chortled Dr. Watson.

Mr. Holmes raised his foot impulsively and the doctor shrank back.

"I therefore," resumed Mr. Holmes, "communicated immediately with the office of The Montreal Star, asking them from whom they had learned of the Enormous Campaign Fund. I already knew, by induction, who the man was, but I wished to have documentary evidence. Within two hours I received a reply saying:

"'From person of unimpeachable veracity.'

"This was a sufficient clue. There are hardly any persons of unimpeachable veracity in the world, since George Washington died. I referred immediately to my memorandum book and found the names of seven persons corresponding to that description. Four had died of starvation since the memoranda were entered two were in jail, one was missing, and consequently I had only one person to locate, the person I had suspected from the first. I wired The Star asking for a description of him. The answer came back:

"'A bronze-faced man with a perpetual smile, slightly frost-bitten in the left ear, and wearing a decoration.'

"This, you will remember, is the identical description I gave of the man the moment I landed in America."

Again Mr. Holmes paused impressively.

"My dear Holmes!" exclaimed Dr. Watson.

Mr. Holmes looked at him bitterly, seemed about to say something, and then checked himself.

"It were tedious," he resumed at length, "to recount the various steps by which I traced this fund to its foundation. Suffice it to say that by judicious use of the telegraph I have discovered that the fund itself was brought to the attention of The Montreal Star by the man of whom I have spoken. The Star itself has admitted this to me. It merely remained to run him down.

"Five or six telegrams, the total cost of which amounts to $13.75, which I have no doubt THE NEW YORK TIMES will reimburse to me when I turn in my expense account, sufficed to give me the fullest possible information on this point. The man himself has confessed. He tells me in a telegram that it was he who visited the office of The Star on the night of Aug. 20, broke rudely in on the editor as that gentleman was reading a dream book and holding a conference with two astrologers, a clairvoyant, and a middle-aged Spiritualist medium, and revealed to him the existence of the Enormous Campaign Fund.

"Nay, more. Convinced by me that further concealment is useless, he has sent to his igloo in Greenland for the Fund itself, and even now it is speeding hither on the wings of the wind, guarded carefully by Itookashuk. By to-morrow you should have it in your hands."

"Then the man is—" ventured an excited reporter.

Mr. Holmes nodded solemnly. "You have guessed it," he said. "It was Dr. Cook. Watson, the dope, please."

SAVE MARK TWAIN'S HOME.

Birthplace Presented to City of Hannibal by George Mohan.

Special to The New York Times.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Sept. 1.—The boyhood home of Mark Twain on High Street, built by his father, John M. Clemens in 1839, was to-day purchased by George Mohan and his wife and presented to the City of Hannibal that it may be preserved. The old home is a two-story, five-room frame building in a fairly good state of preservation.

Only a few feet away is the alley where Tom Sawyer had the other fellows paint the fence, and on the other end of which lived Huckleberry Finn.

Mr. Mohan said:

"Mark Twain's life teaches that poverty is rather an incentive than a bar, and that any boy, however humble his birth and surroundings, may by honesty and industry accomplish great things. That is one of the reasons why his modest [illegible] should be preserved for [illegible]."

True to the pact Mr. Kaiser had made with his bride to keep the matter secret, he denied that he was married, but his mother was so persistent he had to tell her. Miss Cole then broke the news to her parents, and received their blessing.

The bride is one of several sisters and popular in the younger set of North Baltimore. She left for New York yesterday to join her husband. They have taken apartments in that city. COL. ASTOR SAILS; MAY WED ANY DAY

Leaves in Noma with Miss Force and Her Family for Astor Country Home.

LAND AT FERNCLIFF TO-DAY

Belief That the Ceremony Will Take Place There—Labor Day Visit with Trunks.

Rumors that the wedding of Col. John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeleine T. Force is now a matter of only a few days at the most gained fresh impetus yesterday, when Col. Astor's yacht, the Noma, with Col. Astor, Miss Force and other members of the Force family on board, sailed up the Hudson for Ferncliff, Col. Astor's country home on the Hudson, near Rhinecliff. The Noma sailed from Duffy's Landing, 181st Street and the Hudson River, at 3:30 o'clock. Those on board besides Col. Astor and his fiancée were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Force and Miss Katherine Force, the parents and sister of Miss Force, of 18 East Thirty-seventh Street, and Hosmer J. Barrett of Newport.

The Noma had not reached Yonkers before a rumor was current that Col. Astor and Miss Force were to be married before the Noma returned to New York. There was no confirmation to be had of such a report, but it spread just the same. It is believed that Col. Astor and his guests will remain at Ferncliff until after Labor Day, and in the event the marriage does take place it is believed that Ferncliff will be the place where the ceremony will be performed.

About 2:45 P. M. yesterday Mrs. Force and her younger daughter, Miss Katherine, left the family home in East Thirty-seventh Street. They had a large amount of hand baggage, and leaving the house drove in a taxicab to 181st Street, where they went on board the Noma. Soon after the departure of Mrs. Force and Miss Katherine Col. Astor arrived at the Force home in his automobile. Reporters were waiting for him, but he would not be stopped, and ran briskly up the steps and into the house before any of the reporters could question him. Col. Astor reappeared after a few minutes accompanied by Miss Force. He was in good humor. He laughed heartily when a reporter asked him if he was going away to be married. The laugh was the only answer.

"Will you be away over Labor Day?" the reporter asked.

"I really cannot say," Col. Astor answered.

"Will you be married before you return to New York?" Col. Astor was asked a second time.

"I hope you boys will have a good time," Col. Astor answered still laughing, and that ended the interview. A moment later the automobile was whizzing across town on the way to the landing at 181st Street.

After Col. Astor had gone an effort was made to get information from Mr. Dobbins, Col. Astor's secretary, but Mr. Dobbins did not know a thing about the wedding plans of Col. Astor and Miss Force; at least that was the impression his answers to many questions created.

No reliable information was to be had yesterday as to the terms of the settlement that Col. Astor is reported to have made on Miss Force. There was no confirmation of the report that the amount of the settlement was $5,000,000.

The baggage that was taken from the Force home to the Noma consisted of two trunks, seven bags, and a number of small hand pieces. It was said that four men, friends of Col. Astor, had boarded the yacht and were of the party that is to spend the week-end at Ferncliff. Their names were not disclosed.

The present is not Miss Force's first visit to Ferncliff.

Col. Astor returned from Boston, whither he went to arrange for his son Vincent's quarters in Claverly Hall at Harvard, yesterday morning. Vincent Astor is in Newport.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Col. Astor's yacht Noma arrived at Rhinecliff at 8:45 to-night. It was said at Ferncliff, Col. Astor's home, that the Colonel and his guests would not leave the yacht until to-morrow. The Noma is anchored off Rhinecliff.

It is expected that Col. Astor and his fiancée will spend Labor Day at Ferncliff.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 1.—The belief is general in the Newport Summer colony that the marriage of Col. John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeleine T. Force of New York is to be a Newport event some time after the Newport horse show, which ends next Wednesday, when Col. Astor, Miss Force, and her parents are expected back at Beechwood.

SODA BAIT TRAPS GIRL.

Accused of Theft by Girl Who Asked Her to Have One.

A heavy-set young man entered the candy store at 1,610 Park Avenue yesterday afternoon and whispered to the proprietor. The latter pointed to the back of the room, where two young women sat at a table partaking of ice cream sodas. The young man stepped back, and at his appearance one of the girls arose.

"I am Miss Mary Cowles," she said, "and this young woman is Miss Annie McGlynn. I want you to arrest her as a thief."

Others in the store looked up in surprise as the young man, Detective Enwright of the East 126th Street Police Station, first bowed to the second woman and then announced:

"Please come with me. I'll have to arrest you."

In the station Miss McGlynn protested that she had done nothing to deserve arrest. Miss Cowles, a trained nurse living at 83 East 116th Street, insisted that she was correct in her charge. Miss Cowles said that on last Tuesday Miss Maud Griffen, also a trained nurse with whom she lived at the 116th Street address, had attended services in a Harlem church, and on the steps, while waiting for some cessation of the heavy rain, had got in conversation with Miss McGlynn.

"She said she had plenty of money, but had no home to go to," said Miss Cowles, "and Maud invited her to our house. She came and stayed until this morning, when she disappeared suddenly. Afterward we found that Maud's diamond ring, a diamond locket and pendant, a bracelet, and her pocketbook in which were $4.75 had gone also. Then we started to look for this girl."

Miss Cowles said she had encountered Miss McGlynn in Mount Morris Park, and, greeting her cordially, had invited her to have some soda. At the candy store she excused herself a few moments and telephoned to Police Headquarters, whence notice was sent to the East 126th Street Police Station, and Detective Enwright started for the candy store.

On the complaint of Miss Griffen, who was summoned to the station, Miss McGlynn was locked up charged with grand larceny.

BARON WON'T WED HERE.

Having Divorced Third Wife, He Didn't Get License for a Fourth.

A tall, foreign-looking man, with a woman on his arm, called at the Marriage License Bureau in the City Hall yesterday and asked Chief Clerk Scully for a license to wed. On the application blank that was handed him he wrote that he was Baron Birger Wessel of Stockholm, Sweden; that he had been married three times before; that two wives were dead; that he had divorced the other, and that she was still living. The prospective bride gave her name as Mrs. Marie Noer, 43 years old, and said that she came from Souderburg, Sweden. Her father, she said, was Hans Petersen, and her former husband was at one time Postmaster of Chicago. The Baron gave his business as "rentier," which, it was explained, means a person who lives on his income.

"Have you your divorce papers with you?" asked Clerk Scully.

"No," said the applicant. "I don't see what difference that makes."

"It makes all the difference in the world," replied the clerk. "I cannot give you a license without examining your divorce papers."

"I never heard of such beastly impertinence," said the Baron in a rage. "I thought this was a decent city. I guess I'll have to go to Chicago, where they know how to treat a gentleman."

With this the Baron tore up his application blank, stamped upon it to show his contempt for New York, and departed with his would-be bride, who did not make any remonstrance.

Baron Wessel was accompanied to the City Hall by Fritz Lindinger, the former President of the Liquor Dealers' Association, who keeps a café in Broad Street. Later Mr. Lindinger said he had known Baron Wessel for some time, and that he came from a good family in Sweden. He said he didn't know where the Baron was stopping in the city or if he intended to leave at once for Chicago. The Baron told Clerk Scully that his three former wives were sisters and that he was thirty-nine years of age.

MAN MILLINER FAILS, SOCIETY'S CREDITOR

Conspicuous Names Appear in Herman Patrick Tappe's Bankruptcy Schedules.

HE WOULD NOT DUN THEM

But Their Failure to Pay Embarrassed Him—His Marriage to Mrs. McVickar.

Herman Patrick Tappe, a man-milliner of 4 West Fortieth Street, who created a society sensation by marrying in 1907 Mrs. Ada McVickar, daughter of the late Edward S. Jaffray and sister-in-law of Bishop McVickar of Rhode Island, filed yesterday a petition in bankruptcy. It has always been supposed that he obtained capital to enter business and also his clientele through his marriage to a society woman, and now it is alleged that his failure is due to the number of accounts left unpaid by society folk.

The liabilities are set down at $30,808, and the nominal assets at $10,662. Of the latter $5,662 consists of sums ranging from $1 to $687 which are due him from women well known in society or on the stage. Among those mentioned in his schedules are Valeska Suratt, $53; Mrs. Patrick Campbell, $62; Mrs. Leslie Carter, $25; Miss Billie Burke, $199; Miss Doris Keane, $33; Miss Ethel Levy, $67; Mrs. Waldorf Astor of Cleveden, Taplow, England, $85; Mrs. W. Gould Brokaw, Great Neck, L. I., $125; Mrs. Oliver Iselin, $25; Mrs. C. Dana Gibson, $25; Miss Carol Harriman, $40; Mrs. A. F. Tiffany, $113; Mrs. B. Tiffany, $6; Mrs. G. W. Landers, New London, Conn., $687; Mrs. Osgood Pell, Westbury, L. I.; $30; Mrs. Coleman Dayton, Philadelphia, $40; Mrs. J. R. E. Roberts, Philadelphia, $206; Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., $100; Mrs. Arthur Kennedy, East Hampton, L. I., $52; Mrs. Willie Low, $113; Mrs. F. D. Fitzgibbon, Tuxedo, $20; Mrs. G. W. Folsom, Lenox, Mass., $5; Mrs. F. C. Bourne, Oakdale, L. I., $12; Mrs. R. A. Whitton, Short Hills, N. J., $76; Mrs. G. A. Eyer, Short Hills, N. J., $149; Joseph Duveen, $3; Miss Louise Drew, $10; Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll, $63; Mrs. E. H. Seligman, $20; Mrs. Kingsley Swan, $128; Mrs. W. H. Truesdale, $25, and Mrs. H. Cushing, $35.

Mr. Tappe's lawyer, William Paul Buchler of 60 Wall Street, explained yesterday that none of these debtors had refused to pay the comparatively small sums which they owed, but his client had not wished to press them. His insolvency, he maintains, is entirely due to the aggregate these uncollected accounts.

The bankrupt's $30,808 of liabilities include $888 for wages. He has 155 creditors in all, among whom are Leon Rheims & Co. for $5,611; J. A. Johnson & Co., $2,164; Raimon, $2,085; Annie Evans, $3,150; Miss Elsie de Wolfe, $305; Jules and Hugo Rosenberg, $732; H. B. Simmons, $1,180 for rent; Atchinson & Co., $929; Hotel Astor, $82; Waldorf Astoria Hotel Company, $80; Plaza Hotel, $171; Delmonico's, $128; Louis Sherry, $93; Holland House, $101; Hotel Rector, $35, and Vanity Fair Tea Rooms, $81.

Mr. Tappe is of French descent and is the son of the late Prof. Herman Frederick Tappe of Sidney, Ohio. He was a milliner's buyer when, it is said, that he met Mrs. McVickar on an ocean liner. He attracted her attention on the voyage and kept up the acquaintance afterward. Society was much amazed at the announcement of the engagement, as he was then not 30 years of age and Mrs. McVickar was 50 years old and had five sons, of whom two were married. Two years after this marriage in St. Leo's Church, on May 20, 1907, there were rumors of an estrangement.

STEFANSSON PROVES ARCTIC MAPS WRONG

Further Letters from the Explorer Declare One Charted River Is a Pure Fiction.

FIRST WHITE TO VISIT WILDS

But Eskimos May Have Seen Franklin Survivors—Game Is Dying Out Rapidly in Far North.

Dr. R. M. Anderson and V. Stefansson, at the head of the American Museum of Natural History expedition to the Alaskan and Canadian Arctic Coast, were well, and had just come out of a series of thrilling adventures, on Jan. 21 of the present year.

Letters came from the party in the noon mail yesterday, following closely a package of mail which arrived on Thursday, but dated more than two months before that of yesterday. Thursday's letters, dated, one in October, 1910, and the other the following month, were the first messages received from Anderson and Stefansson for nearly a year, except a letter, written about the same time, which came a few days before to Herbert L. Bridgman, Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club. Before the receipt of Mr. Bridgman's letter grave fears had been entertained for the safety of the New York explorers.

Thursday's letters were full of stories of adventure and narrow escapes from injury and starvation, and reporters flocked to the museum yesterday morning to get copies of them. Those who came late, however, found that the letters of Jan. 21, this year, had just arrived, carrying the record forward several months.

Mr. Stefansson tells in the last letter how the entire party came near starving near the shores of the Horton River. They had taken a trip along this stream, expecting to get all the food they needed from game shot on the way. It turned out that there was none to be had, and their rations became so low that for five days the daily allowance to each member of the party was five teaspoonfuls of flour and one-eighth of a pound of tallow. The party had eight dogs, all of which had to live much of the time on caribou skins alone.

One of the most interesting parts of this latest report refers to the discovery of an unknown, unnamed river, about thirty miles long and very broad, emptying into Langton Bay. In addition the explorers made complete surveys of Langton Bay and of Horton River.

The mouth of the Horton River was discovered by Dr. Richardson early in the nineteenth century, and for a brief period a few miles of it appeared on the maps and charts published about the middle of the last century. But there were no further discoveries on it, and it cannot now be found on any of the modern maps.

The New York explorers, however, report that they have now followed and thoroughly surveyed it for more than 400 miles, and find it far larger, longer, and apparently more important than the Coppermine River, which is one of the best known of all the Northern streams. At no point along the Horton River for 400 miles, they report, was the width less than 100 yards, and for much of the distance it was many times that width.

Mr. Stefansson also refers to the Rivière la Roncière, which is drawn in a free-hand fashion with many flourishes on all modern maps, as rising near Bear Lake and flowing majestically northward into the southeast corner of Franklin Bay. It has now been shown to be entirely non-existant. There is not so much as a sluice of snow-drain as an excuse for its conspicuous place on the charts.

When it comes to hardships, with little to eat, Mr. Stefansson is evidently inclined to take things philosophically. He tells of a time when snow-shoe lashings were eaten with a relish by the entire party, consisting of himself and five Eskimos—a decrepit old man, a middle-aged man and his wife, a boy of fifteen, and a girl of nine. They went more than a week without ordinary food.

"We did not suffer particularly," writes Mr. Stefansson, without any bid for sympathy, "for we had plenty of snow-shoe lashings and caribou sleeping skins, most of which we ate."

But in January, 1909, he says, things became more serious. They were on the Horton River, 100 miles from its mouth, and had been without fat of any kind for more than a month. The result was that the entire party and the dogs became thin and weak, though they all ate large quantities of deer meat; for deer meat, Stefansson writes, though he ate it much of the time, never seemed to keep him from feeling hungry.

Of 250 Indians seen by his party in the Summer of 1910, only one, Mr. Stefansson says, had ever seen a white man, and of several tribes living near Coronation Gulf, none had before been visited by a white man, unless some of the survivors of Franklin's expedition wandered that way.

"Of an estimated population of 1,000 Eskimos on both shores of Coronation Gulf and Dolphin and Union Straits," Mr. Stefansson continues, "not more than twenty persons now living can have seen a white man. The district has, therefore, never been under white influences, and Coronation Gulf has had less white contact than probably any other part of the inhabited and explored Arctic Circle, or than any inhabited district of equal area in the world, so far as I know."

Mr. Stefansson declares that the difficulties of exploration are becoming greater every year, chiefly because of the rapid disappearance of game and the inability of the country to support the expeditions. Arctic Continental Canada has thus become far more difficult to explore than even sixty years ago, when Richardson and Rae did their work in the North.

"The Hudson Bay posts are located now exactly where they were then and are no better able to furnish assistance in emergencies. Large areas then populated by Indians and full of game are now gameless and deserted. The distribution of Eskimos is probably about what it was then, but while a few years ago caribou were so plentiful that the people dressed largely in fawn skins, they are now so rare that the people are forced to utilize hides of bull caribou, sealskins, wolfskins, foxskins, and even the skins of birds. All the caribou spearing places are deserted, and kayak building is being abandoned.

"When Dr. Richardson came up the Coppermine sixty years ago he saw caribou in thousands every day, and he says a single hunter could have supplied their whole party of forty men with all the food they needed without noticeably delaying the party. This Summer we killed two out of every three caribou seen, we had to hunt sometimes twenty miles from the river, and three hunters with modern rifles had difficulty in supplying four persons and six dogs.

"It seems to me likely that ten years from now a traveler, hoping to live on the country while visiting unknown districts, will find his task well-nigh impossible. It has already become difficult and hazardous."

Mr. Stefansson seems to have been amazed at the preservation of wood in the climate of the Far North. He says that old Fort Confidence, which sixty years ago was the headquarters of the Franklin search parties that came to Bear Lake, has recently been burned down by the Indians.

"But," he continues, "some old sleds are still to be found scattered here and there. The remarkable thing is the freshness in appearance of some of the remains, a thing that emphasizes the difficulty of judging the age of archaeological remains in the arctic. The climate of Bear Lake is a good deal warmer in Summer than on the coast, and yet some piles of firewood cut out by the fort people sixty years ago show almost no signs of decay. If one were told that they were only five years old one would see no reason to doubt the statement."

When Stefansson and Anderson went away in the Spring of 1908 they expected to be in the North two years, with a possibility of three. Dr. Anderson now writes that he has conferred with Mr. Stefansson, and the agreement has practically been reached not to return to civilization until 1912. The return home has a delightful sound, he writes, but their work is not yet complete.

JEW EXAMINED FOR ARMY.

Bloom Undergoes Final Test Which President Taft Commanded.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Private Frank Bloom, on whose account President Taft reprimanded Col. Joseph Garrard, commanding the military post at Fort Myer, Va., because that officer disapproved the promotion of the private on the ground that he was a Jew, was examined, under the President's order, at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to-day for a Second Lieutenancy in the army.

Bloom failed in the preliminary examination, and it was then that Col. Garrard indorsed his papers, calling attention to the fact that he was the son of the post tailor at Fort Myer, who is a Jew, and stating that he would not desire to associate with him as an officer and socially.

In admonishing Col. Garrard, the President waived the examination which Bloom failed to pass, and authorized him to take the final test to-day. This will determine his fitness for promotion.

PLEA FOR YOUNG OFFICERS.

Gen. Grant Asks That They Be Not Questioned on Brigadier's Duties.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Major Gen. F. D. Grant in a report to the Secretary of War announcing the fact that a number of young officers in the Department of the East failed to pass recently in the subjects of administration and field service regulations urges that the requirements in these examinations are entirely beyond the range of experience of the young men who are expected to pass them.

"I deem it unwise," says Gen. Grant, "to have a Lieutenant confronted with the demand that he should know the duties of a brigade commander before he has demonstrated his knowledge to deal successfully with problems involving the company, battalion, and regiment of his own arm of the service."

NO COCKFIGHTS AT CANAL.

President Taft Also Forbids Other Animal Contests in the Zone.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Cock fights dog fights, and bull fights dear to the Latin-American heart, will soon disappear from the Panama Canal Zone. President Taft has issued an executive order, effective Sept. 4, which says:

> Any person who sets on foot, instigates, promotes, or carries on any fights between cocks or other birds, or any dog fight or bull fight, or fight between any other animals; or who does any act as assistant, umpire, or principal, in furtherance of any fight between any such animals, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $50 or by imprisonment not to exceed thirty days, or by both such fine or imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Col. Goethals, Chairman of the Isthmian Commission, has issued an order proclaiming Monday a holiday throughout the zone, but bird and animal fights will find no place among the amusements.

TAFT ON MAYFLOWER SAILS FOR MAINE

President with Family and Miss Boardman Will Spend Week End at Islesboro.

ASKED FOR HIS FAMOUS COW

Showman Wants to Borrow Pauline Wayne—Conservation Speech at Kansas City Planned for Western Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 1.—Under starlit skies and with a smooth sea, the United States steamship Mayflower steamed out of Beverly Harbor to-night, bound for Islesboro, Me., with the President and Mrs. Taft aboard. In the Presidential party also were Charlie Taft, the President's youngest son; Horace Taft, the President's brother from Watertown, Conn., and Miss Mabel Boardman of Washington.

Soon after dinner at Parramatta the Presidential party motored down to Beverly Farms to West Beach, off which the Mayflower was anchored. As the President boarded the vessel after sunset many of the honors which would have been paid him had his arrival been in daylight were omitted. A tender was sent out from the Mayflower to the landing at West Beach and the President and his party were soon on board and were welcomed by Lieut. Commander Powers Symington, the new commander of the Mayflower. Lieut. Commander Symington succeeded Commander George W. Logan this Summer.

The Mayflower got under way at 10 to-night and is due at Islesboro to-morrow morning. The President and his party will there be the guests for the week-end of Mrs. Thomas McK. Laughlin of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Taft's sister. Miss Helen Taft has been at Islesboro for a week. The Presidential party will sail from Islesboro Sunday night and are due back to Beverly Monday morning. In the afternoon they will probably attend the Myopia horse show at Hamilton.

For the fist time for a week there was sunshine at Beverly to-day, and the President was off early for a round of golf with Major Butt and Charlie Taft at Myopia. The youngster played a game that entitled him to consideration in the Presidential golfing set, and at a number of the holes on the long course made the best showing of the three. To-day at luncheon the President had for his guests ex-Secretary of War Dickinson of Tennessee and Major Matthew A. Delaney of the Army Medical Corps, who spent the season at Beverly two Summers ago when Mrs. Taft was quite ill, and acted as her physician.

To-day the President received a note which caused his usually happy countenance to break into a smile even sunnier than usual. It was a request from "A Way Down East Company" playing the towns along the northern State borders for the loan of Pauline Wayne, the famous White House Jersey cow, for a month. The company plays in Milwaukee on Sept. 2, and the manager evidently thought that Pauline would make a great hit for the show when it was playing the farming country. Nothing was said in the note about the loan of the blue ribbon Pauline has won, but the promise was made that she would have the best of care and a special attendant. The President decided that he could not allow his cow to make her stage début, and word to that effect was sent to the showman.

Pauline will really go north in October, however, and will be shown at the International Dairy Competition at Milwaukee Oct. 12, and may be taken down to Chicago for an exhibition. Pauline, the gift of Senator Stephenson, is the pride of the White House stable, and when she goes North for the exhibition a special attendant who knows all her likes and dislikes will go with her.

Thomas R. Shipp, executive secretary of the National Conservation Congress, was a visitor at the executive office to-day. He brought with him a programme of the Conservation Congress, which will be held in Kansas City Sept. 23 to 25. President Taft is to be in Kansas City on Sept. 25, and his speech will be one of the features of the convention. The President has selected conservation as one of the five principal subjects of speeches for his Western trip, and his Kansas City speech will be an important one.

Secretary of the Interior Fisher also is expected at Kansas City for the convention and will probably meet the President there. The Secretary, fresh from his trip to Alaska, will probably impart to the President important information gathered on the trip to that Territory, and it is possible the meeting may bring out an announcement of the President's plans for Alaska. The President will leave here two weeks from to-night to begin his Western trip and will not return to Beverly when that trip is over, going instead direct to Washington, where he is scheduled to arrive Oct. 31.

This afternoon President and Mrs. Taft were the centre of attraction at the Normandy fête, on the estate of Mrs. S. B. R. Crosby of Boston. The Presidential party motored over to Manchester for the affair this afternoon. The President was a liberal purchaser, buying a basket of eggs for $5, a basket of peaches, and a prize pumpkin.

Last Gunboat to Leave Haiti.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Conditions in Haiti are regarded as normal, and the gunboat Marietta, all that is left of the international fleet which was assembled in the waters of the little republic during the revolution for the protection of foreign interests, was ordered withdrawn to-day. She will sail from Port au Prince for Guantanamo, Cuba.

THE CARPET FROM BAGDAD, Mr. MacGrath's new novel, is farther than any of its predecessors from the hackneyed and the trite. It is a brilliant innovation—a new form of entertainment, tinging this present year of grace with the mesmeric charm of the Arabian Nights.

The reader follows eagerly the fortunes of the little group of Americans who meet dangers amid the strange surroundings of the Near East, and who come home only to be involved in more dangerous and remarkable complications. All is told in the author's most captivating manner—that sparkling rapid-fire style which has made him the pre-eminently popular romancer.

The DANGEROUS AGE
THE STARTLING STORY BY KARIN MICHAELIS

The much talked of book of the day. Europe has gone mad about it. America is wondering what it is. Read it and keep up with the times and present-day fiction.
AMERICAN EDITION
NOW READY

Europe has gone mad over The Dangerous Age—"The most sincere, the most complete, the most humble and the most disquieting feminine confession that has ever been written," according to the eminent French critic, Marcel Prévost.

While "daring" it is nevertheless really a serious contribution to literature. The Fortnightly Review hails it as "a human document of supreme value, a book which cannot be read without emotion."

Translations are already appearing in eleven languages. The book is sweeping the continents of the civilized world like forest fires.

WHAT IS "THE DANGEROUS AGE" OF WOMAN?

Current Literature says women "will feel that a woman has betrayed the freemasonry of womanhood." The Revue de Paris adds: "The absolute frankness with which a soul is here laid bare may probably come as a shock to those who still cling to the tradition that although Western woman may raise the veil from her face, her heart should ever remain inviolate and enclosed from the world."

We confidently believe that in this age of feminism it will make an irresistible appeal to all who think the woman's point of view worthy of serious study and, withal, The Dangerous Age is a good story that grips us from the start to finish.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

Beatrice Grimshaw, author of "When the Red Gods Fall," is at present in New Guinea, where she is gathering material for a new book.

Edward Peple is at present busy rehearsing a four-act play based on his recent story, "The Littlest Rebel," in which the two Farnum brothers, Dustin and William, and Miss Percy Haswell, will take the leading parts this Fall. The same theme furnished a vaudeville sketch which was produced last Spring. In the forthcoming play Grant and Lee are two of the characters represented.

George Wharton Edwards is now motoring in the White Mountains. "Some Old Flemish Towns," to be published this month, is the result of a trip made by Mrs. Edwards last year through Ypres, Alos, Furnes, Ghent, Brussels, and other towns of Belgium.

Max Marcin is spending the Summer at West Baldwin, Me., where he is writing a novel called "The Money Jugglers," in which he deals with crooked banking methods, an insight into which he obtained as a reporter on a New York newspaper. The new book, to be serialized in the People's Magazine and published in book form next Spring, is Mr. Marcin's first departure from the line of detective and mystery stories. Another novel by Mr. Marcin is at present running in the People's Magazine under the title "Everybody's Alibi." It will be published this month by Moffat, Yard & Co.

Prof. A. V. W. Jackson of Columbia University recently returned to New York from a trip to Persia, where he went to collect material for a forthcoming volume of travels.

After having arraigned society and its shallowness in his book, "The Passing of the Idle Rich," to be brought out this Fall by Doubleday, Page & Co., and after having voiced his displeasure in the coronation, Frederick Townsend Martin, society man and millionaire, has taken up public speaking. Mr. Martin, while in London this Summer, has made several addresses, the most notable of which he made recently before a meeting of the Independent Labor Party Club in the East End of London. He spoke of the condition of the laboring classes of the United States, and his theme was "Back to the Land."

Josiah Royce, the author of "The Philosophy of Loyalty" and other notable volumes on religious and philosophical subjects, sailed Aug. 19 to be present as a delegate of Harvard University at the 500th anniversary of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland. Dr. Royce was recently granted the Walter Cabot Fellowship for three years by the Harvard corporation. This fellowship is an honorary one, specially intended to give the beneficiary extra time for research and publication. It would seem that Dr. Royce is improving the opportunity given him, for a new volume entitled "William James and Other Essays on the Philosophy of Life" is announced for Fall publication.

The latest American author to achieve a pronounced English success is Elizabeth B. Dewing, whose theatrical story, "A Big Horse to Ride," is pleasing the British Islanders exceedingly. Substantial evidence of this fact has just been received by Miss Dewing's American publishers in the way of a second large order for the novel, which makes the total English sales compare favorably with those in this country, where it has been a distinct popular as well as literary success.

Scott Nearing, who has for the last few weeks been traveling in Europe, has just returned to this country. Mr. Nearing's important study of the wage question is at present in press and will be ready for publication early in September.

From Minneapolis comes the word that the young Swedish-Americans of that city have organized a Nils Holgersson Club for the purpose of taking pleasure trips to Sweden via "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils" and "Further Adventures of Nils," by Selma Lagerlof, winner of the Nobel Prize in Sweden. "Further Adventures of Nils" is to be brought out this Fall by Doubleday, Page & Co., as was the first book. The members of the club wear as their insignia a prettily designed silver pin representing a white goose on the wing.

Velma Swanston Howard, translator of Miss Lagerlof's books, has just returned to this country from her trip to Sweden, where she visited Miss Lagerlof.

Among the Americans attending the Congress of the Races in London are Charles F. Thwing, President of the Western Reserve and Adelbert Universities of Cleveland, Ohio, and Paul S. Reinsch. Both Mr. Reinsch and President Thwing have books in preparation for publication this Fall. Mr. Reinsch's is entitled "The Rise of Chinese Nationalism"; President Thwing's book is a descriptive volume on great universities of the world.

Samuel G. Smith, the author of "The Development of Religion," is at present in Europe. Just before he sailed he handed over to his publishers the manuscript of a new volume which is intended for publication this Fall. The new book is entitled "Social Pathology."

It was recently announced that an extensive biography of Ruskin would be published this Fall by E. T. Cook, who was described as the author of "Gardens of England," a descriptive book, with beautiful colored illustrations. It happens, however, that the biographer of Ruskin is another E. T. Cook, namely, Edward Tyas Cook, who is the author of "Studies of Ruskin," and the editor of "The Connected Library Studies of Ruskin's Work."

An indication of the modernization of China is contained in a note which recently reached Doubleday, Page & Co. from the editor of the Hong Kong Telegraph, who desired to read "The Cabin," by Stewart Edward White. "Whirligigs," by O. Henry, and "Practical Real Estate Methods," by thirty New York experts. He declared that the ancient Chinese Empire is now beginning to take an interest in the whimsicalities of O. Henry and New York real estate methods.

O. Henry, beloved by every editor in the country, sometimes was the bane of their lives. One of the stories of his whimsical sayings which has just come to light will help to explain why no one could harbor wrath against him. The humorist had promised to write a story for one of the big magazines, but it failed to arrive after many requests. Finally the editor went to O. Henry's apartment and sent up a curt note: "If I don't have that story within twenty-four hours I will come up and kick you down stairs. I always keep my promises." O. Henry promptly sent back a note: "Dear Bill—If I did all my work with my feet I'd keep my promises too."

Former associates and pupils of George Edward Woodbury, Professor of Comparative Literature at Columbia for more than thirteen years, have organized a society to advance the ideals of American literature for which he has stood, and to continue their relations with him and with one another. Prof. Woodbury is the author of "The Inspiration of Poetry," "Makers of Literature," and several volumes of verse, to the excellence of which is probably due the organization of the society.

William Griffiths, whose "City Views and Visions" will be be issued in October by Moffat, Yard & Co., illustrates an objection to the popular notion that authors, especially poets, are not practical. Mr. Griffith had worked his way up to success in the business world as a young man when, in his early twenties, he "quit business" and began newspaper work in Kansas City. His wages as a newspaper reporter were about one-fifth his previous income, but he had not been reporting long when he published a century of epigrams, which attracted the favorable notice of the late John Hay, Secretary of State. Col. Hay wrote him several letters, finally offering him a position in Washington, where, as he quaintly expressed it, "you won't have very much to do, but plenty of time to write." The offer was declined with appreciative thanks. Shortly afterward came another, and, according to the Western newspaper standard, munificent offer from one of the great New York newspapers. He came East, and for some years was engaged as reporter and editor on one or another of the New York dailies. It was while he was writing the articles that won 80-cent gas for the metropolis that a dean of editors called him "the best reporter in New York."

"Do you mean it?" he answered.

"Certainly."

"Then I'd better quit now."

He quit and became managing editor of Hampton's Magazine, with which he was associated for nearly four years, later becoming editor and Secretary of Travel Magazine. Shortly before the opening of the Louisiana Exposition a Western publishing house, needing a souvenir for the occasion, made a liberal offer to Mr. Griffith to write a history of the Louisiana Purchase, and, especially, of Kansas City, but declared it must be done within thirty days. The 400-page book was written and delivered on time. "City Views and Visions," however, according to the publishers, has been written over a period of years, during which time the author was editing magazines or reporting still more arduously for the metropolitan newspapers. The book frankly attempts to modernize and bring to America the Elizabethan eclogue and is a signal effort to realize in a novel way the poetry and philosophy of new-world life. The people of the book "voice only vague murmurs and echoes that have come by intermittently: voices from invisible verandas, hints and aspirations and memories and emotions of pulses that beat and have probably beaten forever through the world."

Reginald Wright Kauffman is at work on a novel which will be, it is said, supplementary to his "House of Bondage." The standard of morality for man as contrasted with that created by society for woman is the theme of his story, which will not be ready for publication until the Spring.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE UNIVERSITY IN AMERICA

Conditions Which An Educator Regards As Obstacles In the Pathway of Its Healthy Evolution.

By IRA REMSEN,
President of Johns Hopkins University.

THE word university is gradually coming to have a fairly definite meaning in this country. It is not synonymous with college and does not mean an aggregation consisting of a college, a law school, a medical school, and perhaps other professional schools. Above all things, it means an institution based upon the college, leading its students into higher regions of thought and introducing them to the methods of research. It is easy to show that intellectual advancement is dependent upon research. Further, industrial progress is directly connected with intellectual advancement, so that the welfare of a nation is closely related to the cultivation of research. A nation may, to be sure, import its ideas and lead a satellite's existence, but this is only a makeshift and cannot give complete satisfaction. Now, as the function of the universities is to keep alive the spirit of research, their development is a matter of supreme importance to the nation. They are not luxuries. They are vital necessities.

The growth of the university idea in this country has been remarkably rapid. A third of a century ago it hardly existed. Since then it has spread throughout the land. And the question suggests itself, Has this growth been a healthy growth? This is not the place to attempt a full answer, but we may at least briefly consider one aspect of the problem, and to this end another question may be asked: Have any conditions arisen that may be regarded as obstacles in the way of the healthy development of our universities? The writer is of the opinion that such conditions have arisen and he wishes to call attention to some of them here.

The first is to be found in the present practice with reference to fellowships and scholarships. The writer favors a wisely administered system of fellowships. A few prizes should be available for exceptional scholars who might otherwise not be able to pursue the higher courses of the university, but the number of those who are really worthy of this kind of encouragement must be relatively small, and, if those who are not worthy are encouraged, then the system is to some extent doing harm. As a matter of fact, hundreds of fellowships and scholarships are now offered to those who wish to take university courses, and in many places they can be had for the asking; indeed, it happens in some cases that students are asked to take them. The natural result is that many of those students who intend to follow university courses enter into correspondence with a number of universities with the object of finding out where they can do the best for themselves. It is safe to say that the authorities of all the larger universities are quite familiar with this phrase: "I am intending to take up graduate work next year and am trying to decide where to go. What inducement can you offer?" Sometimes the writer of such a letter goes on to specify just what he wants, and tells what some other university has offered him.

This state of affairs is objectionable for a number of reasons, among which two may be mentioned. First, it leads many to take up higher work who otherwise would not do so, and among these there are undoubtedly some who are not of strong intellectual fibre. Secondly, it often determines which university a student shall go to. Instead of trying to find out where the best work is done and where he will be most likely to get what he needs in the way of intellectual inspiration, he tries to find out where he can get the most money. The effect of this in the long run must be disastrous.

The second of the conditions unfavorable to the healthy development of our universities is to be found in the ambition of so many colleges to become universities. The result is that there are many of our educational institutions trying to do university work which their equipment does not justify. Such work is extremely expensive, and the equipment in teachers, buildings, books, and apparatus once provided will serve the purpose of a large number of students. It is impossible to provide what is necessary in a small college with small endowment, and a college that makes a pretense of doing university work without the essential equipment is doing more harm than good to the cause of education and, therefore, to the country. In the opinion of the writer a dozen good strong universities properly distributed would amply supply the needs of the country, and better work would be done by concentrating it in a few places. A dozen is probably a large estimate. Here a serious obstacle is encountered in the jealousy of the States of the Union. If Michigan and Wisconsin can have first-class State Universities why not every other State? The answer is that very few States are able or willing to supply the money, and, further, it would be a bad thing for the cause of higher education if every State should foster a university even with ample funds. For such a large number of universities could not draw a sufficient number of students to make their existence justifiable, nor could they all secure proper teaching staffs, as the supply of university teachers is inadequate even under present conditions. The problem here presented is a serious one, and is going to give us more trouble in the future than it does now.

Another condition unfavorable to the development of our universities is the nature of the college course. Time was when the college course was the highest offered to students in this country, and that time is not far distant. It then perhaps mattered little that the student was kept in college until he was 22 or 23 years old. But the function of the college has changed, and this is now undesirable. Indeed, if the graduate is to lead an intellectual life, if he is to take up professional work of any kind, it is positively objectionable that he should be kept from beginning his preparation so long as the college now keeps him. Take medicine. The more important medical schools now require a college degree for entrance and then provide a four years' course. Say the student graduates from college at 22. He is then 26 before he receives his medical degree, and after that he must have some hospital experience—at least a year. He is therefore 27 or 28 before he can begin to think of practice. If the only result of this were to keep many from studying medicine who otherwise might do so, it might be regarded as desirable, but the matter is more serious. Independently of all other considerations, it is a fact that the mind is more plastic and acquires new things better at an earlier age than that of the college graduate. The dog should begin to learn his new tricks before he is 22 or 23. The years from, say 20 to 25 are among the most valuable in life. These are apt to be the years of the most intense intellectual activity, and, in the case of the higher order of minds, these are the years of original thought. In so far, therefore, as the college keeps the student from entering the university until he is 22 or 23, it is standing in the way of the healthy development of the university, and of the intellectual development of the country.

Among the unfavorable conditions we are considering is the inadequate supply of properly qualified professors. It is gratifying and astonishing that there are as many as there are, but the fact remains that there are not enough to go around even now. The competition for the best of them is almost fierce. This is a good thing in some respects, especially because it tends to improve the condition of professors both in college and in university, and as this condition is improved more and more men of the proper calibre will be attracted by the academic career. But, on the other hand, when the competition leads a university to offer a man conditions which, if adopted at all widely, would be disastrous to the men and to the universities, then it becomes an evil. Now, this particular form of evil is beginning to show itself, and attention should be called to it early. What is referred to is the tendency—slight at present, to be sure—to call men to "research professorships." Every university professor should be and is by definition a "research professor." If he is not that he is out of place. To tell a professor that he will be "relieved from teaching and given all his time for research" is in the great majority of cases an injury to the man. Above all, to give an appointment of this kind to one not of the highest order of ability tends to undermine the university system of the country. There may be a few cases that call for this kind of treatment, but the writer has never known one. He has known a goodly number of men of the higher order. He has never known one who wished to be "relieved from teaching" and who did not believe that teaching was good for him, as well as good for the student. The two should go hand in hand. Most of the great investigators have been teachers and have been helped by their teaching. The exceptions to this need not be considered.

Again, while rejoicing in the founding of special institutions for research outside of and independent of the universities, the writer has wondered whether these institutions do not in a way stand in the way of the development of our universities. The point is this: It is naturally the policy of these research institutions to offer their opportunities to the best researchers to be found and thus to withdraw them from university work. It is well known that to-day some of our best workers have been withdrawn, and the benefit of their teaching is thus lost. This is no doubt entirely proper in the case of large projects which cannot very well be carried on at universities or by men engaged in university teaching, though even in such cases it is at least a fair question whether it would not be an advantage to the men as well as to the universities to permit them to spend a part of their time teaching at the universities. One cannot avoid thinking in this connection of the number of those who have given themselves up to large projects in research who have also suffered seriously in health. There may be no connection, but the facts are suggestive.

Finally, university men are being called upon more and more to render services in one way and another to municipality, to State, to nation. They are to be found upon all sorts of commissions. This is in the interest of good government in general, for these men are asked to serve on these commissions because they know, or are supposed to know, more about the subjects in hand than the average man, or if not that, they often have reputations for good judgment and uprightness that are most desirable qualities and should be helpful even in Government commissions. Conceding that, on the whole, this tendency is a good one so far as the cause of government is concerned, how does it affect the universities? In the highest sense, it affects them disadvantageously, and mainly for the reason that the commission work is distracting and, if a man is a good commissioner, or he is likely to leave undone some things which he ought to do as a professor. A certain amount of such work may help a man to look at things in a broader way, and thus help him as a teacher, but plainly, if the demands are great, his professional work must suffer.

Diagnosis is one thing. Treatment is another. For some of the difficulties mentioned the cure is obvious, for others, not much can be done at present.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Show Improvement in Dull Trading Despite Poor Cotton Report.

EVENING-UP TRANSACTIONS

Some Short Covering in Advance of Three-Day Holiday—Large Cash Transfers.

If the results of yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange were fairly attributed to evening-up transactions of traders in advance of the three-day holiday the course of prices showed that the prevailing position of traders had been on the short side of the account. The market though dull was firm throughout the session, and practically the only exceptions to a general though moderate advance in prices were found among the inactive issues, and there were relatively few of these which did not share in the improvement which occurred in the more conspicuous issues. The assumption that short covering was the prime factor in the day's advance in prices would also account for the apparent indifference which the stock market displayed toward the Government cotton report which made an unexpectedly unfavorable showing. That news though disappointing would not have deterred the covering up of short contracts, although it was in no way calculated to prompt fresh commitments on the long side. But whatever the facts underlying the buying which advanced prices yesterday the trading was too light in volume to arouse much interest in any quarter. The market acted as though traders were in no way loath to accept the three-day holiday after one of the most stormy months which the Stock Exchange has experienced in a long time. The uplift of prices indicated also some disposition to take a hopeful view of several matters in which developments of importance were expected in the interval between the close of trading yesterday and the resumption of business on the Stock Exchange next Tuesday. When the market closed news was still awaited of the outcome of the conference at San Francisco between the shopmen of the Harriman lines and the officers of those roads, the result of which was to determine the course which the men would pursue in reference to the threatened strike, and in another direction it was expected that diplomatic exchanges at Berlin would have determined before next Tuesday the probable solution of the problems presented by the German claims in Morocco. The cheerful views which were entertained yesterday regarding both of these matters offered a striking contrast to the feeling of depression which prevailed all through the recent decline.

The Government report on the condition of the cotton crop, issued at the beginning of August, showed unusual improvement in the crop and bettered the excellent expectations which had been based on the earlier report on that crop. During August, according to the Government report issued yesterday, greater deterioration occurred than had taken place in August in any year except two in the last twenty-five or thirty years. This reduced the indicated yield by more than 1,000,000 bales. On its face yesterday's report suggests a cotton crop this season in the neighborhood of 13,000,000 bales, but a considerable degree of skepticism was shown in cotton market circles in respect to the accuracy of the condition of 73.2 reported by the Department of Agriculture. This is 15.9 points under the July 25 condition, and is also under the ten-year average for Aug. 25, which stands at 73.5. It was considered altogether possible in some cotton trade quarters that this figure was sufficiently under the actual condition of the crop to leave the way open for the hope that the final yield would come well up to the largest of the cotton crops of past years. The cotton market rose on the strength of the Government report, but only to a moderate extent, for the net gains at the close of the day amounted to not more than from 7 to 11 points.

Preliminary estimates of the week's currency movements indicated a small net gain in cash, but these did not take into account two large transfers which were made through the Sub-Treasury yesterday which will considerably affect the actual cash showing in to-day's bank statement. On account of payments made by the syndicate which underwrote, the recent Chicago Elevated merger, $5,000,000 was transferred to Chicago and the Sub-Treasury also transferred by telegraph $1,500,000 to San Francisco. The latter was transferred at the request of the Treasurer of the Territory of Hawaii and represents the proceeds of that Territory's recent bond issue. It is understood that cash to this amount will be shipped from San Francisco to the Hawaiian Islands.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was quiet for a good part of the session, but with a generally firm tone. Odd-lot dealings in a number of stocks of which no sales were reported on the New York Stock Exchange, were again a feature. In this class were Westinghouse Electric, American Car and Foundry, American Ice, and Wabash preferred. Commission houses reported an increased investment inquiry for small lots of various specialties. The showing made by the Government cotton crop report, published at noon, checked the early improving tendency of the market, with the volume of business lessening, but prices, nevertheless, held very well.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Small Volume on Eve of Triple Holiday on the Curb.

NO STANDARD OIL SALES

Bids and Offers Wide Apart—Some Coppers Show Gains and Others Small Losses, with Undertone Firm.

Curb trading was in small volume yesterday on the eve of the triple holiday, and although prices were generally firm, gains were small. There were no trades in Standard Oil either with all rights to dividends and subsidiary company stocks or in the New Jersey company and the subsidiary groups separately, although bid and asked prices for the shares in any of these forms were standing all day. Among the coppers fractional declines were made in Braden, Giroux, and Ray Central. Inspiration, Kerr Lake, and Nipissing made small gains. Trading in the bond list was more diversified, but no price changes were made in the six issues appearing.

STOCK DEBENTURES LIABLE.

New Jersey Supreme Court Renders Tax Decision Involving Much Revenue

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 1.—The franchise tax levied by the State Board of Assessors upon $300,000 of debenture certificates of the Hilson Company of New York was sustained to-day by the Supreme Court. The company maintained that the certificates should be exempt from taxation because they are evidences of debt. The State Board held that as they gave their holders privileges only enjoyed by stockholders they were equivalent to certificates of stock, and accordingly assessed them. This view is upheld by the court.

The decision assures to the State thousands of dollars in franchise taxes. Had this corporation been sustained in its contention it would have been possible for all companies to issue debenture certificates in lieu of preferred stock, and thus escape annually a large part of the State taxes.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions Dun's Review says:

A better tone is noted in general trade, not alone at New York City, but at most jobbing centres of the West and South. Cotton goods are in better demand, revision of prices having apparently stimulated business. Export inquiry for printcloths is active and the demand at Fall River shows a marked improvement.

In footwear there is greater activity, but the buying is still notably conservative, the disposition being to cover consumptive requirements only. Domestic hides hold firm. Harvesting of wheat has been largely completed in many sections and elevators at terminal points are congested. These conditions somewhat restrict speculative operations on the grain markets. The cotton market is more susceptible to unsatisfactory crop advices, the Government estimate showing a deterioration of about 16 per cent. in the condition of the plant, which is above the average.

Railroad earnings for three weeks in August are 0.6 per cent. larger than in the same period of 1910. Merchandise exports from New York for the latest week amounted to $14,859,044, as against $15,593,034 for the corresponding week last year and $11,202,726 in 1909; imports were $16,026,116, compared with $16,178,165 in 1910 and $15,079,978 in 1909.

Bradstreet's says:

Numerous visiting buyers continue to be in evidence in the country's leading markets, thus making for more or less activity in house trade, but, notwithstanding this, reports tend to display a greater degree of irregularity than is usually visible at this stage of the season. The situation as a whole is characterized by a marked degree of conservatism, which finds expression in small-lot purchases, but significantly enough, prompt shipments are generally desired, thus indicating that retail dealers' shelves are probably empty. Still buyers, even those in the South, where the cotton and other crop outlook is exceptionally good, are exercising a good deal of caution, this word appearing more often in the reports than for some time past. So far as relative activity is concerned, dry goods, millinery, notions, groceries, and hardware lead in point of demand, with the Spring wheat Northwest sending in the best reports. Here cooler weather no doubt helps, as does the disposition to regard the crop situation as a better one. Retail trade is still very quiet, having been rendered considerably so along the Atlantic seaboard by a week of very wet weather and almost record rainfall.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver 1-16d higher in London, at 24 3-16d per ounce, and in New York ⅛c higher, at 52⅝c. Mexican dollars were quoted at 45c.

TREASURY SURPLUS IS LOW.

Deficit of the New Fiscal Year Has Reduced It by $21,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Although two months ago the Treasury began the fiscal year 1912 with a surplus on all accounts of more than $23,000,000, the heavy expenditures and low receipts of July and August have reduced it to $2,000,000, and for the new year to-day registered an ordinary deficit of more than $21,000,000, as compared with this time a year ago.

Briefly, the Government spent during August $5,500,000 more than it received from all its sources of income, the receipts totaling $55,000,000 and the expenditures $60,000,000. The receipts, as compared with last year, show a falling off at the rate of $3,500,000 a month. However, it is a tradition in Government finance that the Summer months are "heavy spenders," and the Treasury usually gets on an even keel before Winter.

In the ready cash Treasury officials find a condition which causes them no worry. The balance in the general fund to-day stood at $142,000,000, with a working balance in the Treasury offices of $85,000,000. The total of cash contained in the vaults shows a decrease. Last month established a high record at $1,889,000,000, but this sum fell to-day to $1,882,678,553.

National bank circulation stands at $737,000,000, an increase of about $5,000,000, which is due largely to the organization of new banks during the month.

Operations at the mints are at a standstill. Practically no gold is being coined. Under the operation of a new law gold certificates are being issued against foreign gold coin and gold bullion.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

London and Paris Markets Weak—Berlin Prices Heavy.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—There was a better supply of money available to-day, but discount rates were strong.

The stock market started well, with home rails leading a general advance, following the settlement of the Great Eastern Railway trouble. The markets weakened in the afternoon on the uncertainty of the Moroccan situation. Foreign securities and Kaffirs closed flat on Paris selling, and Consols lost an eighth despite the satisfactory conclusion of the settlement.

American securities opened quiet and steady, and during the forenoon advanced on light covering. Prices moved irregularly, after the Wall Street opening, but the markets hardened in the late trading and closed steady.

Money, 1½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills 3 per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 8.60; at Lisbon, 7.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Prices closed weak on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f 50c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 26c for checks.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—After a heavy opening, prices improved slightly on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 48 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3⅜ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3½ per cent.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,262. OIL USED IN THE MANUFACTURE OF "OLEINA."—A report from an American Consular officer in Mexico states that an inquiry has been received from a business house in that country for information as to whom it may write to in reference to purchasing oil for use in the manufacture of "Oleina."

7,263. HARDWARE, MACHINERY, TOOLS, &c.—An established business firm in Porto Rico writes that it is looking for some new lines of tools, hardware, agricultural implements, fruit growers' supplies, &c., and would like to hear from American manufacturers.

7,264. ELECTRICAL APPARATUS AND MACHINERY.—An American Consular officer in the Far East reports that a water-power electric company has recently been incorporated in his district. According to the prospectus, the capital of the company will be $10,000,000. It will furnish 86,000 horse power to a city at the rate of seven-tenths cent per kilowatt hour. American manufacturers of electrical apparatus might find it profitable to get in touch with this concern.

7,265. AUTOMOBILES.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a business firm in the United States advising that one of its agents in India is anxious to secure the agency in that country of an American-made automobile selling from $1,000 to $1,500.

7,266. WOOLEN RAGS.—A report from an American Consulate in the United Kingdom states that at the present time considerable quantities of American rags are being imported direct by manufacturers in that country. The Consul has received letters from two firms in his district desiring to be put in touch with American exporters in this line. The letters state that cash payments will be made, and if stock and prices are right, extensive sales can be made.

7,267. AMERICAN GOODS FOR AUSTRALIA.—An Australian business man, who is now in the United States, writes to the Bureau of Manufactures that he has been commissioned by various firms in Australia and New Zealand to make inquiries concerning and put them in touch with an American house handling improved buttons and trimmings for low-priced work of manufacturing tailors, hardware, small household fittings, window and display signs for retail stores, confectionery, footwear, and novelties of all kinds. He also states that he has placed an American office line with many houses in that country, and would be pleased to hear of any improved office labor-saving devices for his clients.

7,269. CONSTRUCTION, DECORATION, AND FURNISHING OF THEATRE.—A report from the American Consulate General at San Salvador states that the Board of Public Works has advertised for bids for the construction, decoration, and furnishing of the new National Theatre to be erected in that city. Proposals will be received until Sept. 15. As the time is short, it is doubtful if American contractors could compete successfully with local firms or with European concerns that have representatives on the ground. The same is true with regard to the decoration of the theatre, but it is stated that bids on the decoration will probably be accepted later than Sept. 15. American manufacturers should, however, have a good chance of securing the order for the orchestra chairs and the box seats. There will be 424 orchestra chairs, which are to be of the most up-to-date and convenient type, while there will be 46 boxes containing 274 seats.

Further Low Records.

The five days' trading, which closed the week yesterday, resulted in fifty new low records for the year, in most instances representing further declines in stocks, which had previously reached their low levels for the year in August. Among the more active issues which made new low levels this week are Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Rock Island, International Harvester, and Lehigh Valley. In the acute stage of the August decline, however, there were several single days in which the number of new low records made exceeded those made in all of this week.

Central's July Showing.

The July earnings of the New York Central show, besides a substantial increase in gross, a falling off in operating expenses, which correspondingly adds to the net showing. Operating revenues were $7,497,425, an increase of $350,112, and operating expenses decreased by $133,466, to $5,130,975, leaving net $2,366,450. The deduction of a deficit of $4,409 in outside operations, a decrease of $41,220, and the subtraction of one-twelfth of the annual taxes left operating revenue at $2,013,795, an increase of $510,341. For the seven months ended July 31 gross was $49,326,701, an increase of $1,806,991. Net for the period was reduced by an increase of $591,729 in operating expenses. Operating income for the period was $10,596,026, an increase of $1,467,342.

Waiting for Dividends.

Declarations of dividends payable Oct. 1 are now being made, and will be more frequent daily up to about the 15th of the month. It is usual for from three to six weeks to elapse between declaration and payment of dividend disbursements, and in some isolated instances, notably that of the United States Steel Corporation's common dividend, which is declared at the same time as the preferred, the time elapsed between the announcement and the payment is even longer. No complaints are heard from American shareholders of this established interim, and therefore the complaint of a British railroad shareholder, to which prominence was given in a London financial journal, seems the more surprising. This shareholder has made a table of a score of British railways which allow anywhere from one to seven days to elapse between the dividend meeting and the date of the distribution of the dividend. He says: "It would seem a boon to many small holders to receive their dividends at as early a date as possible after the meetings are held. Some companies certainly set a good example, but they are few. In most cases a period of a week to nearly three weeks is allowed to elapse before shareholders can handle their money, and I cannot think that any valid excuse can be put forward for this delay."

Poor Bank Exchanges.

After a month of favorable showings by comparison with the previous year, in which the weekly statistics of bank clearings as compiled by Dun's Review showed substantial gains over 1910, the returns from the principal centres of the country for this week show an increase of only 1.9 per cent., the total being $2,171,048,364. Compared with 1909, however, the showing is even less favorable, there being a decrease of 30.8 per cent. at New York, which brought the total for the country down in comparison with that year, to a loss of 22.9 per cent. New York's gain this week over 1910 is 2.4 per cent., which compares with 4.7 per cent. last week and 16.0 per cent. two weeks ago.

Quick Standard Oil Transfers.

In the late trading in Standard Oil on Friday some records were made in putting through transactions. With the books closing at 3 o'clock for the long period until the subsidiary stocks are divided some time about Dec. 1, it was necessary for buyers who wished to get the shares transferred into the names of their clients to pay cash and get the actual shares promptly in hand to be rushed down to 26 Broadway. In one case the specialist handled a purchase for a broker whose client was in Pennsylvania. The price was quoted over the long-distance phone to the client, the purchase agreed to, the name into which the shares were to be transferred supplied, and the funds telegraphed on. In no more than half an hour the purchasing broker had turned over a certified check, received his shares, and had them delivered for transfer at the Standard Oil offices. The quickest local transaction was put through in three minutes. The sale was made by the specialist at three minutes to 3 o'clock. He had a representative waiting on the phone at 26 Broadway and gave him over the phone the name of the purchaser to whom the transfer was to be made on the books. The shares were handed in with the name just on the stroke of 3 o'clock.

MILLIONS PAID FOR BONDS.

Chicago Elevated Securities Proved Profitable Short-Term Investment.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Several millions of dollars were paid by check to-day at the Illinois Trust and Savings bank to holders of maturing bonds issued by the Northwestern Elevated Railroad Company. Blair & Co. of New York also redeemed several millions of the bonds, of which the total amount outstanding was $18,850,000.

Until recently the greater portion of these bonds was held by Chicago investors, but when the movement to consolidate the local elevated roads assumed a promising aspect New York bankers bought heavily, because at the prices at which the Northwestern bonds were then selling they offered a good return on a short term investment.

The syndicate behind the recent merger of the overhead traction lines furnished the money for the retirement of the bonds takn up to-day, as well as for the purchase of the stocks of the various properties brought together under the consolidation.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Generally Firmer Tone in Principal Centres, with Advances in Local Issues.

SHOE MACHINERY SELLS OFF

After Early Advance in Boston This Industrial Drops 4 Points, to 42—Cambria Steel Active in Philadelphia.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets was firmer in tone yesterday, and with few exceptions the local issues advanced.

Cambria Steel was the most active of the purely local list in Philadelphia. During the morning one house seemed to have a considerable supply of this stock for sale at 44, but by the middle of the afternoon this had been cleaned up and the price advanced to 44¼.

The Boston market opened steady, and prices made some advances during the early trading. There was a good demand for the active copper shares, and all these issues recorded fractional gains. United Shoe Machinery was the feature in the miscellaneous list, advancing to 46 and later breaking 4 points to 42 on an avalanche of selling orders.

Business on the Chicago Stock Exchange was much restricted and price changes were small. There was moderate buying of Chicago Pneumatic Tool, causing a slight rise, while Swift's shares were fairly active but slightly lower. Chicago Railways Series 2 Participation Certificates reflected considerable strength in a sale of 50 shares at 29½, which is a gain of 2¼ points compared with the last previous transactions.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The wheat market continued a slow movement, closing at a small net gain for the day. There was no enthusiasm, but generally a more confident feeling. There was some pressure on September at the West, with the difference widened to 5¼c. Deliveries were of rather moderate volume and appeared to be well cared for. The market late was influenced by some realizing. The foreign news was the principal bullish influence. Cables were all higher. The Liverpool markets were up ¼d. Paris was strong and up about 2c a bushel. Berlin wheat was up ⅝c and rye 1⅜c. Antwerp wheat was up 2c a bushel and Budapest 1⅝c. Good Continental demand was reported for wheat, particularly from Germany, on account of the scarcity of Russian offerings. There were also reports of demand in Germany for rye to go to Russia. The export figures showed light movement. Argentine shipments for the week were 784,000 bushels, against 1,520,000 bushels the previous week; Indian, 896,000 bushels, against 1,048,000 bushels; Australian, 896,000 bushels, against 1,000,000 bushels; American exports were 3,074,000 bushels against 3,422,000 bushels, and world's exports were estimated at 9,500,000 bushels, or 1,200,000 bushels less than last week and nearly 4,000,000 bushels less than last year. The foreign demand for wheat in the American markets was slow, but there were reports of seven loads of Manitoba wheat at New York and of forty loads from Winnipeg direct. Cash wheat was quoted, No. 2 red, 96⅝c; No. 1 Northern, $1.13⅝; No. 2 hard Winter, 98⅝c, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.08⅛.

CORN was active and strong early, but reacted late, closing at unchanged to ¼ advance for the day. The market early was influenced by strong foreign markets and reports of good foreign demand. Later the amount reached 500,000 bushels for export from outports. The news from Europe was of continued strength in feed stuffs, and the Liverpool corn market was ¾d higher. The selling on the advance was of rather liberal volume, and late there were some rather favorable crop reports claiming a material improvement in condition in Illinois and the eastern Ohio Valley, and prices eased off. Cash corn was quoted at 73½, in elevator, domestic basis, and 73c, free on board.

OATS.—The oats market was fairly active and firm; early influenced by the strength in corn and by the strength of cash oats West. The advance met quite a little selling, and with somewhat quieter demand for cash oats prices showed an easier tone in the late afternoon. Receipts continue very light, and the interior arrivals this week have been 2,000,000 bushels, less than last year. Cash oats were firm, with standards, 47c; No. 2 white, 47½c, and No. 3 white, 46½c.

PROVISIONS.—The market was quiet and firm. A better tone developed, and with smaller deliveries on contracts than expected and with a stronger hog market West prices worked upward. The receipts at all points were only 48,000 hogs.

The New York Produce Exchange will be closed to-day and also Monday. The Western markets will be open to-day but closed Monday.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The undertone was firm during yesterday's session. The cotton condition of 73.2, as given by the Government, was bullishly construed, and while not generally credited, served to inspire more or less outside buying. The continued strength in lard was also a factor, but, on the other hand, reports of a less active consuming demand on account of the recent advance restrains bullish enthusiasm and serves to partially offset the firmness in crude, due to light offerings.

COTTON.

The predictions that considerable cotton would be for sale, irrespective of the showing of the Government report, was fulfilled, but it was apparent that the document was rather below expectations, and more or less buying occurred, which absorbed offerings in a somewhat better fashion than anticipated. Numerous private estimates had prepared the trade for a low condition, while claims that agitation in the South recently interfered with the returns to the Government served to nullify its effect, but some interests argued that the report, even after making allowance for the recent rains in the Southwest, was not bearish, and some buying was predicated upon the idea that the low condition may stimulate an improved trade demand both at home and which applied to 35,000,000 acres, would

The fact is worth commenting upon that on an advance of about 10 points above Thursday's finals, the South sold freely. The report compared with a condition of 89.1 last month and 72.1 last year, when the crop was 12,000,000 and the acreage picked 2,600,000 acres smaller than the acreage planted this season. Deductions from yesterday's report were numerous, but none conclusive, results depending mainly upon the yield per acre used in computing. The average for the past ten years is .386, which applied to 35,000,000 acres, would point to a yield of about 13,500,000. This is not allowing for abandonment in acreage, which, however, is thought to be small to date, and, moreover, cultivation this year is superior to that of any season.

Prior to the Government report the market moved nervously, but was above Thursday's closing prices as a rule. Liverpool cables were above expectations and the insect complaints from Alabama and the Central West continue. On the whole, however, crop accounts, with these exceptions, are good, prevailing weather conditions in the Central West being as desired.

There is no important diminution in the movement of cotton. Port receipts yesterday were, approximately, 21,000 bales, against 11,000 last year. Galveston receipts to-day, however, will probably only total to 9,000, against 17,000 last year. New Orleans expects only 800, as compared with about the same amount last year. It is already predicted, however, that the coming ginners' report on Sept. 8 will be bearish, with estimates of about 500,000 bales ginned comparing with less than 400,000 last year.

New York Cotton Exchange crop figures for the year ended Aug. 31 are 12,017,000 bales, against New Orleans figures of 12,120,000 bales.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Ball & Whicher will open a new branch office on Sept. 5 at 16 West Thirty-third Street, under the management of Alfred M. Vernon.

George H. Burr & Co., 45 Exchange Place, will have ready Sept. 4 a third edition of their booklet, "Industrial Preferred Stocks." It describes twenty prominent issues, yielding 5½ to 7 per cent.; how to select them, marketability, earnings, and other timely data.

The Executive Committee of the Clearing House section of the American Bankers' Association yesterday elected Charles A. Ruggles, manager of the Boston Clearing House, Vice President of the section in place of George Guckenberger of Cincinnati, deceased. A secretary of the section is to be selected in a few days, owing to the increased work of the section.

BANKERS ACCEPT LADING BILL PLAN

Their Committee Reports Objections Removed, but Individual Banks Are Still Opposed.

NO GUARANTEE REQUIRED

Central Bureau, Through Which Bills Are to be Cleared, Has Begun Business.

After an all-day session yesterday the Bills of Lading Committee of the American Bankers' Association approved, with certain modifications, the plan for safeguarding the issue of export cotton bills by means of a checking system at a central bureau of registry. The committee's recommendation is that, with these changes, "the proposed plan for the establishment of a central bureau in the city of New York be given favorable consideration by the exchange buying banks of the country, and announces that in making this recommendation it does not in any manner wish to convey the impression that the proposed plan is to at all interfere with the main purpose of the committee in securing legislation now before Congress in the form of the Stevens bill."

Members of the sub-committee headed by Fred I. Kent, Vice President of the Bankers' Trust Company, which has represented the bankers in connection with the plan, were called in consultation at the meeting yesterday, as were Charles S. Haight, attorney for the Liverpool committee which has been most active in advancing the plan, and M. Godchaux of New Orleans, representing the Southern bankers.

The chief objection that has been raised by the banks in New York which handle the bulk of the export cotton bills is that the form of notification to be sent by them to the Central Bureau advising it of their purchases of exchange and the details of the bills of lading on which they are based might be construed as placing additional responsibility on them for the genuineness of the bills. The committee announced that this question had been submitted to Thomas B. Paton, general counsel for the American Bankers' Association, and that the form had been changed by him in such a way as to make it clear that the bank handling the bill of lading held it merely as a pledge for collateral security, and assumed no responsibility for its genuineness, or for the quantity or quality of the cotton described therein.

In the statement issued by Mr. Paton on behalf of the committee after the meeting yesterday it was said that full consideration had been given to all the objections, and that apart from the one relating to the form of notification, they were based on these grounds:

> First—That the plan would give certain advantage to exchange buyers in New York City by reason of the fact that the Central Bureau would be there located.
>
> Second—That the plan in its operation would prevent the ready negotiation, acceptance, and payment of drafts drawn against cotton shipments.
>
> Third—That under the plan the foreign buyer would not properly discriminate in the selection of his agents.

The committee disposes of these objections as follows:

> To obviate the first objection it was suggested, with the assent of the representative of the foreign interests, that the Central Bureau, instead of sending acknowledgments of each bill of lading, in response to notification, should give no information to any one concerned, except only in cases where particular bills of lading had been found forged or otherwise ineffective, thus preventing the pyramiding or cumulation of losses. The committee considered that the change thus proposed would remove the first objection.
>
> As to the second objection, the inquiry was specifically made of the representative of the foreign interests whether it was the intention of the foreign bankers to refuse or delay the acceptance of drafts until they would hear from the Central Bureau. He replied that such an idea had never been entertained; that the Central Bureau is not expected to receive an application from a European banker at all; that nobody has ever thought of such a thing. The committee reached the conclusion that there was no ground for the second objection and that interior bills will, as heretofore, be honored on presentation, in accordance with their terms, both in this country and abroad, and without regard to any work of investigation by the Central Bureau.
>
> Concerning the third objection, the committee thought that the initial American bank would be assumed to have closer information of the responsibility of its clients, and that even assuming a failure to properly discriminate in the selection of his agents, by the foreign buyer, the loss from any fraudulent transaction, in view of the existence of the Central Bureau, would be of comparatively trifling character.

After dealing with the objection made by the exchange-buying banks and the change in the form of notification, the committee, in its statement, says that "all the objections being eliminated, the committee reached the conclusion that the plan was a valuable one in safeguarding against forgery and should have at least a fair trial."

The Central Bureau has already been established, and practically all of the cotton-carrying railroads have agreed to forward to it duplicates of all cotton bills of lading issued by them. Yesterday was the date for the bureau to begin operations, but some of the railroads began some time ago sending in their advices.

The action of the committee yesterday has, of course, no binding force on the individual banks, and it remains to be seen what course they will pursue. Aside from the technical objection which the committee believes has been met, the officers of some of the largest of these banks have expressed themselves as opposed to the plan on general principles as unnecessary, and an attempt by the British interests to dictate to them as to the conduct of their own business.

LOCOMOTIVE BUSINESS GOOD

American Company's Earnings $8,000,000 More Than Last Year.

The annual report of the American Locomotive Company for the year ended June 30, shows gross earnings of $40,649,385, which were $8,445,993 greater than in the previous year, and twice as large as in the year 1908-9. After a charge of $1,056,417 for depreciation on all classes of property, the surplus, $1,815,561, compared with $334,758 in the previous year. The sum of $300,000 was deducted for the extraordinary additions and betterment fund, leaving the net credit to profit and loss, $1,515,561.

Commenting on the general business situation, the report says:

> Although the volume of gross earnings for the year is gratifying in comparison with the preceding year, the plants are still contending with the economic difficulties of fluctuating activities which have prevailed in varying degrees since the depression of 1907. Production varied during the year from a maximum of 80 per cent. of the capacity of the plants to a minimum of 38 per cent.
>
> At the beginning of the year there were unfilled orders on the books of $17,550,000, nearly one-half of the gross earnings for the year, and on July 1, 1911, the amount was $6,015,000. In only one month during the year did the receipt of orders represent work for more than one-half of the company's capacity, and it was evident early in the Winter that retrenchment was necessary to meet the falling off in business which overtook the plants during the last half of the year. Several of the smaller plants were therefore closed and the orders confined to the larger plants, with a resultant economy in the cost of plant operations as a whole.
>
> Reference was made in the preceding report to extensive improvements at the larger plants, which are located at Schenectady, Dunkirk, Pittsburgh, and Richmond. These improvements have been practically completed, the capacity of the company being now twice as great as it was at the time of its formation in 1901, and capable of producing about $60,000,000 of business.
>

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Syndicate Secures Control of Broadway Block Front Lease —Group of Buildings in the "Penn Loft Zone" Leased — Investors Buying Tenements — Bronx and Suburban Deals.

Leases were the feature of yesterday's realty market, which was dull and inactive from a trading standpoint, only a few scattering sales being recorded.

In the leasing line, however, there were several big transactions, the most important being the announcement that a syndicate headed by Samuel A. Cunningham, President of the Bankers Safe Deposit Company, had arranged to take over from John L. Murray the long lease secured by him several months ago of the Albany apartment house block, on the west side of Broadway, between Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets.

Just who the members of the syndicate are and to what use the property will be put could not be learned definitely yesterday.

Early last December, Murray, the West Forty-second Street restaurateur, obtained a long lease of the Albany block at a reported net rental of $65,000 a year for the first twenty-one year term. The property, which is diagonally opposite the Winter Garden, formerly the Horse Exchange, belongs to the estate of the late John J. Emery, who purchased it twelve years ago for about $500,000.

It is controlled by the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia. The plot fronts 201.10 feet on Broadway, 108.2 feet on Fifty-first Street, and 103.11 feet on Fifty-second Street.

Big Lease in "Penn" Loft Zone.

In the Pennsylvania Station loft zone, where there has been a number of long-term leases made during the past few weeks, Frederick S. Justice leased from Jules S. Bache and Henry Wollman a group of twenty buildings on Tenth Avenue, Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, lying just to the west of the French Hospital.

The lessee takes the houses for a term of years at an aggregate rental of over $100,000. Messrs. Bache and Wollman have been accumulating property adjacent to the hospital for several years. The houses leased include 406 to 416 Tenth Avenue, comprising the block front; 460 to 470, 474 and 478 West Thirty-fourth Street, and 449, 451, and 455 to 461 West Thirty-third Street. W. C. Wotton negotiated the deal.

Rosalind Court Sold.

Godfrey B. Moore has sold to an out-of-town investor for Joseph J. Harris, as attorney, 510 West 144th Street, a six-story apartment house known as Rosalind Court, on plot 100 by 100. The property has been held at $225,000 and was sold close to that figure.

Buyer of Midtown Loft.

George W. Buckridge is the buyer of the nine-story loft building, 3 East Seventeenth Street, adjoining the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue, sold recently by the Postal Life Insurance Company.

The purchase price was $225,000. The company took back a five-year mortgage for $175,000 at 4½ per cent. The buyer will add three more stories to the building, making it a twelve-story structure. Nathan Stern was the broker.

This property was acquired along with five other parcels in January, 1911, by the Postal Life Insurance Company from the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society of New York in the transaction by which the Postal Life reinsured the Provident Savings with the approval of the Hon. William H. Hotchkiss, Superintendent of Insurance of this State.

The management of the Postal Life has decided to dispose of all said real estate with the exception of the fifteen-story office building 35 Nassau Street, now known as the Postal Life Building.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Harry N. Kohn has purchased from S. Levin 778 Tenth Avenue, a five-story tenement, with stores. The purchaser is having plans prepared for thorough remodeling of the premises.

C. F. Heitmann sold for Thomas McPhillips 234 West 144th Street, a five-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 99.11.

William Corcoran has sold to Josephine Sussman 2,496 Eighth Avenue, a five-story flat, with stores, on lot 25 by 100. The buyer gives in exchange 759 Jennings Street, a similar house, on plot 40 by 134. The trade was negotiated by M. H. Meyer.

A Manhattan-Bronx Trade.

B. Morris has sold for Martin Grosman a plot of eight lots on the west side of Southern Boulevard, 120 feet south of 173d Street, to a firm of builders who will erect on the plot five-story flats. Mr. Grosman takes in part payment the northeast corner of Manhattan Avenue and 100th Street, a six-story apartment. Arnold, Byrne & Bauman represented the builders.

$230,000 Loan in Queens.

The Postal Life Insurance Company has made a loan of $230,000 for five years at 6 per cent. on bond and mortgage to the Springfield Realty Company on developments in the Fourth Ward, Borough of Queens, known as Springfield Gardens, Springfield Gardens West, and Highview Park. The property is laid out in streets and parkways, and has two stations of the Long Island Railroad on the property: one the Long Beach Electric Road Division, and the other a station on the Montauk Division. Building operations on a large scale will be started this Fall.

Suburban.

Edward B. Hamilton & Co. have sold for Flora M. Roche her residence and about two acres in Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J.; also for August Rahn thirty-two acres, including dwelling and outbuildings on the westerly slope of the Second Orange Mountain.

Michael Samuel, President of the Standard Acreage Company, sold to a Long Island syndicate two tracts containing 110 acres in Lakewood, N. J., about three-quarters of a mile from Lake Carasaljo. The new owners intend to develop the land into a high-class residential park, and have engaged prominent landscape architects to do the work.

Jules Nehring has sold 136 Park Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y., a private residence and garage, on a plot 100 by 150. The buyer, a builder, intends to erect an apartment house on the premises. The property was held at $25,000.

Joseph P. Day reports that he has sold for the Manhattan Beach Estates the plot 40 by 144 on the west side of Corbin Place, 430 feet north of the Esplanade, to Mr. Griswold.

L. N. Nicholson & Co. have sold at Lyndhurst, N. J., to John H. Watkins for Philip J. Tholoue, Jr., a new six-room house, with all improvements, on Weart Avenue, on a plot 50 by 150, for $3,300; also to John C. Davis for Abner Blanchard his five-room cottage on Lincoln Avenue for $2,100, and to William Fabris for John H. Burke a large eight-room house on Stuyvesant Avenue for $4,600.

Recent Buyers.

Potter & Brother are the buyers of the four-story dwelling, 53 East Seventy-third Street, sold recently by Florence T. Van Beuren through Pease & Elliman. This property has been sold three times within a month.

William Shillaber, Jr., is the buyer of the four-story building 83 Dey Street, sold recently through William H. Whiting & Co. The building adjoins the southwest corner of Washington Street, and is to be used in connection with the new quarters of The Globe.

The newly formed Haven Realty Company, William Braunsdorf President, is the purchaser of the Henry Hudson apartment house at the northwest corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 178th street, reported sold Thursday.

SAND BURR II.'S TRIAL 31.5 MILES AN HOUR

Smallest Motor Boat in American Fleet Shows Greatest Speed in Second Test.

Leading her nearest opponent, Melville and Heckscher's Nameless, by about two miles in distance and by 8 minutes 43 seconds in time, the motor boat Sand Burr II., owned by A. K. and C. D. White of Atlantic City, dashed across the finish line in Huntington Bay at 4:36 yesterday afternoon the winner of the second elimination race. The Sand Burr II. is the smallest motor boat in the fleet of nine that was entered for the privilege of becoming defenders of the International Motor Boat Trophy.

Although the time made by the Sand Burr II. was much slower than that made by her bigger sister, the Dixie IV., on Wednesday, the same engine reliability was shown. Her performance from start to finish of the race was most consistent, and she received cheers and whistle salutes from the fleet of attendant yachts at anchor near the finish line.

Louis Sammis was the helmsman and "Hun" Doughty the engineer of this remarkable little craft. The course was thirty miles, and they had to cover a seven-and-a-half-mile triangle four times to complete it. The first round was covered in 16 minutes 25 seconds, the second in 16 minutes 9 seconds, the third in 16 minutes 44 seconds, and the fourth in 16 minutes 42 seconds. The actual time for all, being 1 hour 6 minutes, gives the boat an average speed of 27.27 nautical, or 31.5 statute, miles.

The start, made at 3:30 P. M., was exciting enough to please any motor boat enthusiast. The "buzz" of the high-speed engines could be heard a mile away off the Chateau des Beaux Arts pier as the four boats approached the starting line where the Race Committee, Henry R. Sutphen, Charles P. Tower, and Victor I. Cumnock, stood ready on board the Motor Boat Club of America's steamer Pioneer to time them. Almost at gunfire the Viva, with Commodore Blackton at the helm, dashed across the line and sped to the northward.

The Nameless, steered by William Adkin, was second, the Sand Burr II. third, and the Disturber II. fourth. The Nameless held the lead for the first round. She soon passed the Viva, which was traveling under two of her four engines. Then the little Sand Burr II. went to the front and held her lead easily to the finish. The Disturber II., handled by her owner, James E. Pugh of Chicago, retired soon after starting, having broken the gear of her starboard engine. The committee declined to make a selection of the two more boats required until after to-day's race.

Although the Sand Burr II. is the smallest single-plane boat in the fleet of aspirants for the defense of the cup, she has a record for consistency that many of the larger boats do not possess. She is owned by A. K. and C. D. White of the Seaside Yacht Club of Atlantic City. She is equipped with a 100 horse power six-cylinder Emerson engine, and her over-all length is 19 feet 11 inches. She is the holder of the world's record for twenty-foot boats for 1911, her top speed being recorded as 36.7 miles an hour. At the Western Power Boat Association's regatta at Peoria in July she did ten miles in 19 minutes 59 4-5 seconds; fifteen miles in 26 minutes 57 1-5 seconds; twenty miles in 37 minutes 51 1-5 seconds; twenty-five miles in 45 minutes 37 2-5 seconds. The Sand Burr's bottom is concave from stem to stern.

The Motorboat Club of America notifies the public which contemplates attending the British international races at Huntington, L. I., on Sept. 4, 5, and 6, that arrangements have been made to have trolley cars meet the trains leaving the Pennsylvania station, Manhattan, at 9:10 and 11:05 A. M. Conveyances will take passengers from the trolley line direct to the pier and the Chateau des Beaux Arts. Guests holding cards of invitation to the houseboat Pioneer, will find launches making frequent trips between the pier and the clubhouse boat Pioneer. Guests will show their cards of invitation to those in charge of the launches. The last launch will leave the pier at 1 o'clock on each day of the races to enable the clubhouse boat to take up her position at the starting line.

PHRYNE WINS FOR MORGAN.

Seawanhaka-Corinthian Y. C. Holds Special Autumn Regatta.

In a light breeze from north to northwest ten yachts, in three classes, sailed an interesting race yesterday in the Special Autumn Regatta of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club. The largest classes to start were the New York Yacht Club thirty-footers and the Q Class of sloops. They sailed around the 15¼-mile course, which took them around the windward mark off Greenwich Point, thence to Long Neck Point, and to the finish. This gave them a beat, a reach, and a run. The committee boat was the Silver Heels, owned by Howard C. Smith. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr.'s, Phryne, Ralph N. Ellis's Caprice, and S. C. Hunter's Juanita were the starters in the thirty-foot class. They got away together on the signal at 3 P. M., with the Phryne in the weather berth. E. F. Luckenbach's Suelew and F. G. Stewart's Princess of the Q Class started five minutes later. Then came the club's fifteen-footers—five of them—at 3:10. They sailed the short course of 5¾ miles, rounding Lloyd's Neck bell buoy and the Centre Island buoy.

After a closely contested race the Phryne won from the Caprice by 1 minute 44 seconds, and the Suelew defeated the Princess by 2 minutes 8 seconds. In the fifteen-foot class F. R. Coudert's Alys was the winner, defeating the Thelema by 54 seconds. The summary:

GOVERNOR DISCUSSES FIGHT.

Has Confidence That New Commission Will Enforce Law to the Letter.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 1.—In an interview with Gov. Dix in reference to the disgraceful conditions at the first large fight in New York City under the Frawley law the Governor said:

"Prizefights cannot take place under that law, and betting is impossible. Those men who compose the commission are men of high integrity and responsibility. I have every faith in them and in the law, and I am positive that it will do what it is planned to do without any amendment. As far as repealing the law is concerned I will not advocate such a move nor countenance it. It is claimed that the fire laws have been violated. If so the police were negligent, as they are responsible for that condition, and any violations are in the hands of that department."

When the fact was mentioned that a great many persons who had purchased tickets for the fight were refused the seat for which they had checks, the Governor refused to discuss this, as also the charges made by The Evening Post that he was directly responsible for the affair.

Investigation will be made to-day of the complaints concerning the disorder in connection with the boxing bouts held last Wednesday night in Madison Square Garden. Action was to have been taken yesterday by the New York State Athletic Commission, but as Patrick T. Powers, representing the management of the club, the Madison Square A. C., which held the bouts, requested a hearing, the session was postponed.

Frank S. O'Neill, one of the members of the commission, made the announcement after receiving a communication from Powers. The commission is said to feel that as this was the first big bout since the new law came into effect, the objectionable features should not be allowed to go unnoticed, as one of the objects of the body is the regulation of boxing contests under orderly conditions.

Chairman James E. Sullivan, who is confined to his home at Bay Crest, near Huntington, L. I., had the following to say in regard to the affair: "The rules of the commission expressly provide that the price of each ticket must be marked on it. If a $1 ticket is sold for $3, then the rule has plainly been violated. Of course, we cannot stop speculation in tickets. The police must do that. We cannot stop a man who has paid $5 for a ticket from selling it for $25 if he can. But when fight managers advertise a ticket for $1 and stamp that price on it, the managers will not be allowed to raise that price to the public."

Action will be taken to-day to the end of legislating so that no more tickets can be sold than there are seats in the house of the club holding bouts.

At yesterday's meeting licenses were granted to two clubs, the Sharkey Athletic Club, New York City, and the Olympic Athletic Club of Rochester, N. Y. This makes eleven clubs now licensed in Greater New York to hold boxing bouts. The applications of three others were laid over, the Syracuse City A. C., Standard Athletic Club of Greenpoint, and the Olympic Athletic Club of Manhattan.

These additional referees were named: George Monroe, Samuel Lewis, Michael J. Newman, Abraham Marks, and James Donovan, all of Manhattan; James Stewart and William McPartland, Brooklyn; James Quinn, Rondout; Thomas Jenkins, West Point, and J. F. Gorman, White Plains.

MATT WELLS ENTERTAINS.

English Champion Host at Dinner to Well-Known Sportsmen at Metropole.

Matt Wells, the English lightweight champion, who defeated Knockout Brown at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday night, gave a dinner to a number of his friends at the Metropole last night. One of the courses at the repast was "Punch, a la K. O. Brown," but blonde-haired K. O. Brown wasn't there to enjoy it.

Matt is highly pleased with New York and America. He sat at the head of the table last night wearing a perpetual smile. Dave Levy, his backer; Dai Dallings, his trainer, and George McDonald, his manager, sat with him. Also decorating the festive table were Big Tim Sullivan, Charley White, the veteran referee; "Honest John" Kelly, Ted Marks, George Considine, Eddie Burke, Eddie Leonard, and several others. Wells made a short speech and said he liked the treatment he was receiving here. He is elated over American sportsmanship. "Big Tim," in a short talk, said he was glad to break bread with the Britishers, but would have liked it better if they had brought over a loser instead of a winner. Americans are fair, anyway, said Tim, and always want to see the best man win.

Wells has no immediate plans for the future. He is showered with offers. From London comes the offer of a well-known promoter for $25,000 for a bout with either McFarland or Wolgast. Tex Rickard, who promoted the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno, has wired an offer from South America of $40,000 for a finish fight with Wolgast in an open arena in that country. Wells and his manager will give this scheme much consideration.

Wells says that he expects to have another ten-round bout in this city with some well-known lightweight before he takes on either Wolgast or McFarland. Wells is very happy over his victory with Brown, and wants to go back to England with the American title and a lot of money.

GINTY'S BOUT AT BRIGHTON.

Scranton Boy Wins Slashing Bout from Battling Hurley.

Tommy Ginty of Scranton outpointed Battling Hurley of Passaic in a slashing ten-round bout at the Brighton Beach Athletic Club at Coney Island last night before a good-sized crowd. The bout was full of action from the start and Hurley put up a fine up-hill fight against the stinging blows of the boy from the coal regions. Ginty had a dangerous left punch which he used with the regularity of a trip hammer and with this one punch he defeated the Jersey boxer. He sent his left into Hurley's stomach and jabbed him continually in the jaw. Occasionally Ginty would whip over a hard right and on two occasions he staggered Hurley with hard rights on the jaw.

Hurley's best work was done in the clinches. He was very effective at in-fighting, and at times had Ginty worried. Hurley was a rough-and-ready mixer, but Ginty was a bit too clever for him. Hurley became excited at the punishment Ginty was dealing out and became wild.

Ginty showed his superiority in the first round, and in the second began to execute some damage. After a hot exchange of blows the boxers clinched, and after fighting themselves apart, Ginty sent a hard right to the jaw, which staggered Hurley. The honors were even in the third, and Hurley had a shade the better of the fighting in the fourth.

The fifth and sixth rounds were about even, both boys getting in many effective blows. Ginty clearly outfought Hurley in the seventh, rocking Hurley's head back with a terrific right on the jaw, followed by lefts to the body and head. In the ninth round Ginty went at Hurley from the tap of the bell. A right hook landed on Hurley's right eye, and inflicted a gash from which blood flowed freely. Hurley was nonplused by the punch, and came back strong enough to even up the round, but in the tenth Ginty again showered blows on Hurley's body and jaw with his busy left fist.

Burns Wins at Rockaway.

A large crowd last night attended the Atlantic Athletic Association Club's first set of bouts held at the clubhouse at Rockaway since the Frawley bill became a law. The contestants in the main bout of ten rounds were Frankie Burns, the clever Jersey City bantamweight and Charley Harvey, a Philadelphia bantam. The bout went the scheduled ten rounds and at the termination of the last round it was not hard to pick Burns as a winner. He did all the leading and aggressive work throughout the entire fight.

Harvey did not appear to be in shape for the contest and put up a very poor exhibition. He indulged in considerable foul tactics and was being constantly warned by the referee to stop his "holding on."

In the semi-final bout which was scheduled to go six rounds, Young Goodman, a local boy, knocked out "Fighting" Fitzpatrick with a hard right swing to the jaw, near the closing of the first session.

Miss Painter Western Champion.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Miss Caroline Painter of Midlothian, won the woman's Western golf championship to-day, defeating her clubmate, Miss Alva Sanders, 3 up and 2 to play in the eighteen holes finals. As in the semi-finals, Miss Painter won in a strong finish. Neither of the cards was remarkable, Miss Painter going out in 47.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Duty on Incomplete Collar and Cuff Buttons Is Reduced—Other Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday reversed Collector Loeb's classification of incomplete collar and cuff buttons composed of metal. The merchandise was assessed for duty at 50 per cent. ad valorem as buttons not specially provided for. They were claimed to be dutiable at three-fourths of 1 cent per line per gross, and 15 per cent. ad valorem as buttons or parts of buttons of metal not specially provided for. Judge Somerville reaches the conclusion that the protests are well founded, and must be sustained. The Collector is directed to reliquidate the entries in accordance with the finding of the tribunal.

Thomas Meadows & Co. failed to obtain relief in a controversy involving the classification of hats. The Collector reported that in ascertaining the dutiable value of the goods, a proportionate part of the packing charges was added to the actual value. The importers claimed in their protest that the packages, cases, and cartoons were improperly included in the dutiable value of the goods. The importers failed to submit evidence at the time of the hearing, and as a result Judge Somerville overrules the protests.

The board sustained claims filed by Victor Koechl & Co., regarding the classification of tins, tubes, and barrels containing wool grease, lanoline, and lanoline toilet cream, all of which are pastes. They were assessed for duty as unusual coverings, and are claimed to be "usual." This contention Judge Somerville sustains, toegther with a somewhat similiar claim filed by Austin, Nichols & Co.

Nearly all the debts were contracted between 1904 and 1910, at Ithaca, N. Y., where he had a preparatory school, and part of the debts are on leases. Among the creditors are George C. Boldt, Jr., this city, $11,000, money loaned in 1904; Patrick Wall, Ithaca, $2,400; Frederick Wicht, Ithaca, $4,500, and Allen C. Hutchinson, Utica, $3,000.

B. Claflin Company, $23. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments of $1,000, and removed property worth $2,000. Judge Hough appointed Morris B. Arnold receiver of the assets, which are estimated at $3,000. They have been in business since March, 1909. Mr. Ash was also in a dry goods business in Brooklyn on his own account.

J. C. GAVIGAN & CO.—Judge Holt has appointed John S. Davenport receiver in bankruptcy for J. C. Gavigan & Co., (corporation,) investment brokers, of 1,328 Broadway. The assets are less than $5,000. The corporation, it is stated, has a number of pieces of valuable office fixtures, and is receiving from time to time money in the ordinary course of business on account of bills receivable. The petitioners believe the property will be disposed of and the money used to defray the expenses of the defense in the criminal proceedings against President Gavigan by the United States authorities instead of being held for the benefit of creditors of the corporation.

YOUTH SAVES GEIDEL FROM DEATH CHAIR

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Murder in Second Degree for Killing Broker Jackson.

MOTHER'S TEARS AIDED ALSO

Attacks on Slain Man's Character Didn't Influence Verdict—Penalty 20 Years to Life Imprisonment.

Because of his youth and his mother's suffering, the jury in the case of Paul Geidel, the slayer of William Henry Jackson, was merciful to him yesterday and handed up to Judge Crain in General Session, after eighteen hours of deliberation, a compromise verdict of murder in the second degree, under which he will be spared from death, but may receive a sentence of from twenty years to life imprisonment.

The verdict was arrived at after seven of the jurors had stood out for many hours for a verdict of first degree murder and the others had won them over gradually with arguments based upon Geidel's youth and the suffering it would have inflicted upon his mother to condemn him to the electric chair.

In reaching the verdict at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Judge Crain, who was having his first experience with a murder trial, thanked the jurors for their faithful services. Geidel, the seventeen-year-old defendant, faced the twelve men who had had his fate in their keeping for eighteen hours with little emotion. When Gabriel Marluck, the aged foreman, announced that the jury had found Geidel guilty of murder in the second degree, two tears made their way down Geidel's cheeks. He made no outcry, and while those standing near by could tell from the glistening tears that he was struggling with some emotion, those at a distance could not tell that he was in the least affected. The jurors shook hands with his lawyer as they passed out.

Geidel's mother was not in court, she having gone to the Tombs expecting to find her son there. It was half an hour after the verdict was rendered before she was found, and then a representative of the District Attorney's office located her waiting before the iron-barred gate to the place of her son's confinement. She had a paper bag in her hand filled with fruit, which she had brought for her boy's breakfast.

When informed that the verdict was second degree murder Mrs. Geidel became hysterical, fearing that they had taken the boy away at once to prison without allowing her to see him. A few minutes later he arrived at the Tombs from the court room and his mother went in to visit with him.

Judge Crain remanded Geidel until Tuesday, when he will pronounce sentence.

From the District Attorney's office Mr. Whitman himself was present to hear the jury's verdict read, Mr. Nott, who conducted the prosecution, having gone upon his vacation immediately after concluding his final arguments on Thursday.

Mr. Whitman received the verdict with surprise, which was not accompanied by any expression of satisfaction or pleasure. James Gray, of counsel for the defense, on the other hand was delighted. He said that he was so well satisfied that he would make a positive announcement that he had no intention whatever of appealing the case—a decision which he would not have reached, he said, had the verdict been for murder in the first degree.

How the Verdict Was Reached.

The jurors in taking their final vote at 4 o'clock in the morning after being locked in the jury room from 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon until midnight, and in the courtroom of Part II. of General Sessions from 12 o'clock until morning, agreed also that no juror should discuss the case in any way.

But once they were out of the Court House the questioning to which each juror was submitted by his friends, who put him upon the defensive as to the verdict for the lesser degree of murder, brought out replies indicating what the attitude of the jurors was.

The attack on the character of the aged and lonely broker who came to his death by Geidel's act was wholly without effect in influencing the verdict, it may be said upon the authority of seven different members of the jury. The first action, after the jury retired, was to agree unanimously that Geidel murdered Jackson, and that there had not been the slightest excuse for this act on any ground involving Mr. Jackson's reputation or good name.

It was when the next step in the process of arriving at a verdict was reached that the jurors split. They had been instructed to bring in a verdict for first degree if they found the property stolen was worth over $25, or if they found that the murder had been premeditated.

Seven of the jurors on the first ballot expressed their conviction that Jackson had been murdered as the result of a premeditated design. Four voted that the murder had been done upon an impulse without premeditation. The remaining juror thought that he could conscientiously vote for a verdict of manslaughter, on the ground that there was no premeditation and that the goods stolen, having brought $23.75 to Geidel, were only worth that much, and therefore permitted a verdict based on the supposition that petit larceny only had been committed.

The result of half an hour's conference among the jurors was indicated in the next ballot, when arguments about the terrible penalty that would be inflicted upon the boy's mother if her son should be put to death won away two of those who had at first stood for a verdict of guilty in the first degree. The vote then stood five for a first-degree verdict and six for second degree. The juror in favor of manslaughter still stuck to his conviction.

In taking his oath as a juror each man had sworn that he would not allow the fact of the boy's youth or the actions of his mother to influence him in making up his mind if the Judge should charge the jury to bring in a verdict of guilty in the first degree. This fact was brought forward by the jurors who stood firm for the first-degree verdict, and it resulted, after an hour's quarreling, in the appeal to Judge Crain for further instructions. Neither the instructions then given nor those which had been given in the general charge made it clear that Judge Crain favored a verdict in the first degree.

Court decisions were referred to by jurors who had served on previous juries, indicating that it was entirely legal for a jury, if it so wished, to bring in a verdict of murder in any degree decided upon, regardless of the degree charged in the indictment. These, with the absence of specific instructions from Judge Crain, gave the jurors favoring a second-degree verdict as a proper concession to the youth of the defendant and an act of mercy toward his mother a plausible argument with which to assail the others.

From 9 o'clock until after midnight there was no change in the vote, each poll standing 5 for a first-degree verdict, 6 for the second degree, and 1 for manslaughter. The one standing out for manslaughter finally yielded to those favoring the second-degree verdict, which made the vote at 2 o'clock 7 to 4. At 2:40 o'clock the vote was 11 to 1 in favor of a second-degree verdict, and at 3 o'clock the final poll was taken, showing the unanimous conclusion.

The jurors, by that time thoroughly worn out by their deliberations, slept as best they could upon tables and benches and in the straight-back chairs provided for general use in the courtroom.

At 8 o'clock the jurors went out to breakfast, and at 10 o'clock were waiting rather impatiently for Judge Crain to announce their verdict and hasten away to their places of business and employment.

Youth Saved Him, Says Whitman.

At the District Attorney's office late in the afternoon Mr. Whitman made a statement in which he said that if Geidel had been three or four years older he undoubtedly would have been declared guilty in the first degree.

"The fact is," said Mr. Whitman, "that it would be hard work getting twelve jurors together who would sentence a boy of tender years to death in the electric chair, especially if the boy had a mother whose plight the jury takes into consideration. We are more satisfied with the verdict than we would have been with a disagreement."

Mr. Gray, who left the courtroom very much elated, later reduced his elation to words in a formal statement, pointing out some of the difficulties under which he labored throughout the case.

"We believe," said Mr. Gray, "that we are reliably informed as to the opinion of every juror before consultation with his fellows. Some of them would have justified the particular juror in holding out for a verdict of manslaughter, but with the verdict finally arrived at we are entirely satisfied. We believe that the verdict is a distinct victory. We were confronted by five so-called confessions, none essentially different from the others, and each containing admissions to constitute every element of murder in the first degree. There was also a statement in writing containing admissions of all the elements of murder in the first degree. Considering these things as well as the almost universal belief that the defendant was, in fact, guilty, we cannot but be entirely satisfied."

Employes in Mr. Gray's office drew up resolutions of sympathy for Mrs. Geidel, accompanying them with a pledge that they would contribute half of their September salaries for her. On behalf of himself and his associate, Mr. Cleary of counsel for the defense insisted they had not received any money whatever for their services in defending Geidel, and that they had taken up the case after learning of the poverty of Geidel's mother, which prevented her from employing counsel.

For the speed displayed in securing a conviction the case will be long remembered in both Police Headquarters and the District Attorney's office. For their efficient services in locating Geidel after the crime had been committed and in preparing the net of circumstantial evidence with which his confessions were corroborated, the detectives who worked on the case received promotions, the announcement of the decision in their favor being made within a week after the discovery of Broker Jackson's body in his rooms at the Iroquois Hotel on July 27. The District Attorney's office had all of its evidence before the Judge and jury within thirty days of the date of the murder, and the verdict was arrived at within thirty-seven days.

In the case of Albert Wolter, who murdered Ruth Wheeler, a similar effort was made to gain a speedy conviction, but in Wolter's case the plan to have him put to death soon after his conviction was thwarted by an appeal, which is still pending.

NO DEALING IN OIL STOCK.

Curb Traders Indisposed to Either Buy or Sell.

There were no trades in the shares of the Standard Oil Company yesterday on the Curb, where the stock has found a market practically since the organization of the New Jersey company. Traders were apparently unwilling to take a chance either on buying or selling, and while there were quotations standing all day, not only on the shares of the New Jersey corporation alone, as it will be after Dec. 1, but also in the shares of the subsidiaries themselves.

The bid and asked prices of Standard Oil of New Jersey, "subsidiaries on," were fixed by Ackerman & Coles, who have been the specialists for years, at 605-635. That is, they stood ready to buy at $605 per share or to sell at $635. The last price on Thursday was 630, and during that day's trading 376 shares sold between 620 and 635 for cash.

Quotations were made on Standard Oil stock alone, but including all rights to any dividend declared "up to and including Dec. 31," at 325-450 by Ackerman & Coles. The same firm made a price of 325-400 for the stocks of the subsidiaries alone.

Bids were also made yesterday of 8 per cent. for the last quarter's dividend on Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. This for several years past has been at the rate of 10 per cent. on the $100,000,000 capitalization.

RECEIVER OWNS RAILROAD.

William J. Oliver in Possession of Knoxville & Eastern.

The Knoxville, Sevierville & Eastern Railroad has passed out of a receivership and into the ownership of William J. Oliver, the Knoxville railroad contractor and builder, who was the receiver.

Mr. Oliver was the builder of the road. A few months ago the Revilo Construction Company instituted a suit against the road, which resulted in it being thrown into the hands of a receiver. Sevier County, Tenn., was a party to the suit. Mr. Oliver operated the road as receiver, and a compromise was brought about, whereby he purchased the stock of Sevier County, having already obtained control of the other stock, and became full owner of the line.

FIND MISSING CONVENT GIRL.

Found with Boston Woman, Who Is Held Under White Slave Law.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 1.—The mystery of the disappearance from a Philadelphia convent of pretty Helen Berens, daughter of a Washington family, was partially solved to-day when United States officers found her at 63 West Newton Street and arrested Grace Dow Browner of that address on a "white slave" charge.

When the girl, who is less than eighteen years old, was taken before United States Commissioner Hayes this afternoon the court was astonished. She is a beautiful girl of refined manner and well educated. She was attractively gowned.

The officers said the girl had been sent by her parents to a convent in Philadelphia to be educated. From there she disappeared several months ago with a man whose name they did not disclose. Her parents asked the Federal officers in Washington to help them in their search. The girl was traced to Limington, Me. The officers finally found her at the West Newton Street house. She had been there but two weeks.

The Browner woman who was arrested had a long string of aliases.

A dispatch from Portland says a woman, supposed to be Miss Berens, caused considerable comment at Limington a short time ago on account of her beauty. She was there a few days, and it was believed she was on her way to the White Mountains. While there she gained the friendship of those with whom she associated because of her bearing and conduct.

The Browner woman was charged with violation of the law recently enacted by Congress dealing with the white slave business. It was said by one of the special agents connected with the Department of Justice that the Browner woman had been posing as a sister of the Berens girl.

EXPLAINS PANTHER INCIDENT

Shell from the Delaware Went Near, but Not Dangerously Near.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—One of the shells of the battleship Delaware fired at the old San Marcos in Chesapeake Bay Monday came closer to the repair ship Panther than 1,000 yards, according to a report personally submitted to Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop to-day by Lieut. Commander Leigh C. Palmer, naval aid to the President and director of target practice. Commander Palmer was on board the Delaware during the firing.

While some of the projectiles probably richochetted in the direction of the Panther, none of them, it was said, placed the repair ship in danger. Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic fleet, as a matter of precaution ordered the Delaware to cease firing until the Panther could get completely outside the range of the big rifles.

ITALY TRIES TO KEEP GRIP ON CRIMINALS

Ex-Ambassador Griscom Says They Get Here Despite Home Government's Best Efforts.

NO CLUE TO STOLEN BOYS

Police Drop One Case Where Italian Father Now Denies That Child Has Disappeared.

Lloyd C. Griscom, former Ambassador to Italy, and a member of the Italian-American Civic League, which is actively engaged in preparing Italians for citizenship in this country, added his name last night to the list of those who defend Italy from responsibility for the presence of kidnappers and bomb-throwers in the Italian communities of this and other large American cities.

Mr. Griscom was reached by telephone at his Summer home in Fairfield, Conn. He said he had not given the matter of lawlessness among the Italian settlements here special study, but that the question of the admission of Italian ex-convicts to this country had repeatedly come up for consideration in the period he represented this Government at Rome.

"All efforts of this country to keep out criminal and otherwise undesirable immigrants," said Mr. Griscom, "have met with the heartiest co-operation from the Italian Government. The Mayor of each town in Italy is empowered to issue passports to prospective emigrants, but they are forbidden to do so if the applicant has not a clean police record. Without such a passport it is impossible for an Italian to leave any of the ports of Italy."

It was recalled to Mr. Griscom that most of the Italian ex-convicts who come here embark from French or other European ports, having professed no intention when leaving Italy of coming to America. The former Ambassador remarked that it would be very difficult for Italy to stop this.

A. Pecorini, editor of Il Cittadino, (The Citizen,) a weekly Italian newspaper, who says he has made a close study of American institutions and has written a book on them which had the honor, though undeserved, he asserts, of being compared with James Bryce's "American Commonwealth," entered the discussion of the best means of ridding the Italian community of more than 500,000 of its parasitic and criminal members by writing an open letter to the American press.

Mr. Pecorini devotes much of his letter to an attack upon a section of the daily Italian press of the city, saying no other community in the world as large as the Italian population in New York is so poorly served by its daily press as the Italian community here. He asserts that many of the Italian papers print almost nothing about American institutions and do nothing to lead the Italian people to know more about this country, its laws and opportunities, or to induce immigrants to become naturalized and good citizens.

On the other hand, he says, some of the Italian dailies give most of their space over to the publication of the most lurid tales of murder and other bloody deeds in all their repulsive details. In this manner, he declares, such Italian newspapers are not only doing nothing to elevate the Italian population and inspire it with high, patriotic purposes, but are really doing much to lower the Italian immigrants' morals and narrow their outlook on life.

Signor Pecorini warmly defends, however, the great majority of Italian settlers in New York.

"The immense majority," he declares, "are honest, hard-working, law-abiding persons. Let me tell you that they are not touched by the unspeakable corruption which exists among those Italians who on account of peculiar conditions have stood as the exponents of our nationality in the city.

"If New York has its subways, if it has its mighty skyscrapers, if it is going to have its wonderful aqueduct, this is due in great measure to hundreds of thousands of Italian laborers. True, they have been paid and are being paid, but in the last twenty years more than 15,000 of them have been injured while working for this great city.

"They are now in the tailoring establishments, they are in the kitchens of the best hotels, they are in the barber shops, they are on the stage of the largest theatres, and in the best orchestras. These are the Italians to whom the city owes in good measure its progress, the Italians whom nobody knows, nobody thinks of, and who do not know much of the life of their fellow-countrymen. They have left disgusted the Italian environment and they live alone, not receiving from the Americans the treatment they are entitled to on account of the large number of the other kind of Italians who are better known to the community and who have created an unfavorable public opinion against the whole nationality."

When some of the editors of the daily Italian papers were asked last night about the strictures upon their papers by Signor Pecornini they asked not to be quoted by name, but to say that his statements were not true, and did such of the daily press as he referred to a grave injustice.

Dr. Antonio Pisani of 2 Oliver Street, a member of the Board of Education, and one of the most prominent physicians in the Italian community, said last night that he hoped that in the discussion of lawlessness of certain Italians the fact would not be obscured that the criminal element is extremely small compared with the great mass of law-abiding Italian people, about whom nothing is ever heard.

"You must remember, also," said Dr. Pisani, "that while the Italians are guilty of bloodshed and blackmail, most of the other crimes they are not guilty of."

When asked how he accounted for the fact that many of the apparently respectable and law-abiding Italian citizens, when victimized by Black Handers and kidnappers, refused positively to aid the police, replied:

"I am convinced that they must be terrorized. They must be afraid that far worse things than threatened in the letters demanding money will befall them if they put the police on their trail. But it is a pity a few of the Black Handers cannot be caught and severely punished as a warning to the rest."

Inspector Hughes, in charge of the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters, said last night that his men had dropped the Basella kidnapping case altogether. Basella, the father of the kidnapped boy, now refuses to permit the detectives to enter his store. He denies that his son has ever been kidnapped, notwithstanding that the boy has been missing since July 31, and on Aug. 26 Basella himself appealed to the police to help find the child. The police are still looking for some trace of the Quartrano boy, and since his body has not been found they have no doubt he has been stolen.

Acting Manager Manuel Behar of the National Liberal Immigration League announced yesterday that the bill providing for the deportation of alien criminals, introduced in the Sixtieth Congress by Congressman Bennet, would be reintroduced in modified form in the Sixty-second Congress.

Mr. Behar said such a law would, in his judgment, be very effective in dealing with elusive criminals. There would be less chance of revenge on the victim who informed the police if the convicted man, after serving his prison term, were deported. Mr. Behar added:

"An act providing for an educational test would not necessarily exclude criminals if they passed the physical test. It would exclude from this country many who are able to ply the pick and shovel and are honest, though they might not be able to pass the educational test, but criminals are usually able to pass the educational test. They can also pay a head tax, no matter how high it would be, and with the cunning they are known to possess they can with ease secure a certificate of good conduct which the simple laboring man might not be able to obtain. I believe that aliens who are known afterward to have been criminals when they came here, especially after they have committed crimes in this country, should be deported as the best safeguard. And this would be a great weapon against such criminal societies as the Mafia, for instance."

Scaglia Held for Grand Jury.

Pelgro Scaglia, who was arrested in St. Louis on a New York warrant, was arraigned before Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday charged with the murder of Bartolo Cardinali on July 30 last as the man was sitting in the window of his home at 344 East Twenty-first Street, and remanded to the Tombs without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

ILL-LUCK DROVE TO SUICIDE.

Young German, Out of Employment, Still Wrote Glowing Letters Home.

Frederick Bahmann, a young German who came to this country in the hope of winning a fortune, committed suicide yesterday morning in his room, at 156 St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx, by inhaling illuminating gas. The body was found by Mrs. Helen Gleiver, who runs the rooming house, and Dr. S. F. Jackson of 592 East 135th Street, who was summoned, said that the young man had been dead about an hour. It is believed that he ended his life because of inability to obtain employment.

Bahmann, whose father is a glass manufacturer in Spitzenbach, Germany, first came here three years ago just after graduating at college. He was employed for two years by Constantis Wagner, a glass manufacturer, of 697 East 132d Street, and then, having saved considerable money, decided to go to Germany for a visit. On his return a few weeks later he found that the position he had held was filled by another, and during the months that followed he met with no success in his search for work.

Letters from his parents found in Bahmann's room showed that he had continued to send home glowing accounts of what he was doing here. The money he had put by was rapidly disappearing, however, and during the last few weeks, Mrs. Gleiver said, he had been suffering from melancholy. She did not know that he was on the verge of starvation, as he had remained away from the house during the daytime, as a rule, and told her he was at work.

On a table in Bahmann's room the police found a letter addressed to his father, in which, it is believed, he wrote about his trouble. It will be forwarded to Germany. In the last of the letters from Bahmann's father, the latter had urged him to return home to take charge of the business there, as he intended soon to retire.

JERSEY COMMUTERS HEARD.

Ask Why It Isn't Cheaper to Ride to Hoboken Than to New York.

The Public Utilities Commission of New Jersey held a hearing in Jersey City yesterday for future decision as to whether railroads have a right to refuse to sell commutation tickets from near-by Jersey towns and villages to such places as Jersey City, Weehawken and Hoboken, and to insist that commuters should buy commutation tickets to New York with the privilege of ending their journey at the State line if they desire to do so.

John W. Zisgen, a Jersey City lawyer, who is one of the complainants, testified that the Erie Railroad's station agent at Ramsey, where Zisgen has a country home, refused to sell him a monthly commutation ticket to Jersey City, saying that his instructions were to sell tickets through to New York even if tickets to Jersey City were asked for. Formerly, said Mr. Zisgen, he paid $6.85 a month, but since September last he must pay $8.70.

Other complainants testified to the same effect against the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In defending the attitude of the railroads Henry Wolf Bickol, assistant general counsel for the Pennsylvania, declared that in questions of traffic the volume is decisive, and that New York gets a low commutation rate because of the immense traffic to and from it. Jersey City, Hoboken and Bayonne, he said, get the New York rate because of their proximity to New York and have lower rates than any other inter-State points.

Wrestling Bouts at 20th Century.

A wrestling show has been arranged by the Twentieth Century Athletic Club at St. Nicholas Rink for next Monday afternoon. The grapplers will be Leo Pardello, the Italian heavyweight, and Neil Olsen, the Dane. This main bout will begin at 3:30, but the doors will be opened about 12:15 P. M. In the preliminary bouts will be Nicola Mantagano, the Italian middleweight wrestler, who is known as Young Munday, and Ignatz Jaranowski of Poland. John McLaughlin, the Irish wrestler, will have for an opponent George Sandale, the Greek. During the progress of the afternoon's athletic pastime the returns of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt bout in Chicago will be announced.

Gain in August

In August The New York Times published 497,475 lines of advertisements, compared with 475,400 lines in the same month last year, a gain of 22,075 lines.

The New York Times has the largest circulation in the United States among money-spending people.
